DECISION FAVORS THE FORESTER

REGULATIONS OF FORESTRY
DEPARTMENT UPHOLD

Colorado Case Decided Against Stockmen — Grazing Regulations Are Not Unconstitutional—Department Has a Perfect Right to Make Regulations and Enforce Them—Other Similar Cases Pending.

The government has just won its sixth important case concerning the validity of the regulations made by the secretary of agriculture to control grazing in the national forests. In the United States court at Denver, Colorado, Judge Robert E. Lewis has overruled the demurrer of Fred Light, a wealthy stockman of Pitkin county, Colorado, which contended that the grazing regulations in force on the national forests are unconstitutional. The whole case revolved around the contention by some Colorado stockmen that the government is no more than a private land owner in the matter of state fence laws. A number of states have fence laws which make it impossible for a private person to collect fees or damages from owners of stock which stray upon his land unless the land is fenced. The national forests are not fenced and on this the stockmen based their refusal to pay grazing fees.

A friendly suit to test the regulations of the secretary of agriculture prohibiting the drifting of stock upon the forest. At the public lands convention held in Denver last June the forest officers and representatives of the Colorado Cattle and Horse Growers' association, of which Mr. Light is a member, agreed to a friendly suit. The case is practically the same as the famous Shannon case in Montana, in which the grazing regulations were also upheld.

The decision of Judge Hunt in this Montana case was affirmed by the United States court of appeals at the ninth circuit sitting at San Francisco on February 3, this year. That decision stated without qualification that the grazing regulations are reasonable and valid and that the state land laws do not apply to the national forests and that therefore, the drifting of stock upon the forests in violation of the regulations is trespassing, notwithstanding the state law.

The light decision simply affirmed the same principle in another jurisdiction. The attorneys for Mr. Light, under the agreements made before the trial, are bound not to dispute the facts, but will probably appeal the legal questions for decision by the circuit court of appeals at St. Louis. Eventually it will be carried up to the supreme court.

The other suits attacking the grazing regulations won by the government are the following cases: The United States versus Shannon, Montana; the United States versus Hale, South Dakota; the United States versus Deguirro, Northern California; the United States versus Domingo, Idaho; the United States versus Dent, Arizona.

WILL TOUR PACIFIC COAST.

"The Clansman's" World Record Trip Postponed so That the Great West Can See Noted Play.

In response to requests by leading managers and theatrical circuits west of the Mississippi, George H. Brennan, president of the Southern Amusement company, has decided to postpone until the summer of 1909 the three years trip around the world, planned by Thomas Dixon, jr.'s celebrated drama, "The Clansman." Beginning early next September the original "Clansman" company will start from New York city on a tour of the Pacific coast and return, visiting only the most important cities.

"The Clansman" management found it no slight task to cancel the extensive arrangements made for the visit of the play to the other English speaking countries. In some instances contracts had already been signed with English and Australian managers who had to be paid a heavy bonus for releasing "The Clansman" from its 1908-9 bookings. The difficulties have all been smoothed out, however, and no obstacle remains in the way of a western American tour which will doubtless duplicate "The Clansman's" thoroughly extraordinary success east, north and south.

As a play which has been witnessed by more than 3,000,000 people and which strikingly sets forth the Anglo-Saxon slogan of white supremacy over the black, brown and yellow races, "The Clansman" will present a peculiar fascination to Pacific coast play-goers. Its performance in this city will constitute perhaps the chief event of the dramatic season. Practically the same company and magnificent scenic production will be brought here that won the favor of New York, Chicago and other large eastern cities.

STATEHOOD CAN'T STOP THE INDIAN DANCES

A letter from Muskogee, Oklahoma, says of the mid-summer Indian dances of the five tribes:

Those who believe that with the coming of statehood Poor Lo would immediately abandoned all habits and customs beloved of his ancestors and become a "heap civilized" citizen and voter are doomed to disappointment.

The arrival of spring has sent the warm blood bounding through the veins of the redskins and nothing short of a "green corn dance" will serve as a vent for their bottled-up enthusiasm. Therefore, Lo will dance, and the preparations for the festivals, which are held during the latter part of May, are now being made.

Grand STREET PARADE 10:30 DAILY

At the commencement of the "Green corn" dance the Indians gather from all parts of the reservation at the dance house, a large barn-like building with a dirt floor, hardened and worn smooth from much tramping. They come to the dance with their faces painted and wearing their finest clothing and trinkets. It is a "full dress" affair.

Each day of the "green-corn" celebration, the dancing begins at 10 o'clock in the morning and lasts until about midnight. At intervals of from two to five hours the dancers have an intermission of about 30 minutes, which is spent in feasting on rice, chicken, possum and dog meat and smoking the "pipe of peace."

Sometimes the Indians will dance in a wild frenzy for 10 hours without once going out of the circle. Of the whites, only the "squaw men," who took an oath of allegiance to the tribe when they married their Indian wives, are permitted if they are painted and dressed in the Indian costume.

There is more or less love-making at all of the dances, but there are more betrothals at the "green corn" dance than at any other. Possibly this is true because it comes in the spring, when the Indian's heart, as well as the white man's, "lightly turns to thoughts of love." This celebration is not regarded as a success by the younger members of the tribe unless it is followed in three or four months by several weddings.

RATE IS EXTORTIONATE.

Ritzville Farmers Compelled to Pay $2.10 Per Ton on Wheat to Tacoma. A special from Ritzville, Wash., says of the grain rates from there to Tacoma:

That the Northern Pacific railroad nets $2.10 per ton on wheat shipped from Ritzville to Tacoma, and that the Great Northern nets an equal amount on wheat shipped from Odessa to Tacoma, was one of the surprising bits of evidence brought out at the session of the state railroad commission which opened in Ritzville this morning.

These figures were given during the testimony of O. O. Calderhead, secretary of the commission, and a man well versed in railroad matters. The hearing is on a complaint filed and represented by W. R. Cunningham, sr., acting, it is said, for the farmers of this district, in which he alleges that the freight rates on wheat to tide-water are excessive from eastern Washington.

J. A. Alexander, assistant attorney general, and W. H. Ludden, of Spokane, represent Mr. Cunningham. The Great Northern is represented by L. C. Gilman, of Seattle, and the Northern Pacific by Judge R. S. Grosscup, of Tacoma.

The first witness examined was Henry Blakley, assistant traffic manager for the Northern Pacific at Tacoma, who said that no one could tell what a reasonable rate was unless they knew the cost of construction, the value of rolling stock and, in fact, the value of all the property with the cost of operation, none of which, he said, he knew.

M. J. Costello, assistant traffic manager of the Great Northern, like Mr. Blakley, said that in order to know the reasonableness of a rate he must be acquainted with these facts, of which he, also, was ignorant. This testimony closed the forenoon session.

MONTANA TRACK MEET.

High Schools of the State Struggle for Supremacy.

Missoula, Mont., May 13.—The University of Montana today opened its halls and grounds to the athletic gladiators of the high schools of the state, who are here in large numbers to participate in the fifth annual inter scholastic meet of Montana. The meet will last four days and from present appearances will be the biggest athletic event ever held in the state.

This year's meet is the fifth. Missoula secured the highest number of points in the first meet in 1904. Butte won the 1905 contest and Anaconda captured the first honors in 1906. Last year Flathead secured the lead, with Missoula a close second and Great Falls, Fergus, Teton, Butte, Anaconda, Helena, Gallatin and Broadwater following in the order given.

Pacific Coast for Taft.

San Francisco, May 13.—That the Pacific coast will be solid for Taft when the roll is called in the republican national convention is indicated by advices from Sacramento, Portland and Spokane, where the state conventions of California, Oregon and Washington, respectively, will be held tomorrow. Among California republicans the sentiment is overwhelmingly for Taft, and this favoritism is apparently shared by the other coast states.
