HUNGRY FOR LAND

SOUTHERN OREGON IS ATTRACTING ATTENTION

Opening of Military Road Grant Is an Event in the Settlement of the State—East Oregonian Article Brings Inquiries from All Over Oregon—Plan of the Sale Explained.

"From as far east as Ontario we are receiving letters asking for information regarding the sale of farms in the military road grant of southern Oregon, stating that the writers had seen the advertisement in the East Oregonian," said J. H. Gwynn of the Pendleton Investment company, agents for the land, this morning.

"The Gould system has its new road from Reno completed within 50 miles of Lakeview, and portland papers announce immediate construction by the Harriman system of a line from Lakeview south to a connection with the Southern Pacific at Anderson, Cal., following Pitt river from Goose lake, and giving a water grade.

"These lands are attracting the attention of a great many people in eastern Oregon. The average rainfall at Lakeview has been 26 inches the past 10 years, according to government reports, and a reclamation project, covering 60,000 acres in the Goose lake valley, is an additional attraction to investors and homeseekers.

"Lack of title to the lands has kept railroads from giving transportation to the country. The opening of these lands and the sale of 11,992 farms will give the inhabitants and the railroads will be there before the opening to furnish transportation.

A farm ranging from 10 acres of irrigated land to 1000 acres grazing land for $500, in monthly payments of $10 each, with a town lot in Lakeview free is an opportunity never before offered. Warranty deeds are given and there is no requirements as to residence or improvement.

"Purchasers of contracts may form clubs of 20 or more and elect a representative to look after their interests, whose expenses are paid by the company so that buyers may have selected for them the kind of a farm they want.
