Who Gets the Drink Bill Money? Prohibition orators allege that the American people spend more than 11,000,000,000 every year for drinks.

Who gets this money first? The liquor merchants, and brewers and the distillers.
Who gets it next? The farmers got last year for oats, barley, rye and other warm products used by the brewers.....	$127,000,000
The brewers and distillers spent last year for machinery, cold storage pipes, boilers, etc.....	90,000,000
The coopers and manufacturers of similar lines got.....	60,000,000
There was paid in wages last year by the liquor merchants.....	160,000,000
The brewers and distillers paid in wages to their employes in their manufacturing plants.....	38,000,000
The United States government got as liquor taxes last year.....	216,000,000
The different cities and counties of the United States got as license fees.....	95,000,000
Total.....	$786,000,000

This leaves only a little over $200,000,000 to be divided among 200,000 brewers, distillers and wholesale and retail merchants in America, or a little more than $1000 a year apiece. Out of this they must pay their rent and clothe and educate their families. The drink bill of the United States is not wasted. Neither is the candy bill, nor the theater bill, nor the ostrich feather bill, nor any other bill. Note—All these figures are taken direct from the United States government census reports.

EAGLE VALLEY ROAD.

Large Construction Crew Goes on June 1.

The Eagle Valley Railroad company, backed by Cincinnati capital, will put on a large construction crew June 1, and the road will be built to Richland, 50 miles east of Baker City. Its ultimate destination is the Cornucopia mining district and the Iron Dyke mines in the Seven Devils country. Funds have been secured to build the first 50 miles, and it is said this insures the completion of the entire 80 miles of road as soon as the line is in operation to Richland.

The route of the line will be nearly due east from Baker City to the Powder river, and after crossing this stream it will run almost straight to Richland. From that point the road will touch at Pine and Eagle valleys and Carson, and continue north to the Cornucopia mines, and then run east to the vicinity of the Sake.

BOND BROS. Pendleton's Leading Clothiers

A Great Revenue Producer. Properly regulated, the liquor trade is one of the most effective tax-collecting agencies of our country. Prohibition may reply that this trade robs the family and burdens the land with helpless widows and orphans. But prohibition draws on its emotions for its facts and extends the misfortunes of the few to embrace the vast numbers of the sober and industrious and prosperous who consume the drinks in all countries. The hundreds of millions of dollars paid into the treasuries of our towns, cities, states and nation do not come and could not come from the drunkards and the tramps and the criminals. The unfortunate man with an inherited weakness of will power, or an inherited passion for stimulants, cannot be the successful man of business nor the prosperous wage-earner. A saloonkeeper who aids such a man in his speedy ruin has no place in our business—has no right to a license, and if granted one, soon follows his victims into bankruptcy.—Central Committee.
