Now that the league has been launched there is increased interest in the team and the crowd will be out tomorrow to see what the league is like and how the new men play. In the line-up tomorrow Cross of Aberdeen, will be in the box for Pendleton and if he is as good a player as the reputation "Bobby" Brown has given him there will be no disappointment over his pitching.

HOSPITAL PATIENTS FIGHT.

Convalescent Ward Scene of Battle Between "Langer" and Broken Leg.
Convalescent ward of the Good Samaritan hospital yesterday afternoon was the scene of a bitter battle between a patient with a broken leg and a man just recovering from a serious operation on his lungs, says the Evening Telegram. Like a Spartan, the patient with the disabled limb dropped his crutches and waddler on one foot to reach his opponent, who, seizing one of the discarded crutches, struck him three vicious blows on the body in an attempt to floor him. Falling in this, he drew a jackknife, and was about to wield it when an attendant separated the belligerents. C. O. Le Masters and Axel Anderson were the fighters, the former weak of lung and said to be the aggressor, while the latter is the patient who fought despite his broken leg.

After the affray Anderson filed two complaints against Le Masters, who was arrested at the hospital yesterday afternoon. This afternoon Le Masters was sentenced by Judge Cameron to pay a fine of $50 for drawing a dangerous weapon. Tomorrow he will be heard on a charge of threatening to kill. Discussion of the merits of ancestry was the cause of the fight between the patients. Le Masters claimed to be a "Yankee," and Anderson said to be a Swede like himself was more to one's credit. Epithets ensued, and in a trice both men were in a rage, and at Le Master's invitation Anderson dropped his crutches and limped toward him. W. H. Farrler a hospital attendant, arrived on the scene of the encounter just in time to avert bloodshed.

In the police court this morning the benches resembled the open air corner of the hospital itself. Several witnesses of the encounter, their heads bandaged or carrying canes or crutches, were on hand to testify for or against the accused patient. Judge Cameron, however, only called the participants in the fight and the attendant who separated them. The $50 fine imposed by the jurist on Le Masters disposes of the charge of drawing a dangerous weapon. When separated from Anderson, Le Masters is alleged to have said "I'll kill you yet!" This report is the basis for the complaint which charges Le Masters with threatening to kill.

ALTO R. R. BRIDGE A VERITABLE HOODOO

Eight victims within less than a year is the frightful record of the Alto railroad bridge on the O. R. & N. line between Bolles Junction and Starbuck, says the Walla Walla Union. The eighth man to fall from the dizzy heights of the trestle was James Plumb, who was found yesterday morning at 8 o'clock lying in a horrible state of mutilation, on the wood work at the base of the bridge where he landed after falling a distance of 50 feet. No one saw him fall, no one knew his name, nor could a letter or any means of identification be found upon his person to furnish any clue to the whereabouts of his friends and relatives. It was only after bringing him to the St. Mary's hospital that, 12 hours later, the few incoherent words were wrung from him by the attending physician that his name was James Plumb—that he had a brother, John Milton Plumb, in Chasbury, Vermont, and a sister living in Michigan.

Plumb is of medium height and rather slender, with red hair and sandy beard and mustache. One of his comrades who brought him in said that he was not known by any of the crew as he had been with them but a short time when he slipped on the timbers, wet with yesterday's showers, and fell headlong to the ground. At a late hour last night he remained unconscious and the hospital physician said that there were only slight hopes of his recovery.

While a group of men were watching by Plumb's bedside last night it was recalled that it was exactly one month ago when the last victim fell to his death from the same bridge. And besides eight in all have met their death there since last September. "I do not understand," said a resident of that section. "Everyone who works there has had luck of more or less serious nature. The other day a man went there to haul away some old timbers and in loading them upon his wagon he slipped and fell and broke his leg. The bridge has simply become a hoodoo."

The wise man profits by his mistakes; the fool forgets them.

Caught Large Muskrat.
H. J. Taylor captured a large muskrat at his home nine miles north of the city last evening and exhibited him in a cage in the city today. As there are no streams or irrigating ditches in that vicinity there is much speculation as to how this water animal came to be so far inland. The muskrat lives almost entirely in the water of irrigating ditches in this country and is scarcely ever found away from his wet home.

Fordie Taylor to Portland.
Fordie Taylor, the well known son of Henry J. Taylor, was taken to Portland last night for treatment by a specialist in that city. He was accompanied by Dr. F. W. Vincent, who will remain with him until the young man is located under the care of a competent specialist in the metropolis.
