 All roads that lead to God are good; What matters it, your faith or mine; Both center at the goal divine Of love's eternal Brotherhood. The kindly life in house or street; The life of prayer, and mystic rite; The student's search for truth and light; These paths at one great junction meet. Before the oldest book was writ, Full many a prehistoric soul, Arrived at this unchanging goal, Through changeless love, that led to it. What matters that one found his Christ In rising sun, or burning fire; If faith within him did not tire, His longing for the truth sufficed. —Ella Wheeler Wilcox. *****

THE O. R. & N. CAMPAIGN.

In pursuance of its highly commendable policy of advocating better farming methods in the inland empire, the O. R. & N. company has announced that it will conduct a 10-years' campaign for increased yields, diversified farming and rotation of crops in this section.

This means a campaign of education, publicity, demonstration and actual results. It means that the progressive officials of this company are simply going to force prosperity on the farming sections of eastern Oregon and Washington.

The O. R. & N. company is right in its assumption that eastern Oregon counties should produce double the amount of traffic and consequently double the amount of profits which they now produce. The company is right in saying that dozens of profitable crops will grow as well as wheat on the rich lands of Union, Baker, Umatilla and Morrow counties and the company seems determined to prove the assertion by actual demonstration.

The East Oregonian is delighted to see the railroad company engage in this work. It means millions of dollars in increased profits for the farmers and stockmen of this section. It means thousands of tons of new traffic originating in this territory and it means labor for idle men, investment for idle capital, work for idle streams and idle power now running to waste and general prosperity for everybody in the inland empire.

If this diversified farming plan is carried out it means that eastern Oregon will be the feeding ground of the northwest and will furnish meats, fruit, vegetables and other food stuffs for the entire Pacific coast, Alaska and the orient.

This is the greatest industrial and economic undertaking ever planned in the northwest and will be watched with interest by those who have the welfare of the country truly at heart.

WHAT A PAPER HAS TO SELL.

A newspaper sells its space to business interests for a profit, just as a farmer sells his wheat crop, a merchant his goods, a minister his services or a butcher his meats. Advertising space is a paper's stock in trade. That is the source of its income.

If a paper did not sell its advertising space it could not get out an issue and pay expenses, and at the same time what people say in their advertisements, which they have paid for, is not any part of the editorial policy of the paper.

Any man or business firm or society or organization may buy advertising space in a paper and say what ever is desired in that space, as long as it is decent and not prohibited by the United States postoffice regulations. At the same time the statements in the advertisements have nothing to do with the paper's opinion or policy.

Because the liquor interests have bought and paid for space in the East Oregonian is no evidence that they have any claim on the editorial policy of the paper. Because the anti-suffrage women have bought space in the East Oregonian is no sign that this paper has changed its belief on the equal suffrage question. Because socialists buy space in its columns is no sign that it is a socialist paper and because democrats or republicans buy and pay for advertising space is no sign that their advertisements will influence the editorial opinion of the paper.

So many people misunderstand the management of a newspaper. They think the paid advertisements are a part of the policy of the paper. They think that the stuff contained in the paid advertising matter is original with the paper, when such is not the case.

The East Oregonian pays out $300 every Saturday night to its employees and in addition pays out enormous sums during each month for paper, repairs and other necessities and in order to meet these expenses and pay its employees and keep its business going it sells its advertising space and receives pay from it.

That is what it has to sell and in this enlightened age everybody knows that the advertising matter is not a part of any paper's individual opinion or policy.

HERMISTON.

So much has been said and written about Hermiston, so many stories of the government irrigation project have been sent out and so many pictures have been printed that people are now really anxious to see Hermiston and the government irrigation project near there.

On Wednesday, May 27, when water will be turned from the big reservoir for the first time, the people of this county will have an opportunity to see Hermiston and the project at their best. The little town which has sprung up in the desert within three years, is now thriving and prosperous and has every appearance of a miniature city.

Crops are growing on many portions of the project and water is running everywhere through the canals and laterals. The big dam, the largest and costliest in the state, is now about complete and its mechanism is wonderful to behold. Over $1,000,000 has been expended there and it is a perfect irrigation system, offering homes for thousands when once it is placed under actual irrigation.

The property values in that section of the county will increase 10-fold in the next few years and the East Oregonian feels safe in predicting that within an incredibly short time the name of Hermiston will be heralded far and wide as the garden spot, vineyard and orchard of the northwest.

Join the excursion next Wednesday and see Hermiston and the government irrigation project.

LAST WEEK OF CAMPAIGN.

The last week of the campaign is now here and everything looks favorable for the republican party in Oregon. The signal will be sent out on June 1, that Oregon is still in the list of republican states, that she has confidence in the integrity of republican principles and is satisfied with the past history and achievement and future promise of the party.

The outlook for the election of H. M. Cake to the senate is especially bright, despite the vigorous campaign of Governor Chamberlain and his admiring friends.

The issues in the senatorial campaign are national and not local. A senator helps make the policy of the party, a governor does not. A senator is called upon to sustain and advance the principles of his party every day while a governor does not have that opportunity once a year, except in appointments which are the least and most insignificant of party achievements.

Governor Chamberlain stepped into the arena of Oregon politics at an opportune time, and being an opportunist and a smooth campaigner, he was carried to victory on the popular wave. But now times have changed. This is a national election. A senator is called upon to sustain the sacred principles of his party and help make party policies and as a democrat Geo. E. Chamberlain will not be sent to the senate by the republican state of Oregon.

H. M. Cake, the regular republican nominee for the senate, has made a clean, honest fight. He has received the vote of his party at the primaries and is entitled to the office by every means. His party cannot afford to vote against him. He is the party choice and if the republicans and organization of the party amount to anything every republican should vote for Mr. Cake.

If Oregon is to change into the democratic ranks, if republicans care nothing more for the principles and history of the party, why of course they will vote for a democrat for the senate. A dozen active democrats in the senate can maneuver to block any legislation while they could secure nothing.

The growth of the country is no more plainly shown than in the increase of the appropriations for postal extension and postoffice improvements. The present session of congress has appropriated over $1,000,000,000 or $100,000,000 more than the preceding congress. A large part of this increased expenditure is devoted to postoffice service and improvement and goes directly into the rural communities, towns and cities of the country where the people get specific results. This shows the internal growth, the development of the home needs of the country, the evolution of modern conveniences. The people cannot complain at appropriations for this service. The people are the direct beneficiaries.

THE TWO LOVERS.

The lover of her body said "She is more beautiful than night, But like the kisses of the dead Is my despair and my delight."

The lover of her soul replied, "She is more wonderful than death, But bitter as the aching tide Is all the speech of love she saith."

The lover of her body said, "To know one secret of her heart, For all the joy that I have had Is past the reach of all my art."

The lover of her soul replied, "The secrets of her heart are mine, Save how she lives, a riven bride, Between the dust and the divine."

The lover of her body swore, "Though she should hate me, wilt thou yield, Rather than yield one kiss of her I give my soul to burn in hell."

The lover of her soul cried out, "Rather than leave her to your greed, I would that I were walled about With death, and death were death indeed!"

The lover of her body wept And got no good of all his gain, Knowing that in her heart she kept The pennance of the other's pain.

The lover of her soul went mad, But when he did himself to death, Despite of all the woes he had, He smiles as one who vanquisheth. —Richard Hovey.

THE IDEALIST.

Think you that I am blind because I see Beauty and truth in souls where your keen eyes Discover only blemishes and lies? Nay, dear, not blind am I, but verily Aflame with the true vision. What to me Is the dark thunder cloud that terrifies The hearts of children, when the open skies The other side are lighted gloriously?

Today a friend betrayed me, O refined Last gift of pain! You know the words she said, You cannot know the mystery behind, You do not see her poor soul, passion-led— Blindfolded by the dark veil of her mind— That weeps and never may be comforted.

A JIM CROW TOWN.

West Virginia is to make an experiment in a Jim Crow city. This city has been laid out near Charleston, the capital of the state, and it is expected that within a year it will contain a population of several thousand.

No white person will be permitted to reside within the limits or to own property therein. In the midst of this little Africa is situated the state colored high school.

Educational facilities will be ample and there will be electric lights, sewers and a park. The city will be governed of course, by the negro inhabitants, and the whole state will watch with interest the experiment as testing the capacity of the negro for self-government. — Augusta, Ga., Chronicle.

Familiar. "I've seen you haul away many a load of ashes," said a resident of Mobile, Ala., to an old dorky as he was preparing to depart with the customary load. "I've never had the least idea of your name. What is it?" "George Washington," was the answer.

"George Washington, eh? It seems to me I've heard that name before." "Reckon you has, mah, 'cause I's been haulin' 'way ashes from 'yo' house fo' more'n ten years."

Of the 232 labor organizations formed last year in Canada, 51 were formed by railway employes, 43 by metal workers and 41 in the building trades. Ninety-four organizations were formed in Ontario, 51 in Quebec, 23 in Alberta and 23 in British Columbia. The year was a very prosperous one for the Dominion labor organizations.

BLOOD POISON HUMILIATING-VILE-DESTRUCTIVE

The first symptom of Contagious Blood Poison is usually a little sore or ulcer, which is quickly followed by a red rash on the skin, swollen glands in the groin, falling hair, ulcerated mouth and throat, and often copper colored spots on different parts of the body. As the blood becomes more fully contaminated with the poison, pustular eruptions and sores break out on the flesh, and in extreme cases the nerves and bones are attacked and the finger nails drop off. Then the sufferers find themselves diseased from head to foot with this humiliating, vile and destructive poison. No other disease is so highly contagious; many an innocent person has been inoculated by handling the clothing or using the toilet articles of an infected person. There is but one certain, reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison, and that is S. S. S. It attacks the disease in the right way by going down into the circulation, and neutralizing and forcing out every particle of the poison. It makes the blood pure and rich, tones up the system, and completely and permanently cures this disease. S. S. S. has cured thousands of cases of Contagious Blood Poison. If you are suffering with this debasing and destructive disease begin the use of S. S. S. and get the poison out of your blood before it permanently wrecks your health. We have a home treatment book on the disease which we will send free to all who wish it, and in addition our physicians will give without charge any medical advice needed. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

USES OF THE SAGEBRUSH.

In Nevada a factory is to be erected for extraction of potash from sage brush. In southern Idaho a plant is under construction that will transform sage brush into a valuable tonic.

A few years ago it was discovered that a good article of rubber could be manufactured from this natural product of the plains, and down in Oregon some years ago an agricultural college experimented with grafting fruit trees onto sagebrush roots.

About the time we learn its true value, it will have disappeared like the buffalo, and then it will take years of experimenting to learn how to raise it with cultivation.—Cambridge News.

BABY'S VOICE

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe! Angels smile at and commend the thoughts and aspirations of the mother bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear.

Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of childbirth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. By its aid thousands of women have passed this great crisis in perfect safety and without pain.
