PROHIBITION IN ATCHISON, KAN.

Richard F. Antle, Who Has Bought the Johnson Place, Tells of Conditions in Kansas City—Stagnation of Business Interests and Murder of Prosperity Followed Law's Enforcement.

Richard T. Antle of Atchison, Kan., has just purchased 109 acres of C. C. Johnson, adjoining the Kaiser orchard, formerly the Simon place, near Phoenix. About 40 acres is in orchard. The price paid was $18,000. "I hope the people of Jackson county have enough sense to vote against prohibition," said Mr. Antle. "I come from a prohibition state and know how it works. "We have had prohibition for years in Kansas. During all this time until a few months ago, when the attorney-general interfered, there were 20 saloons openly in Atchison. These saloons were orderly, closed at midnight and Sunday. There was but little drunkenness on the streets. These saloons paid annual fines of $600 apiece. In addition, there were four agencies of big eastern breweries, which also paid $600 a year fine apiece. This made a total revenue of $42,400 a year from saloons and largely paid the city's expenses. "There is a brewery at Atchison that, when the prohibition law was passed, was a small affair and practically bankrupt. Under prohibition it has grown to be one of the largest breweries in the country and has cleared $175,000 outside of improvements. "Even today it runs four delivery wagons in Atchison. "Since the attorney general closed the saloons in Atchison most of them, including the eastern brewery agencies, have moved across the river into East Atchison, on the Missouri side, and the city of Atchison is out over $20,000 a year revenue, for which an increased tax has had to be levied. "There are 14 drug stores in Atchison that sell booze by the drink, from 25 to 50 cent bottles and several blind pigs. These pay government license only. "The police court cases have increased 5 to 1 in the past few months and the number of drunks on the street show a still larger increase. More boys are arrested for drunkenness than ever in the city's history. "The 30 buildings occupied by the saloons are all vacant or have been rented at greatly reduced rentals. Rents have fallen all over the business section of Atchison and the construction of new buildings stopped. "Farmers who used to come to Atchison to buy supplies and spend their money now go to Kansas City, and Atchison merchants are out this trade. In brief, the enforcement of prohibition has killed prosperity and brought about stagnation in Atchison."—Central Committee.

Mr. E. Humphrey, who owns a large general store at Omega, O., and is president of the Adams County Telephone Co., as well as of the Home Telephone Co., of Pike county O., says of Dr. King's New Discovery: "It saved my life once.
