Women Will Swim.

Secretary Carey of the Y. M. C. A. said this morning that a plan had been evolved so that women of Walla Walla can be given the use of the swimming pool in the Y. M. C. A. during the warm summer months, says the Walla Walla Bulletin. Women wishing to take advantage of this can do so by applying for a "Short Term Membership," which can be secured for $3. The term covers the months of June, July and August.

Considering the fact that a number of ladies of this class have secured a membership to the Y. M. C. A. entitling them to the use of the gymnasium and swimming pool on Wednesday nights of each week for the entire year, by paying a fee of $7, the management has made the short term membership such that the dates will coincide with this special membership. Consequently every Wednesday night will be known as "ladies night" and on that night women will be given the use of the physical department of the institution.

Walked 90 Miles, Got No Job.

How would you like to walk 90 miles for a job and find at your destination that there was no work in sight? This was the stunt that S. W. Humphreys, a well known miner who has been making head quarters in this city the past winter, executed this week and the latter part of last week, says the Boise Capital News. He did even better than that for he walked part of the distance one way and all of the distance on the return. As a result of this strenuous exercise Humphreys is now quite stiff in the muscles of his legs but he says that this is only because he has not done any great amount of walking in the past winter. Had he undertaken the 90 mile hike when in condition and while working in the mines he would have thought little about it.

Wood River Project Increased.

The Big Wood River irrigation project has been taken over by J. G. White & Co., a company of world wide reputation, whose advent to Idaho marks a new era in irrigation enterprises, says the Boise Capital News. The project will be increased to 150,000 acres, the state land board having made application to the Interior department for the segregation of additional acreage to the extent of 50,000 acres upon the request of White & company and upon the report of the state engineer and engineers for White to the effect that sufficient water is available.

The project, which it is estimated will cost $3,200,000 or an increase of over $700,000 over the estimated cost by the Idaho Irrigation company from which White & company secured the project, will be completed within fourteen months. The immense dam from which the water supply will be secured will be located near the Cottonwood about 35 miles northwest of Shoshone and will be completed within 11 months after the resumption of work the latter part of June.

Coyote Sculp Coming In.

Sculp season at the court house has opened, and almost every day some energetic hunter brings in a coyote face for which he is allowed the bounty provided by law, says the Walla Walla Union. It is now necessary that the face of the animal be presented with the ears and sculp, otherwise no bounty is allowed.

CONCERNING ORIGIN OF MEMORIAL DAY

Although there are many versions of the origin of Memorial day, historians of the national capital agree that the year's observance makes the fortieth anniversary of its acceptance by the Grand Army of the Republic.

General John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, instituted general Memorial day observance in 1868. Credit for the idea has been assigned to a number of persons since the custom has become so firmly fixed in the national life.

It is said that during the spring of 1868 Adjutant General Chipman, of the Grand Army of the Republic, received a letter from a former federal soldier, then residing in Cincinnati. The writer stated that in Germany, his native country, it was the custom of the people to gather each spring and strew the graves of their dead with flowers.

General Chipman, this report has it, was so much pleased with the suggestion that he made out the draft of an order upon the subject and presented it to General Logan, then commander-in-chief of the Grand Army. The result was General Logan's famous Memorial day.

Credit for the suggestion has also been given James Redpath, a newspaper man of Kansas, Boston and New York. Soon after the close of the war Redpath was appointed by Generals Hatch and Saxton as superintendent of the schools of Charleston, S. C., devoting himself especially to organizing a system of education for colored youth.

While engaged in this work, it is related, Mr. Redpath began to talk with the little negro children about decorating the graves of their friends and defenders who fell in the gigantic conflict that resulted in their freedom.

One April day he was advancing this idea in a little church that was crowded with negro children. One of the colored girls suggested that they go immediately, gather armfuls of flowers and place them on the graves.

This set Mr. Redpath to thinking of what might be accomplished by a general move of such sort. In the end he instructed the children to tell their friends that on May day the graves of Union soldiers around Charleston would be decked with flowers.

Greater even than Mr. Redpath had hoped was the response. More than 10,000 persons, it is stated, gathered at the federal cemetery, and the graves were literally covered with spring flowers.

Still another statement of the origin of the custom has it that the burial of a young soldier in New York state suggested the idea. It was on a beautiful May day when the sorrowing relatives gathered about the open grave beneath the blossoming boughs of a fruit tree.

When the solemn committal rites were over and the last shovelful of earth had been cast on the mound, the wind swept with strong breath through the overhanging boughs, and a veritable snowfall of sweet, white blossoms descended upon the young hero's resting place.

Tradition has it that when, years later, this story was repeated to General Logan the idea of an official decoration day took shape in his mind. The late General Joseph Wheeler always insisted that General Logan's attention was attracted to such memorial tribute by a custom that had already been followed several years by the women of the south.

RUN OVER BY OX TEAM.

PROHIBITION HAS NOT HELPED CITY OF ALBANY

The Following Letter Has Been Received by the Hotel Association of Pendleton From a Prominent Hotel Man of Albany Showing That Prohibition Has Only Increased Taxation.

"I will say without prejudice that there is no man in our city who can positively point out the good effects prohibition has had on our town.

"There is no marked improvement caused by prohibition. We have lost the brewery here which distributed a large payroll each month, besides the contemplated enlargement of that brewery which would have increased the payroll. Now this beer money leaves this place and goes to Portland and other places. Beer and whiskey is drunk here as before prohibition. Taxation has nearly doubled which is to be expected in order to meet the city's demands. This statement is as near as I can get to general conditions."

RUSH WALLOWA BRANCH.

O. R. & N. Will Establish Camps and Begin Work at Once.

General Superintendent M. J. Buckley of the O. R. & N. was in La Grande in his private car yesterday. Mr. Buckley confirms in all details the plans for the immediate completion of the Wallowa extension of the Elgin branch, says the La Grande Star. The first essential thing will be the organization of the working forces. The firm of contractors, Ericson & Peterson, will complete the grading, and they will bring their men and working outfits over this way as soon as possible. Mr. Buckley thinks that it will take about two weeks to get the camps located and the work started in a systematic way. The railroad bridge gang will commence at once with the reconstruction of the false work for the big bridge across the Grand Ronde at the junction of the Wallowa river. This was put in last fall but it has washed away.

Another temporary bridge will be put in so the track laying can proceed. A part of the grade work in the Wallowa canyon is ready for the rails and the steel will be projected toward the Wallowa valley a rapid rate within a short time. In fact the money is available and the Wallowa extension will be completed as rapidly as possible.

Kodol completely digests all classes of food. It will get right at the trouble and do the very work itself for the stomach. It is pleasant to take. Sold by Tallman & Co.
