

AMONG THE EXCHANGES OF THE INLAND EMPIRE

Sheep Shearing Over.

The shearing of the 40,000 sheep on the upper Snake river is now practically completed, and within the next 10 days the sheepmen will begin moving their herds to the summer ranges on the high mountains and forest reserves, says the Lewiston Teller.

Reports from the shearing corrals show the clip to be heavy this season and quality of the wool good. The price, however, is not satisfactory to the growers.

In some sections woolmen have been inclined to dock heavily because of the excess of sand and dirt in the fleeces this year, but it is not believed the Snake river clip will be affected in this manner.

The inspection of the sheep in districts where the quarantine has not been raised is the lands of Dr. C. L. Henderson of Clarkston, and all of such sheep that will be taken out of the state or into the forest reserves will be inspected before the drive from the winter quarters begins.

Reports from the Salmon river section state that shearing is well advanced there and the number of sheep in that section will be materially increased during the coming year.

Grand Ronde Mine Yields Well.

Reports from the up-river country are to the effect that the new mill recently started on what is locally known as the Muir property, is running in fine shape and is handling about 30 tons of ore per day, says the La Grande Star.

Three six-horse teams are at work hauling the mill concentrates from the mines to North Powder for rail shipment to the smelter. It is also said that there are now 150 men at work in the Camp Carson district.

It seems almost incredible that there is so much activity in a mining way just over the hills from La Grande and in fact "right under La Grande's nose."

Of course all that hauling would come this way if there had been provided a passable wagon road a few miles down the river this way. The mining company last year constructed a wagon road of their own out from the upper Grand Ronde in North Powder. That is the reason that so little is known in this section about what is going on in the Camp Carson district.

No Scab in Central Oregon.

P. J. Walsh, stock inspector for Wasco county, and Dr. Mason, federal inspector, have been in Antelope and vicinity during the week. They have been making a tour of inspection of the various bands of sheep in the county, and stated that Wasco county is free from scab. This excellent condition was brought about by the earnest efforts of the inspector and the co-operation of the woolgrowers of the county. Mr. Walsh reports that all the sheepgrowing counties of eastern Oregon are free from all disease. —Antelope Herald.

Board Bill Is Due.

When the track meet was held here some two weeks ago the track teams stopped at the Hotel Sagamore and over some dispute concerning the rates they were to receive, they did not pay their bills, says the Baker City Herald. It seems that the teams were to receive special rates and some dispute arose and the boys were detained until just before train time, and not having time to discuss the matter further they took for the train, reaching the depot just in time to make the train. Now it would be a queer coincidence if all these boys on the track team from our neighboring towns should be compelled to come back to Baker and stand trial for not paying their board bills. However, such is not at all likely, for their word is good for anything they want when they are in Baker.

Find Man in Room.

To be awakened in the middle of the night by a man who had in some manner unknown to them gained entrance to their room at the Gerlinger hotel last night was, according to their statement, the harrowing experience of Miss Minnie Jarrett and Miss Gladys Pierce, two young women employed in the city, says The Dalles Chronicle. Today officers are searching for R. Craft, the man for whom an information was filed by District Attorney Menefee, charged with assault with criminal intent. Craft, it is alleged, was identified by a collar which he had left when he fled in haste last night after being apprehended. Miss Jarrett is 18 years old and Miss Pierce about 16.

"The Song of the Oregon Pine," a little book of original verse by Bert Huffman is now out and is on sale at the Frazier book store. Price 50 cents. Printed on fine paper and highly illustrated.

TRYING TO CHANGE NAME OF CUSTOMS DISTRICT

Congressman Ellis Has Little Hopes of Portland Bill Becoming Law.

Rush of business at the closing hours of the session is likely to interfere with the change of the name of the "Willamette" customs district to "Portland," according to Congressman Ellis, who writes to that effect to the Chamber of Commerce and Board of Trade, of this city, says the Telegram. The bill passed the senate all right, but he has little hopes of it becoming a law at this time.

The "Willamette" district has been given credit for the movement of exports and imports through this city for a number of years, although the value of its exports has really placed the city third in the list of exporting ports of the union. The documents issued in this connection periodically by the government mention "Willamette" when Portland should be given the credit, and as these documents circulate largely in foreign countries, the city of Portland, Ore., is comparatively little known, while the location of "Willamette" is only vaguely understood. The attempt to have the matter righted has been made several times, but failed, although there was little or no opposition manifested toward it. This time the Portland Board of Trade, through Secretary Muller, called the attention of the Oregon delegation to the matter, and although congressmen and senators went to work on behalf of the change immediately, the usual result seems imminent.

In regard to the transportation of the steamer being built for Alaska waters by the government in this city the Chamber of Commerce has been informed that a commercial vessel would probably call for it and carry it to Alaska in the "knocked down condition. The transport which is to take the regiment from San Francisco to Alaska will not call at Portland on her way up, owing to lack of time.

WILL IRRIGATE BY PUMP.

Big Reclamation Scheme Near Wallula.

To augment its facilities for furnishing water to a large body of arid land in the Wallula district, the Columbia Canal company has placed orders for a big 100-horsepower gasoline engine which will be installed a short distance above Wallula on the Columbia, says the Walla Walla Statesman.

The big engine will lift water from the Columbia to a height of about 60 feet where it will be conveyed to the adjacent lands by a big pipe line.

The power plant will take the place of a big reservoir which the company contemplated constructing at the intake of its gravity canal at Nine Mile bridge on the Walla Walla river. The idea of building a reservoir at that point to impound flood waters has been abandoned owing to the difficulty that would be encountered in obtaining the necessary land and the necessary water needed for irrigation during the extremely dry season will be pumped from the Columbia by the big gasoline engine.

The power plant on the Two Rivers project has been forced to a close down owing to a break in one of the main laterals. The break is being repaired and the pumping plant will probably be started up again today.

Washouts on the Northern Pacific.

Bad washouts on the main line of the Northern Pacific in the neighborhood of Livingston, Mont., have completely held up freight and passenger traffic for the last 26 hours, says the Spokane Chronicle. None of the transcontinental trains due yesterday afternoon and last night, have as yet arrived.

The telegraph wires are down and only meager reports have been received by local officials of the company. These reports indicate, however, that the damage will be repaired and traffic again resumed this evening. As far as can be learned no damage other than that to the tracks and roadbed has been sustained.

Open War College.

Newport, R. I., June 1.—With 25 officers, ranging in rank from lieutenants to rear admirals, in attendance, the annual session of the naval war college opened today. Rear Admiral John P. Merrell is presiding over the class for the last time, as he will retire in September.

The course, as usual, will comprise a series of lectures by officers of the army and navy, studies in international law, war games and committee work.

Yale Divinity Day.

New Haven, Conn., June 1.—With the Merck prize competition in sermonic elocution at Marquand chapel, the commencement program of the Yale Divinity school was begun today. A meeting of the alumni and a discussion followed. The anniversary address will be delivered this evening by the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson of New York. The graduating exercises will be held tomorrow.

Walla Walla, Wash., June 1.—Washington Odd Fellows opened here today the 30th session of the grand lodge of the order, with all of the 260 lodges of the state represented among the numerous delegates and visitors. The sessions of the grand bodies of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs will extend through four days and will be marked by many entertainment features.

Half the charm of people is lost under the pressure of work and the irritation of haste. We rarely know our best friends on their best side, our vision of their noblest selves is constantly obscured by the mists of pre-occupation and weariness.—Hamilton W. Mable.
