Big Profits in Clarkston Land.
The Snake River cannery began active operations today, working on the gooseberry crop, being the first to get in the field among the three new enterprises of like character in Lewiston-Clarkston valley, says a Clarkston item.
The cannery is paying four cents a pound for gooseberries, and as there is a splendid yield the growers are making good money on their crop and we expect to see more of this crop grown in the future because of its early yield, it being the first in the market.

Returns from other crops are now coming in. J. F. Lytle reports an income of $150 from a fourth acre of asparagus and good money from his early spring fries. He has hatched out 900 early spring chickens and will have 700 hens for winter laying.
PORTLAND NEEDS ROSES.
Salem People Will Ship Blossoms to the Metropolis.
This has been a backward spring and Portland is short of roses for her big rose show, says the Salem Statesman. Just at present Portland had rather have a hundred thousand roses than a hundred thousand dollars. And whoever helps out the big town in this crisis will not be forgotten. Owing to the fact that Salem did not get around to prepare a float for the parade it is felt here that the capital city should do something to help out the big town in the matter of relieving the rose famine.
The board of trade has taken the matter up and will make an effort to send a big shipment of roses to Portland every day during the festival, which lasts all the week. All patriotic citizens, the ladies especially, are urged to send a quantity of roses to the board of trade rooms or telephone the board so that a messenger may be sent after the flowers. There is nothing that the average citizen can do at this time that will help so much to boost the city in the eyes of Portland and her thousands of visitors.
Dropped Dead at Sight of Runaway.
Something of a tragedy occurred at Walsburg last Friday, says the Dayton Courier-Press. A big dray team standing at the city scales became frightened at the noise of Walter Woods' automobile and dashed down Main street with the heavy hitching weight flying to and fro. The horses turned on First street and ran to the home of the driver, Will Dickerson, breaking down the fence and dashing through the yard to the porch of the house before stopping. Mrs. Dickerson saw the flying team and fearing her husband had been killed or injured. Her aunt, Mrs. Ann Salling, started to the assistance of her niece and fell, dying instantly of heart failure, caused by the shock. Mrs. Salling had been in failing health for some time, with heart trouble. She made her home with her niece, Mrs.
Will Dickerson.
Odd Fellows at Walla Walla.
More than 1000 Odd Fellows had registered at headquarters this noon and there are still expected about 600 or 800 more, says the Walla Walla Statesman. Every train is bringing in the peculiar ones and two special trains were run yesterday to accommodate the members of the three-linked fraternity. In all there will be about 1600 or 1800 delegates in attendance, the largest convention ever held in Walla Walla.
Vancouver, Wash., is to have a street car system. The line will also be extended out into the country.

The Worship of Serpents.
The small town of Werda, in the kingdom of Dahomey, is celebrated for its "temple of serpents," a long building in which the priests keep upward of a thousand serpents of all sizes, which they feed with the birds and frogs brought to them as offerings by the natives.
These serpents, many of them of enormous size, may be seen hanging from the beams across the ceiling, with their heads pointing downward and in all sorts of strange contortions.
The priests make the small serpents go through various evolutions by lightly touching them with a rod, but they do not venture to touch the largest ones, some of which are large enough to in-fold a bullock in their coils.
It often happens that some of these enormous size, may be seen hanging
from the beams across the ceiling,
and in all sorts of strange contortions.

Artificial Limbs.
"A manufacturer or dealer in artificial limbs who wears a cork arm or leg himself is much better equipped for business than his competitors who are sourd," said a man who uses a cork leg. "In fact, it has become a sort of unwritten law among us to patronize such men when possible. Sentimental reasons may have something to do with the case, but I guess the chief reason is that we consider that if a man can make a limb for himself that fits like the paper on the wall he can make it for others. Manufacturers of artificial limbs know this, and frequently you will find an advertisement like this: 'The So-and-so artificial leg is built by a man who is wearing one and who knows from experience what you want for comfort.' This is a strong argument, for it's no easy thing to get an artificial limb that just fits. Persons who have trouble getting shoes that are just right are in great luck compared to us."—New York Sun.
An Admiral's Stories.
One of the English admirals has a choice collection of stories at the expense of paymen placed in office at the admiralty as a consequence of a turn of the political wheel. Of one lord of the admiralty he told a delighted house of commons how, receiving a report of disaster to a ship couched in technical phrase, he wrote a reply remonstrating with the officer for his use of bad language. Another civilian lord, looking over a chart and observing that one of his majesty's ships, homeward bound, passed within a space of two inches of the chart an island where cast-away sailors were sheltering, wanted to know why it could not call and relieve them. The admiral explained that the two inches on the chart meant a distance at sea of 4,000 miles.—London Strand Magazine.
Boone's Portrait in Oil.
There never was but one oil portrait of Daniel Boone painted from life, and that was by Chester Harding, a distinguished artist of Boston, who came to Missouri in June, 1820, and painted it in the residence of Flanders Calla-way, Boone's son-in-law, where Boone was then living, near the village of Marthasville, in Warren county. The Rev. James E. Welch, one of the oldest Baptist preachers in the state and father of Alkman Welch, attorney general of Missouri during Governor Gamble's administration, sat in Boone's bed behind Boone for him to lean against while Harding painted the picture, the pioneer being too feeble to sit alone.
Harding's portrait of Boone now hangs in the state capitol at Frankfort, Ky.—

The Great Northern ticket office at Libby, Mont., was broken into Sunday night and a quantity of tickets were taken. Nothing else was disturbed.

EVERY-THING GROWS

Have you visited the Furnish-Coe lands near Foster? If not come and see me, and if you are interested I will take you down and show them to you.
It looks fine down there these days.
Think of it. A thousand acres under water the first spring. The prices, too, are low and terms splendid. $125 an acre including water rights. Easy terms.

The Best Alarm Clock.
If you have use for an alarm clock to wake you up these spring mornings, then you should get a good one. A poor alarm clock is much worse than no clock at all. You cannot depend upon a cheap clock picked up probably in a place where the knowledge of clocks is unknown. When you buy a clock from us you know that if anything goes wrong we are ready
