BUFFALO BILL TELLS OF SITTING BULL

After remaining in Canada until his people were leaving him and returning to their reservations, having only a remnant of his immediate following and family left, Sitting Bull, the great Sioux leader, consented to return under conditions that would be favorable to his followers and assure him of immunity from personal punishment, says Buffalo Bill.

He was wise enough to know that his absence was wearing many from obedience to his sway, and martyrdom at a distance was not as effective in retention of popularity and power as would be persecution under the eyes of his people. He, therefore, rightfully chose to take his medicine on his native heath--where his every action would have the effect that the accomplished actor strives for with his audience; every agitator tries for with the masses; every demagogue essays when trying to sway the mob.

Exercising the cunning of an arch-schemer, allied to an undoubted racial pride and patriotism that the future historian, devoid of our generation's views of the Indian question, unprejudiced and unbiased, may be justified in recording as the action of a savage largely endowed with the courage of his convictions, of incorruptible loyalty to his people, a stickler for their treaty rights, a native politician who, if schooled a little more in diplomacy, and its concealment of designs, would class him as the Great Indian Statesman.

He had all the old treaties in his head in the Indian legendary manner; also in hieroglyphics, but in writing and printed type he had an extract from the treaty of 1868, by which the Sioux reservation of Dakota was set apart "for the absolute and undisturbed use and occupation of the Indians, and upon which no outsiders, but government employes, shall be allowed to pass, settle or reside." And the Big Horn country was set apart as a hunting ground. The old man had this well-worn parchment in a buckskin cover and treasured it as one would the articles or legacy to one's birthright.

Basing his case like a lawyer he would introduce it as a silent witness, justifying his actions, and with keen eyes he would watch it carefully, so it could not be tampered with and while, of course, he could not read, he had marks on this sacred totem that he was familiar with. His eagle eye would scan the face of the reader of it to see the effect, and on its return his face indicated strongly the triumph it gave him as a claimant to a clear title.

Sitting Bull had a very strong, determined face, a splendid head well set and a long-bodied, short-legged frame. I have seen artists in England frame his profile with the collar, necktie and hair of the statesman of Hawarden and produce a perfect profile of Gladstone; also do the same with hat and neckwear of Bismarck. It will give a general idea of the old man's description of conditions, results and the power to him of some mysterious man that was invincible, being in the dark--away east.

That the white man at this time had taken most of the land, had destroyed or driven away the game, and that the least he could do was to halt and leave Sioux people undisturbed, the white man representing the Great Father having in 1868 made the treaty to that effect.

Others had arranged with them to build an "iron road" with a "horse that ate wood, breathed fire and smoke" to draw wagons and emigrants quickly across their country (to Oregon, Washington and California) toward the setting sun. With pleasure they agreed.

When this road was built it was only as wide as his outstretched arms, but the "Man in the Dark" had taken away from them lands 20 miles in width for hundreds of miles.

"The Man in the Dark" is known to us as the "Corporations," and it was intensely interesting, as far back as 1885, to hear this old Indian score, from his point of view, the same combination for its encroachment as has aroused such a commotion in political, commercial and social circles among today's white leaders of public thought and protector "of the people's rights."

His arguments, as I see them now, covered every one of that unselfish advocate of commercial existence can advance, practically when the so-called "civilized man" has become as contented as were the primitive children of prairie land and forest--but lacking which his survival of the fittest seems to decree the fate of the Indian and control the prosperity of the white.

The Fire Horse caused prairie fires, his attendants increased until they came with shovel, spade and carpenter tools. They first erected tepees, got lonely and brought their squaws. Their friends soon came to join them, and soon wooden tepees (houses) were built and camps became villages and villages towns, until cities were filled with crowds of people. (Bismarck, Mandan, etc.) Then "the Man in the Dark" sold the land.

Then, when their crops failed and did not pay, he kicked the tenant out and resold the land. He took the money back in the dark towards the rising sun. If a poor man had no money he could not ride, when there was plenty of room; he had to walk, often to die by the roadside of hardship and starvation, of some Samaritan Indian did not feed him.

Indian Philosophy.

The "Man in the Dark" never came there when he and his chief made complaints. No one was responsible. They were told to send letters or speak by the lightning to the "Man in the Dark," but he never answered. When the government treaties were broken a similar discourteous lack of consideration occurred.

"My chief and me who signed were always here. The Great Father's head and (General Harney and others) were not. They never returned. New white chiefs took their places, and every four years new Great Fathers took power, and their men laughed at what their predecessors had done.

"When the Sioux left Minnesota and went beyond the Mississippi and Missouri the Great White fighting chiefs promised them they would never be disturbed.

"Now they send military and give me only a prairie chicken's flight four way (a quarter section), saying that is enough and all I need (160 acres of land) and the "Man in the Dark" was selling hundreds of acres of land that he did not want out here. While he was a powerful White Chief with plenty of land that once belonged to the Indians that lived towards the rising sun (the east) this "Man in the Dark."

KING EDWARD TO-MEET CLAR

VISIT NOT APPROVED BY ENGLISH PEOPLE.

Ruler of All the Russians Is Nephew of Briton's King But Latter's Subjects Do Not Believe in Countenancing Russian Cruelties -- Visit Arrangements May Be Part of Scheme to Float Loan in London.

London, June 4.--All preparations have been made for King Edward's projected visit to Russia, and it is likely that the sovereign will board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, to begin the trip tomorrow. The meeting between King Edward and his royal nephew, the Czar of all the Russias, will take place in the Baltic next week.

King Edward's efforts to strengthen the entente cordiale have, in the case of the projected visit to Emperor Nicholas, aroused a great deal of criticism. While the British people greeted President Fallieres with glad acclaim, and hailed the consummation of the rapprochement between England and France as a triumph for King Edward's statesmanship, there is no such desire among the masses of the people for the formation of a tie between England and Russia. Many men of liberal and progressive ideas openly disapprove of the king's meeting the czar.

The Russian government is not in good odor in England, and the continued imprisonment of Nicholas Tschaykovsky has created a strong sentiment here against the policy which, although little has been heard about it in the outer world for some months past, has been consistently brutal and oppressive. It is admitted that the czar cannot be held altogether responsible, but it is argued that he cannot escape a share of the odium, and it is held that it is manifestly improper for King Edward to put himself in such a position that people may say he countenances the brutalities of the Russian government. In reply to this King Edward's apologists plead that the meeting with the czar will have no political significance; they say Edward is simply going to visit his nephew.

The suggestion has been made by a newspaper which doesn't approve of the proposed meeting of the two sovereigns, that the king's visit has been engineered by the czar's agents with the sole object of securing popularity in England for a projected loan which "will fill the war chests of the Russian bureaucracy and help it in its struggle with the people."

No Humbug.

No humbug claims have to be made for Foley's Honey and Tar, the well known remedy for coughs, colds and lung troubles. The fact that more bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar are used than any other cough remedy, is the best testimonial of its great merit. Why then risk taking some unknown preparation when Foley's Honey and Tar costs you no more and is safe and sure. Pendleton Drug Co.

Willamette Jerseys for Boise.

The dairy is the feature of the farm that is being given special attention among Boise valley farmers and with a view to advancing this a shipment of first-class Jersey dairy cows has been made to Boise from Willamette valley, says the Boise Capital News.

The shipment of 28 of the bovine stock intended especially for the dairy interests of the farm has been received in this city and the animals are being distributed among the farmers near the city. The shipment was secured through the Commercial Creamery company and Elmer Davis and it is intended thereby to introduce the dairy animals upon the farms in the valley in order to increase the amount of dairy products that are turned out in this vicinity.

Consumptives Made Comfortable.

Foley's Honey and Tar has cured many cases of incipient consumption and even in the advanced stages affords comfort and relief. Refuse any but the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar. Pendleton Drug Co.

SPECULATION MUST CEASE.

There's a Sure Cure for Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and Catarrh, so Why Should People Speculate.

Remember, Hyomel will cure the above named disorders or Tallman & Co. will give you your money back. Go to them and ask for a Hyomel outfit, which consists of a bottle of Hyomel (a very liberal supply) and a pocket inhaler that will last a lifetime. The whole outfit only costs $1. and if at any time afterward you need another bottle of Hyomel to use with your inhaler, it will cost you 50 cents. Ask them about it. They will recommend it.

"I think your Hyomel is a grand medicine; it has done for me what doctors could not do, and I've tried everything. I had such a bad cough, and nothing I took did me any good. I tried your inhaler, and I never had anything help me so much or so quick. Wishing you long and prosperous lives I remain, your true friend, Saba Shelton, Metz, Ind."

A Delicious Custard.

The recipe for this delicate dessert has been handed down in my family for many generations: Into each individual custard cup put the yolk of one egg, add one heaping teaspoonful of sugar, two gratings of nutmeg and five tablespoonfuls of sweet milk. Incorporate thoroughly and set the cups in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven until firm. When cool, cover with a meringue, using the whites of the eggs for this purpose, and allow one tablespoonful of powdered sugar to the white of each egg. Through the very tiptop of each snowy mound drop a teaspoonful of orange marmalade--Delicieux.

Ins and Outs.

"What's that noise?" asked the visitor in the apartment house. "Probably some one in the dentist's apartments on the floor below getting a tooth out." "But this seemed to come from the floor above." "Ah, then it's probably the Popieys' baby getting a tooth in."--Philadelphia Press.

What They Said.

Maybe it didn't mean just what the casual listener it seemed to mean, but this is what the farmer was overheard to say to his wife as they looked over the market reports in the daily paper:

"Well, M'ria, hogs is up, an' that means we're with a good deal more today'n we was yisterday."--Chicago News.

The Wise Men.

"After all, it's the wise man who can change his opinion." "But the wisest men simply can't do it."

"Why not?" "Because they've been dead for years."--Catholic Standard and Times.

The total area of Africa is estimated at about 11,500,000 square miles, of which Great Britain owns 2,713,910 square miles.
