Attending Damrosch Concert. A number of Pendleton people will leave this evening on the 5 o'clock train for Walla Walla to attend the Damrosch concert at that place tonight. Among those going are Mrs. G. W. Coult, Mrs. Edgar F. Averill, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Marshall, Mrs. Lina H. Sturgis and son, Cressy, and Miss Edna Thompson. Mrs. Anna Selkirk Norton went over on the noon train today to hear an address by Damrosch at St. Paul's chapel at 4 o'clock this afternoon and to attend the concert tonight also.

A 33-day rainstorm has just ended in Montana. This shower of a month's duration is responsible for the floods which are now raging in every river in that state and which have completely tied up railroad traffic.

The Best Alarm Clock.

If you have use for an alarm clock to wake you up these spring mornings, then you should get a good one. A poor alarm clock is much worse than no clock at all. You cannot depend upon a cheap clock picked up probably in a place where the knowledge of clocks is unknown. When you buy a clock from us you know that if anything goes wrong we are ready to make good with the proper repairs.

All alarm clocks guaranteed and cost from $1.00 to $2.50.

Feminine Inconsistency. A clubwoman, writing in the Philadelphia Record, reveals a feminine inconsistency in the peculiar views held by some women about the use of their first names. She says: "A couple of years ago I had occasion to send a letter to a married woman, and in addressing her I wrote 'Mrs. Henry —.' Imagine my surprise when in reply I received an indignant letter from her, in which she said: 'I do not at all like to have my identity submerged in that of my husband. I do not see why I cannot be addressed by my own name. Because I am married is that any reason why I should lose my individuality? My name is Anna.' The next letter I wrote to the indignant wife you can be sure it bore the first name of the woman in question, but the climax came recently, when the husband died and my fastidious friend was left a widow. I wrote her on club business and, bearing in mind her first scolding, took particular pains to address her as 'Mrs. Anna —.' The answer to this from her makes me shiver to think about. 'Do you think I have so far forgotten my beloved Henry?' she said, 'as to be willing to abandon his name altogether? I wish you would address me as Mrs. Henry in the future, please. I may be an unfortunate widow, but I still bear my husband's name. I think.'"

The President's Salary. It is safe to say that very few of the people living in this country know how the president of the United States draws his salary of $50,000 a year. Of those few who may have given the matter a thought, a large majority do not know whether he receives his salary monthly, quarterly or semiannually. As a matter of fact, the salary due the president is taken to the White House by a trusted messenger from the office of the treasurer of the United States on the last day of each month and handed over to the official whose business it is to look after it. The president receives his salary in the shape of a check, the $50,000 being divided into eight checks of $4,166.67 each and four checks of $4,166.66 each. Thus one month out of every three the president receives 1 cent less on his check than he does the other two. Some such arrangement as this is necessary, as, of course, $50,000 is not exactly divisible by twelve.

How to Guess Any Number. Desire one of the company to think of any number she chooses, provided it be even. Tell her to triple it, halve the product, triple this half and then tell her how many times nine will go into this last number. Multiply this by two and it will produce the original number. Thus suppose 4 to be the number thought of. You triple it, making it 12; halve this product, leaving 6; again triple this, making 18, in which 9 will go twice. This twice multiplied by 2, gives you 4, the number thought of. Or, to give another example, suppose 6 to be the number. Triple 6, 18; halve this, 9; triple it again, 27. You ask how many times 9 will go into the result and, being told three times, multiply 3 by 2, and the answer is 6.

THE SCHEMHL.

He is the Poor Fellow Who Always Misses His Chance.

The schemhl is easier to understand than to define. Many years ago a gathering of the wits at the Maccabaeus endeavored to come to a decision as to the real definition of a schemhl. They could not agree as to the origin of the word, and they found it equally hard to define what exactly a schemhl is. The nearest shot, says the Jewish Chronicle of London, was that of Stuart M. Samuel, M. P., who said that he could tell a story that would illustrate exactly what was meant by the term. There was a poor man who could not find anything to do. Whatever he tried failed, and when he sought employment he could not obtain it. Day after day he sat (schemhl-like) on a bench in the public gardens waiting for some one to offer him work, but the offer never came. For a whole year he sat thus each day until at last he attracted the attention of a merchant, who said to himself: "I want some one at my warehouse, and I think I shall offer the job to that poor man who is always sitting so patiently and wistfully as though he is looking for employment. Tomorrow I shall speak to him." The morrow came, and the poor man started for his usual walk to his usual seat. As, however, he was leaving his house he said to his wife: "My dear, I have been out like this for a whole year, and nothing has ever come of it. Today I think I shall stay at home." And he did. And he missed the merchant. That is the schemhl.

A LIFE OF THE ROOFS.

Gardens Flourish on the Housetops of Florence, Italy.

There still exists in Italian cities a life of the roofs that is distinct and characteristic and of which the mere foreigner and tourist is entirely unaware. Particularly is this the case in Florence. Mount to the top floor of one of these grim, big palaces standing in some gloomy, sunless street, often approached by a stern, forbidding doorway and dark, steep stairs, and you will hold your breath with wonder at the surprise that awaits you, for here before your eyes stretches an unfamiliar city, a red and green city of wide expanse and varying altitudes, a city no less architecturally beautiful than the one you have left below and enlivened, too, most unexpectedly by verdure.

In the very heart of the city, on its topmost apex, there is no trace of grime. The air is pure and wholesome. Indeed, its breezes are charged with no small suggestion of sea and mountain breath. As for the smoke one would expect to find hanging above the roofs of a densely populated city, it is conspicuous by its absence, and only at the hour of meals does some faint blue column rise for the briefest space into the atmosphere.—Helen Zimmer's "A Florentine Roof Garden" in Century.

Grant the Hero.

When General Grant was seized with his fatal illness in the autumn of 1884 he appeared before the world in an entirely new character. From being viewed as the stern, uncompromising and conquering military commander, the revelation of his simple resignation in the face of great suffering claimed for him new fame as a hero in another sense. His last battle with the great conqueror destined him for grander laurels than were gained on any of his many triumphant fields. It was the purely human side of his nature that then appealed to the general sympathy of mankind. Thus his last and only surrender was his greatest victory. If it had been otherwise, history would have cheated itself of an example of Christian fortitude the like of which has been seldom recorded.—Dr. G. F. Shady in Century.

The largest number of miners to go to Alaska since the original Klondike rush are now pouring into that northern territory. All steamers are carrying the capacity limit on the number of passengers.

Cherries Ripen Fast.

The cool, wet weather has kept the cherries from ripening fast this week yet the growers have not been idle. Anderson & Bittell say they have sent out a ton and perhaps several tons went to the local canneries, says the Lewiston Teller.

G. W. Ferguson has several pickers and packers in his several orchards today and says that if the weather is favorable he will begin moving cherries in carload lots next week. He predicts that the greatest activity ever shown in the Clarkston orchards will begin next week in the harvesting of the cherry crop.

The people are appreciating more and more the presence of the canneries where they are enabled to place that part of their product that will not stand shipment and would otherwise be a dead loss.
