is no reason why Pendleton creamery should not be paying out from $2000 to $3000 per month for butter fat to farmers of Umatilla county.

Because an industry seems little is no sign that it does not pay big. Talk about Umatilla county having nothing to offer men with small means. There are scores of industries here for the small farmer. All we lack is the small farmer.

BETTER LISTEN TO THE PEOPLE.

The Pendleton Tribune says the people of Oregon have enacted a vacuum in the adoption of the initiative law requiring the legislature to indorse the people's choice for United States senator.

Inasmuch as this measure received a majority of about 45,000 votes, it is evident that all of the democrats and a great big, overwhelming majority of the republicans of Oregon want just such a vacuum and it is safe to say that but very few candidates for the legislature will dare to defy this vacuum-loving people hereafter.

The enactment of statement No. 1, or the popular election of senators into law may not be precisely in accordance with the views of the old statesmen who framed the constitution 125 years ago, but it is evidently in accordance with the views of 20th century republicans.

The country has outgrown other things beside the constitution. The spinning wheel, the canal boat, the ox team, the coonskin cap and flint-lock rifle have all been outgrown. Have the people made material progress to remain stationary, mentally? Does not the social, religious and political life of a nation make progress equally with the material life?

Will a constitution adopted back in the last half of the 18th century satisfy a virile nation which is now using so many modern conveniences and so many modern customs that it sets one's head in a whirl to think of it?

Because the constitution still declares that the old fog notions are proper will not hold back a progressive and liberty-loving people. The constitution has not been changed long before this, simply because it satisfies that little handful of leaders who profit by having laws by which they may dictate to the whole people.

Let us have more vacuums enacted by the sovereign people. Nothing could be more empty than some of the laws passed by the all-wise and boobie-soaked legislatures of Oregon during the past quarter of a century. Let us try a new kind of vacuum.

MONEY FOR UMATILLA COUNTY.

When the department of agriculture began sending federal stock inspectors into eastern Oregon many stockmen complained that this was an interference with their business. They maintained that compulsory dipping would break them up.

But the government persisted. Slowly the bureau of animal industry "invaded" the sheep ranges and slowly the seab began to disappear where for 30 years before the ranges had never been entirely free from it. Then the sheepmen saw that they were making money by having clean sheep and now they "swear by" the federal stock inspectors and their work.

And so with every other reform. Farmers now scorn the efforts of the railroad company to "show" them how to farm.

But when these same farmers learn that the railroad company is trying to put money into their pockets, they will change their attitude toward the demonstration trains. They will run after scientific information where they now run away from it. Reforms come slowly and you simply have to catch many people and force it down their throat.

Let us hurry the bids on federal building sites to the treasury department early and be one of the first to be accepted so work can begin soon on this $70,000 building. These buildings are erected in turn as the sites are accepted so the speed which Pendleton shows will have much to do with the beginning of work on the building. There are a number of good sites in the city and prices should be forwarded to the treasury department.

It is a compliment to Umatilla county to have it said that she is one of the few counties of the state which rolled up a majority for the state university appropriation. Umatilla county loves her schools and loving her own schools she loves education at large. It is to be hoped that her vote is never found on the side of the enemy of the school.

PLEASED WITH PROHIBITION.

The local vote on prohibition was a surprise to many as Monument has had a reputation of being a morally advanced town, and the vote was a close vote on the issue, says the Monument Enterprise.

Four years ago it was voted dry by a small margin, but the vote was declared illegal on technicalities.

However, it is gratifying to know that the county as a whole has favored prohibition; although the temperance majority is small it still shows the trend of public opinion.

We doubt not that there were some men voting for the saloon who did so because they believed it to be for the best interest of the country. This class of men we can look for to assist in making the law of the majority effective and successful.

Sell Booze Election Day.

Two arrests were made Monday for the illegal use of liquor on election day. The offense took place at Redmond and when the Law and Order league heard of it immediately took steps to prosecute. A complaint was sworn to before Justice Jones by John Tuck of Redmond. Warrants were issued at once for the arrest of B. Puett of Prineville and Z. T. McClay of Redmond. These men had a hearing before Justice Jones on Tuesday. Puett plead guilty and was fined $50. McClay entered a plea of not guilty. Upon investigation of the case by Judge Bell and Sheriff Elkins further evidence was found and each of the defendants was bound over to appear before the full term of the circuit court. Bail was fixed at $200 each, which was furnished. The penalty for the offense is a fine ranging from $25 to $200 and a jail sentence from five to 30 days—Crook County Journal.

Literature to Accompany Fruit.

On recommendation of H. B. Scudder the publicity committee of the Yakima Commercial club will execute a most unique idea of advertising the Yakima valley this summer, says the Yakima Republic. Printed slips telling of the merits of the Yakima valley are to be furnished every fruit grower and commission merchant in the valley.

These slips will be placed in every box of apples, peaches and every other kind of fruit shipped from the Yakima valley. Just a few terse sentences will be printed on the slips, but the system will furnish a wider means of publicity work than any other which has so far been followed. Yakima fruit is shipped to nearly every part of the globe and when consumers receive the fruit this year they will also receive a slip telling all about the country in which it is grown.

Horse Falls on Him.
 Bushey, a ranch hand at the Porly place met with a peculiar accident on Monday, says the Crook County Journal. Bushey was saddling a horse and had put the saddle on but had left the bridle on the ground back of the animal. While he was stooping down to pick it up the horse reared backward and fell upon the old man, breaking both bones of the right leg below the knee and crushing the ankle of the other foot. Bushey is in a serious condition. When picked up after the accident the bones of the right leg were found protruding through the flesh, making what the doctors call a compound fracture. Dr. Belknap, who is attending Bushey, says that the chances for recovery are against his patient.

An Alarming Condition.
 A Portland physician has discovered that high collars worn by women produce cancer of the throat. We might also add that low-necked dresses produce pneumonia, corsets produce heart disease and shortness of breath, long skirts gather up germs of all infectious diseases, thin soles produce consumption and tight shoes cause the toes to grow together and looking at bright millinery causes sore eyes. Women should be careful about these things.—Skamania County Pioneer.

Monday about noon a cloudburst occurred in the Moxie valley near North Yakima, and the farms for a considerable distance were flooded. Considerable damage was done.

BLOOD POISON
TREACHEROUS-DANGEROUS

Contagious Blood Poison is the most treacherous of all diseases. It has its victims in its power almost before they realize its presence; because its first symptom, which is usually a little sore or pimple, is so insignificant that it does not cause alarm, or even excite suspicion. But notwithstanding the outward symptoms are not manifested in the beginning, this insidious poison is at work on the blood, and in a short time the patients find themselves diseased from head to foot.

The mouth and throat ulcerate, the hair begins to come out, a rash breaks out on the body, copper-colored spots, and even sores and ulcers appear on the flesh. Unless the poison is driven from the blood it affects the bones, and literally eats out the life of the sufferer.

There is scarcely any limit to the evil powers of Contagious Blood Poison. It is often transmitted to others by a friendly handshake or from the use of the toilet articles of an infected person. And if the virus is allowed to remain in the circulation, its blighting influence will be handed down to offspring to ruin their innocent lives.

Contagious Blood Poison is too dangerous to trifle with. No time should be lost in ridding the blood of this insidious poison; and in no disease is it more important that the proper remedy be used. Medicines which merely check the symptoms for a time and leave the real cause smoldering in the system, have brought misery and despair to thousands.

Faithfully the sufferers took such treatment, and when all outward signs had disappeared left off its use, only to find that the virus had been shut up in the blood, awaiting a favorable opportunity to break out again.

S. S. S. goes down into the circulation, and removes every particle of the poison from the blood, makes this vital fluid pure and healthy, and does not leave the slightest trace of the poison for future outbreaks.

S. S. S. is made entirely of roots and herbs of the forests and fields. It does not contain the least particle of mineral in any form to injure the delicate parts of the system, impair the digestion or corrode and irritate the membranous tissue or lining of the stomach and bowels.

S.S.S.
 PURELY VEGETABLE

If you are suffering with Contagious Blood Poison, S. S. S. will cure you, because it will purify your blood, and destroy every vestige of the taint. It will act as the finest of tonics to build up and strengthen your system, assist it in overcoming the effects of the disease, and insure a speedy restoration to perfect health.

We have a Home Treatment book, describing the different stages and symptoms of Contagious Blood Poison, and containing many suggestions that will be helpful to you in curing yourself with S. S. S. We will send this book and any medical advice desired to all who write; no charge for either. S. S. S. is for sale at all drug stores.

NET PROFITS

WHEN you advertise you expect to get something out of it—more than you put in it; if you don't, it's a losing game—and losing money is poor policy.

But—it's not how much an ad costs—it's how much profit it brings you.

Net profit---that's the main thing.

ADVERTISING is not a magic art. All it is, is putting into print effective selling arguments a good salesman would use orally. Write those arguments in an attractive style—bring out the merits of a proposition so that the other fellow feels an instinctive desire to possess it—tell him why he should buy it and then finally satisfy him that the price is right.

To get the best results, cater to the largest number you can reach among those who make good wages and live well—people who can afford to buy what you have to sell.

The East Oregonian's readers are composed of that class who willingly pay 65 cents a month for it in preference to buying the cheaper papers. Net result—they are people who can afford to buy what you have to sell.

They are not penurious.
 They are not paupers.

PROPERTY "RIGHTS."

A loud complaint is set up by the liquor dealers, that the prohibitionists have voted their "roofs from over their heads," that their property has been confiscated and that the "right" to hold property has been placed in jeopardy.

Listen. Before the war the editor of the East Oregonian's grandfather was worth $150,000 in "property," but that "property" consisted in negro slaves. The war simply swept away everything he owned except his land. Because his money was invested in a precarious "property," a "property" which society said could not exist, for society's good, he was left without a scratch of a pen to show that he ever owned any "property."

So with the liquor business. As slavery was wrong, so is the liquor business wrong and as slavery was swept away by society so will the liquor traffic and every cent invested in it be swept away.

It has no economic value. It produces nothing. Society will not tolerate it longer.

So there is no confiscation, no interference with boasted "rights." It is simply a settlement of the great ethical question of right and wrong and as in every contest of this kind, wrong is vanquished and right is supreme.

If men are engaged in a business upon which the better judgment of society places the ban, they must suffer the consequences. Society must protect itself and every good citizen is equally responsible to see that proper protection is afforded.

LITTLE INDUSTRIES PAY.

It is an industrial shame, if such a thing can exist, to force a creamery in Pendleton to ship in cream from Wallawa county, 150 miles distant to supply the local demand for sweet cream and butter.

With all the rich pasture and alfalfa lands of Umatilla county it seems that enough people could be induced to milk cows at a good profit, to supply a local creamery. But this has not been done as yet.

Figures from one milk ranch of the dry foothill district of Union county for the past year, have just been given out and these figures prove that dozens of small farmers could build up handsome industries in Umatilla county by the same methods.

A young man named Coch living east of La Grande a few miles kept a record of his cream production during the past year and it shows that during that period he has had an income of $1236 from 29 cows, or $5.15 per month from each cow for the entire year.

He has conducted his farm besides, has paid but little attention to his dairying, and it cost but little more to keep the cows while milking them than it would have cost had he allowed them to run idle on the range.

There are dozens of places within a few miles of Pendleton creamery where small farmers could engage in this business and make handsome profits. Five dollars per month the year around from a common grade of cow is a remarkable record, but there is no reason why Pendleton creamery should not be paying out from $2000 to $3000 per month for butter fat to farmers of Umatilla county.

Because an industry seems little is no sign that it does not pay big. Talk about Umatilla county having nothing to offer men with small means. There are scores of industries here for the small farmer. All we lack is the small farmer.
