can go into effect, when objected to will be omitted.

It is a good guess that labor will be defeated in its demands, and that the coast delegates will be with the victors when the fight is over.

Burke has announced he would carry the fight for the resolution decreasing the southern representation to the floor of the convention. He said a minority report will be made favoring the resolution.

The rules committee has decided to increase the representation of New Mexico, Arizona and Hawaii from two to six delegates each.

Labor Plank Blocks Procedure. As expected, a hitch over the anti-injunction plank blocked the procedure of the convention this afternoon.

After a stormy session the sub-committee on resolutions took a recess until 3 o'clock. The members said the entire session would be taken up with the anti-injunction matter. It is practically certain that the sub-committee will not be ready to report to the regular committee before 4 o'clock.

When Lodge mentioned the name of Roosevelt this afternoon there was great cheering and when he called him the "much abused, but the most popular president," there was a great ovation.

The delegates from Nevada and others leaped to their feet and yelled at the top of their voices. Enthusiasm swept over the whole convention. It was noted, however, that the Ohio delegates did not take part in the demonstrations.

Senator Bourne of Oregon, was among the leaders of the ovation.

Mrs. Alice Longworth covered her face with her hands in honor of her father and seemed unable to control her emotions.

N. H. Fairbanks of Springfield, O., brother of the vice president, stood on his chair in the special balcony and led the cheering in that vicinity.

When Charles P. Taft, brother of Secretary Taft, was asked what was the significance of the demonstration, he replied: "Nothing in it, nothing at all; just the working off of a little steam."

The wild cheering, yelling and waving of handkerchiefs and hats continued for half an hour.

Lodge ordered the band to play "Garry Owen" and the crowd knew it was the president's favorite tune, went into still wilder demonstrations and the noise increased.

The crowd began yelling: "Four years more, four, four, four years more."

Lodge smiled. Then some one pointed out the president's daughter, and the crowd turned toward her, but Alice took the greatest care not to do anything that would tend to support the demonstration. She smiled, then hid her face again in her hands. It was evident that she was in an embarrassing position.

A huge Teddy bear was raised high in the air from the newspaper section. This increased the cheering, which seemed before to have reached the limit of human vocal possibilities.

Lodge pounded the desk with his gavel, but the sound was not heard 20 feet away. He waved his hands in an effort to restore order, and pounded more. The crowd seemed lost to control, and the cheering continued.

During the ovation flags waved and came pounded on the floor. Old and young men leaped up and down the aisles. An Oklahoma delegate took off his coat and hat, waved it wildly, yelling like an Indian.

Congressman Longworth's face flushed, and he bit his finger nails. The band played a "Hot Tite in the Old Town Tonight," but this failed to stop the demonstration.

Senator Depew lost his usual composure, stood up in his chair and waved his handkerchief.

A fakir caused a commotion by taking advantage of the disorder to rush down the aisle offering pictures of the president.

When the ovation was dying out, the Texas delegation yelled: "Roosevelt, Roosevelt."

RAISING $50,000 FOR BUILDING

COLUMBIA COLLEGE TO MAKE IMPROVEMENTS

Financial Agent Says One-Fifth of Needed Amount Is Already Secured—$40,000 Yet to Be Raised—Progress Demands More Room and Added Equipment—Milton Becoming a School Town.

Columbia college, the M. E., south college of Milton, is finding but little difficulty in raising a $50,000 fund for new buildings and equipment, $10,000 of that amount having been subscribed already.

Rev. H. S. Shangle, pastor of the M. E. south church at Milton, was in the city last evening on his way from the Willamette valley where he has been in the interest of the college and is enthusiastic over the support which he received in many of the valley counties.

The college has advanced during the past two or three years until it is absolutely necessary to enlarge its capacity and add new equipment and funds for this purpose are now being raised. Subscriptions have been made liberally in all parts of Umattilla and adjoining counties and also in western Oregon.

It is hoped to raise the entire $50,000 this season so the new buildings may be erected by the beginning of the winter term, at least. Milton is becoming an important school town and has made rapid forward strides during the past few years.

Pendleton Takes Three Straight from Baker City—All Good and Each Better Than the One Before—Taliaferro Scintillated Yesterday—Cuts Off Two Sure Runs and Brings in the Winner—Visitors' Lead Overcome and Victory Won by Hard Work and Sensational Playing.

Standing of the Clubs.	Played	Won	Lost	P. C.
La Grande	16	13	3	.812
Pendleton	16	8	8	.500
Walla Walla	16	7	9	.438
Baker City	16	4	12	.250

Good, better, best! Sunday's game was good, Monday's was better, while yesterday's eleven inning contest will go down in history as one of the most sensational ever pulled off on a local diamond.

There have been games played here in which the number of errors registered was fewer, but taking into consideration the wind, dust and poor condition of the field, these are excusable and from every standpoint the game yesterday was a success.

Baker Had Good Lead.

The most critical fan could not object to the manner in which the locals dug in and gradually overcome the lead of three runs which Baker had seen fit to negotiate for in the first four innings and then pull out a victory in the last half of the eleventh after a bit of sensational playing as one would expect to see pulled off by any of the big national or American leagues.

Taliaferro, the lengthy pitcher, who showed them over for Pendleton, was the particular bright and shining star of the day. The visitors connected with his benders for five bingles, which aided by errors on the part of his support, made three scores possible early in the contest, but there was nothing to it after the fourth.

His real stellar work began, however in the first half of the eleventh, when he pulled himself out of one of the tightest holes that any pitcher was ever squeezed into. Baker had one man down, a man on third and one on second. At this critical stage of proceedings when it looked as if a hit would mean victory, the Baker batter met the ball square on the nose and started a line drive right over the pitcher's head for center field, and so hot that it sizzled as it cut through the air.

"Tally" a Hero.

By all the rules, regulations and established precedents, it was good for anything from a two bagger to a home run. But before the fans hardly had time to get sick, Taliaferro showed that Teddy Roosevelt or Bob La Follette are not the only people on earth who can break established precedents for he reached up his mit and stabbed it, quickly recovering from his surprise he whirled and sent it down to third in time to catch the runner who had started to walk leisurely home for the winning run, and retired the side.

Sudden and awful grief on the part of a hundred crazy fans who were hugging the sidelines who by first base was suddenly turned into joy and they could have hugged Taliaferro in their relief.

But the game was not yet won. Pendleton came to bat with King on deck. Jerry nearly always manages to find the ball, but his results are invariably flies which are gobbed up by the fielders like so many hungry chameleons. Such was the result of his advent this time and he was soon on the bench.

McCool Makes Good.

McCool, who for the first few times after he had been introduced by Manager Lorimer did nothing better than fan the air about as fast as he came up, but who has been mauling the cover off the ball during the past two games, was the next man. He had already made two hits during the game and the long drive which he sent far out into the right center garden looked like another, but the right fielder succeeded in getting near enough to it to spoil a hit for the batter and register an error for himself, but not close enough to retire the runner and McCool was seated on first.

Here was where Taliaferro put the last jewel in his halo by sending out a hot one, which was a cross between a liner and a grounder and which went sizzling past the first baseman and left fielder clear out to the fence, allowing McCool to sprint around the remaining three intervening spaces for the victorious run.

Three Good Games.

For the last three games, all of which have gone to Pendleton, the two teams have been playing gilt-edge ball. Sunday's contest was won by a margin of two, while the other two were scratch victories and made only after the hardest kind of playing and with the fans calling frantically for the men to do their best.

Though Baker still occupies the cellar position, she is represented by a strong team and one that may yet make an interesting race for the top of the ladder. That Lorimer's players will be able to break even with Baker on the latter's home grounds this week, is the best that the most devoted fan can hope for after seeing the last three games.

Pendleton Is Second.

Pendleton is now perched securely in second place and if the winning streak can be continued and La Grande given a shove toward the basement, the chances for topping the list will soon be good.

"Happy" Boewer, who has been receiving the offerings of Taliaferro and Aubin since Sunday will not be with the team any longer and his loss will be seriously felt. The team will doubtless be somewhat strengthened, however, by the substitution of a new man for Van Houten's place at second and Manager Lorimer is keeping the wires hot for a man who will be able to take Boewer's place behind the bat and who will also be strong with the willow, the only department of the game in which Boewer was lame.

The following is the score by innings:

Houston, the new man, has been thoroughly tried in the left garden and at the infield. No ground for kicks against either position we have seen him in. He is one of our home-runners, too.—La Grande Chronicle.

Sheep to Montana.

Charles Downs, for his company, loaded out 30 cars of sheep Thursday night for the range near Soda Springs Idaho. Owing to the dry spring, range has nearly played out in this section and the sheep men are sending their flocks to the mountains as fast as possible.

The shearing is practically completed, the shearers finishing with the sheep at Whittier's ranch on Benson creek during the fore part of the week. The clip was pretty good, averaging about eight pounds to the head.—Huntington Herald.

Will Move to Huron.

George W. Jones, formerly O. R. & N. section foreman on the Walla Walla branch east of this city, but now in charge of the Echo section, will move to Huron July 1 to take charge of the section at that place.
