May Be Reached by Trolley Line—
Capitalists Looking Over the Field and Consider Project Feasible—
Would Start From Condon—Timber
Land Would Be Reached.

F. T. Hurlburt, a banker of Condon, was in Prineville Friday, and again on Monday, on his way to and from Cline Falls, where he has a large interest in the Cline Falls Power company. Mr. Hurlburt is also one of the incorporators of the company formed to project an electric line out of Condon into Central Oregon. He spoke freely of the company's intentions, and said that while the enterprise was not yet under way it was under consideration, and that a reconnaissance would shortly be made.

The project will involve the construction of approximately 100 miles of trolley from Condon down Pine creek to its confluence with the John Day river; thence, after crossing the river into Wasco county, up Pine hollow to Shaniko, thence north to tap the Agency plains wheat district, while a spur from O'Neil up Crooked river to Howard will look after Prineville's business, and is part of the general program.

The members comprising the company are wealthy and their credit is good for a whole lot more cash than they possess, so there is no reason why they should not be able to make good their opportunities if they decide to go ahead.

It may be stated that the timber lands south of Bend are being looked upon with covetous eyes by the company, which sees unlimited possibilities in tonnage for an electric line. The east will soon want it. The timber supply of the country will be exhausted within 25 years if the present rate of consumption is not materially reduced, and central Oregon yellow pine will be needed long before that time. In fact, the isolation is all that has saved it so far. Ten sawmills in that district could easily keep two electric lines busy. It is only a question of months, not years, until our timber lands will furnish commercial lumber to the east and the coast.

Besides the timber, the company regards the Agency plains as no inconsiderable factor in inducing the construction of a railroad. It is not too much to say that an average of a million bushels of wheat may be produced there every year and this means at least $75,000 annually to the transportation line which first enters the field. Then the irrigated district of the Deschutes Irrigation & Power company and others will be another factor when occupied by the frugal settlers. Also, it must not be forgotten that there is considerable yellow pine up Ochoco.

While plans are not yet fully matured, Mr. Hurlburt says his company intends to go ahead as far as it can with the work, or until Mr. Harriman holds it up, the latter having all the rights of way corralled. Mr. Hurlburt thinks there will be little or no difficulty about that, as an electric line can negotiate curves and gradients that would paralyze a steam road, and it would be easy to get entirely around Mr. Harriman because of this fact.

His company has splendid power at Cline Falls on the Deschutes, for with an 80-foot head in 150 yards there is enough power going to waste to operate at least 100 miles of line; and there is also a good power site at Steelhead falls, and another on the John Day at the point of crossing the mouth of Pine creek in Wheeler county.

The Dalles Cannery Opened.

On a visit to The Dalles fruit cannery yesterday it was seen that the strawberry crop is being taken care of there and the air was redolent with the delicious odor of that fruit, says The Dalles Chronicle.

About 30 girls, women, boys and men were busy in the different departments.

As soon as fruit comes in greater quantities more people will be employed, but those there now are busy as bees. Everything is nice and clean and those working have comfortable seats and tables at which to work. The cannery is a great thing for The Dalles and vicinity.

People Incensed.

The people of White Bluffs are incensed over the discharge of a man named Robinson, who was arrested a few days ago on the charge of attempting to assault a little girl. Threats of lynching have been freely made.

No Let Up On Trusts.

Washington, June 22.—According to Franklin Lane, chairman of the interstate commission, Roosevelt's elimination from the political field will not cause a cessation of the prosecution of the transportation companies for violations of the railroad rate law. "The commission has power to call the state's district attorneys throughout the country to secure indictments of the railroads for granting rebates," said Lane. "Indictments are now being brought and others will be framed when it is found the law is being violated."

SOCIALISM TRIUMPHS.

Many Candidates Being Elected in Germany.

Berlin, June 22.—Leaders of the German social democracy assert that in 12 districts in Berlin six candidates will surely be elected when the definitive issue takes place tomorrow and that there is a large probability of two or three more.

One socialist was elected in Hanover at the first ballot on June 3, and the second ballot may add one or two additional members to this representation. The elections are looked upon as a great triumph for the principles of Marx, since it is the first time in history that the socialists have gained representation in the Prussian assembly.

Their entrance into that stronghold of conservatism has created a sensation and may induce the government to grant the long demanded franchise reform. Women and children of the workmen's quarter are taking part in the general jubilation and the public demonstrations of joy at what is termed the speedy triumph of socialism.

The victories of the socialists are all the more remarkable because the franchise on which elections to the diet are conducted is based on a property qualification, which confers the bulk of power to the wealthy and disfranchises the masses. The government hitherto has resisted successfully all demands for reform. Chancellor von Buelow's attitude on this question and the resultant street demonstrations last January are recalled as the latest incidents in this perennial struggle.

FIXTURES FOR SALE CHEAP.

Prohibition Will Put Many Men Out of Business.

Traveling salesmen for liquor houses are being discharged and the market is flooded with second-hand fixtures for bars as a result of the prohibition elections in many Oregon counties, says the Portland Telegram.

The large territory which many salesmen made regularly in the past will seek elsewhere for employment. How many salesmen have been thrown out of work is not known, but one Portland house alone is said to have released seven.

There are said to be furnishings for 150 first class bars on the market, and at least 500 billiard and pool tables. Drummers are now flocking into Idaho and Washington offering bargains in fixtures and tables. In the Lewiston country the saloonmen have been offered expensive billiard tables at their own price and they have been offered the most elaborate of bar fixtures for less than the cost of manufacture. The market is literally glutted with saloon paraphernalia, because so many saloons have been put out of business.

In Pendleton the telephone company has also felt the effects of the prohibition wave. Saloons in that city have to go out of business the first of the month, and they have notified the telephone company to take out 40 instruments by that time.

Dead Body Found.
Clinging to a pile under Burrows' dock at Aberdeen, the body of James Conway, aged 85 years, was found Wednesday. The body was in a swimming attitude. In the dead man's pocket was found a purse containing one cent. As it is learned that Conway has been living on 10 or 15 cents a day, gained by odd jobs and that he was much downcast over his situation, the theory of suicide is held by the authorities.

If you see it in the East Oregonian, it's so.
