Expect Great Things of Yourself.
(Orison Sweet Marden in "Success Magazine.")
A soldier once took a message to Napoleon in such great haste that the horse he rode dropped dead before he delivered the paper. Napoleon dictated his answer, and, handing it to the messenger, ordered him to mount his own horse and deliver it with all possible speed.

The messenger looked at the magnificent animal, with its superb trappings, and said, "Nay, general, but this is too gorgeous, too magnificent for a common soldier."
Napoleon said, "Nothing is too good or too magnificent for a French soldier."
The world is full of people like this poor French soldier, who think what others have is too good for them; that it does not fit their humble condition; that they are not expected to have as good things as those who are "more favored." They do not realize how they weaken themselves by this mental attitude of self-depreciation or self-effacement. They do not claim enough, do not expect enough, do not demand enough of themselves.
You will never become a giant if you only make a pigmy's claim for yourself, if you only expect a pigmy's part. There is no law which will cause a pigmy's thinking to produce a giant. The statue follows the model.
Most people have been educated to think that they were not intended to have the best there is in the world; that the good and beautiful things of life were not intended for them; that these were reserved for those especially favored by fortune. They have grown up under this conviction of their inferiority, and, of course, they will be comparatively inferior until they claim superiority as their birthright. A vast number of men and women, who are really capable of doing great things, do small things, live mediocre lives, because they do not expect enough, do not demand enough of themselves. They do not know how to call out their best.

A GREAT CONTEST.

Roller and Gotch Wrestling Match in Seattle.

Gene Sullivan, who is to meet Kid Scaler at the Coeur d'Alene theater, says his brother, Dan Sullivan, who went with the American team to the last Olympic games, is now working out at Seattle with Frank Gotch, acting as the training partner for the champion, says the Spokane Chronicle.

"That is going to be the greatest wrestling match of the decade, when Gotch meets Roller," says Sullivan. "Gotch has more holds than any wrestler I have ever seen. He has holds that no one else knows and he has so many of them that the other fellow never knows what is coming. He is faster than ever.

"As for Roller, every one knows he must be good or he could not win from the men he has met in the last year. He is big and strong, knows the game, is fast and heady. It will be worth going a long distance to see and I am going over for it. The man who wins the match will be the undisputed world's champion."

Masonic Meeting Tonight.

A special meeting of the Masonic lodge will be held at the Masonic hall this evening.

MORE IRRIGATED TRACTS FOR KENNEWICK VALLEY

Surveyors Are Running Lines for Many Acres of Valuable Land Near Town.

For the purpose of irrigating several thousand acres of what is conceded to be the most valuable land in the state of Washington, Fechter & Rudkin, purchasers of the Northern Pacific Irrigating canal, are having surveys made on what is known as the Relief flats west of Kennewick, says the Reporter. For several days surveyors have been running lines and if their report is as satisfactory as is expected there is every reason to believe that the project will be completed.

With a lift of 150 feet it is believed that 4000 and 5000 acres of that excellent land can be put under water and made to produce such fruit as only the Kennewick valley can grow. The land is above the frost line and is remarkably productive, waiting only for the water to convert it into the richest soil in the northwest.

Although no official information can be obtained, as nearly as can be learned the scheme is to establish a large pumping station in the vicinity of Relief and take the water from the Northern Pacific canal to be distributed through ditches to be constructed on the flats above. While it will require a large amount of money to complete this enterprise it is an acknowledged fact that the results would more than amply justify the investment.

The work of surveying has been going on quietly as have other investigations since the purchase of the ditch by Fechter & Rudkin.

It is known that other capitalists have become interested and there is every evidence pointing toward some startling developments in the Kennewick valley in the near future.

"Those who are in any way familiar with conditions around Kennewick will realize what it will mean to have those Relief flats irrigated," said one of the largest real estate dealers in the valley. "There is no land like it in the Kennewick valley, the Wenatchee or Yakima valleys, or anywhere on the coast that I know of. If Fechter & Rudkin irrigate that land they will be improving the best tract of land I know of. It will mean more development in this section than there has been for some time and it is certainly to be hoped that they will succeed with the enterprise."

NEW PASTOR FOR PILOT ROCK.

Rev. W. E. Warrington of Princeton, N. J., has been selected as the pastor of the new Presbyterian church at Pilot Rock and he will also serve the Ukiah church as regular pastor.

R. & N. tomorrow from the east and after taking part in the Indian campmeeting at the old agency grove will go to Pilot Rock next Sunday to preach his first sermon and take charge of the work in his new field.

Prohibition Empties Jail.

The Pike county jail does not contain a single prisoner and has not had one for over a week. This may be said to be due to the enforcement of the law against the liquor traffic. If the wonderful improvement in the morals of this town and county continues for a few years at the rate it has gone in the past 10 days a jail will be one of the useless properties of the county—Petersburg, Ind., Press.

Lid on at Prosser.

All business men of Prosser, Wash., have been notified that hereafter they must keep their places of business closed on Sunday. The saloons have been closed Sunday for some time and the proprietors demanded that the law be enforced in other lines as well as theirs.

On What Their Fate Depended.

During the week certain members of the Scotch minister's flock had been paying overmuch attention to sampling the local whisky, and the minister took advantage of his position in the pulpit to administer gentle reproof. "An' I tell ye, one an' all, ye're on the way to perdition!" he cried. At that moment a fly settled on the Bible before him. He raised his fist. "Ye're gaein' tae hell!" he shouted. "An' ye'll all get there, just see sure as—see sure as I ding the life out o' this flea!" His fist crashed down as he uttered the words. Then he looked to see the result of his handiwork. "Missed!" he ejaculated. "Ah, weel, maybe there's a chance for some o' ye yet!"—London Belman.

The Wrestler's Pride.

In olden times a wrestler who had won a belt used to go to his village church on the following Sunday wearing the belt. On the Sunday following that he went to some neighboring church in his belt and claimed precedence over the other young fellows. Nearly all the champions were men great in girth and weight. Old Steadman, accounted by many the most powerful wrestler ever known, was twenty stone weight.—Manchester Guardian.

How the Dutch Eat.

A Dutch meal is always reminiscent of a game of cards, for the mother deals out all round the table, and when that first hand is played out she deals afresh, and so on until the dish is empty. There is no promiscuous serving, as with us, and the quick feeder (if such a person could exist in leisurely Holland) reaps no advantage. "If meals are to be likened to games of cards, our meals in Dutch eyes must look like games of 'grab.'"—London Queen.

Not Worth Stealing.

A certain dramatic author was seen by a friend to have a manuscript almost falling from his pocket. "If you were not so well known you would have had your pocket picked," said the friend.
