TWELVE NEW LAWS

MEASURES ENACTED BY PEOPLE IN FORCE

Governor Affixes His Signature and Laws Are Now on Books to Be Obeyed—Fish Bills Are Sticklers—Fight Is Sure to Result—Recall Is Now in Operation—District Attorney No Longer a Grand Jury.

People of the state may not realize it, but they have 12 new laws to obey since June 23, when the governor's proclamation put into force the constitutional amendments and initiative and referendum laws considered favorably by the people at the recent election of June 1.

Taking them in the order that they were promulgated by the secretary of state, it will be seen that the time for holding the general elections will now be held the first Monday in November, instead of the first Monday in June. Consequently the next general election will be held in November of 1910.

Under the provisions of the prisoners' feeding bill drafted and enacted by the legislature primarily for the benefit of Sheriff Stevens of Multnomah county, all sheriffs in Oregon are now the sole custodians of the prisoners in their jails. In Multnomah county also the sheriff is allowed 12 1-2 cents a meal for the food furnished to the prisoners.

By virtue of the same vote of the people the University of Oregon is made in its appropriation of $125,000 for 1907, and of the same amount for each year thereafter.

Fish Bill sticklers.
The most peculiar situation in the history has been caused by the passage of the two fish bills, one drafted by the lower river interests of the Columbia with the intention of putting the upper river fishermen out of business as nearly as possible, and the other drafted by the upper river men with the same intent towards the lower river men.

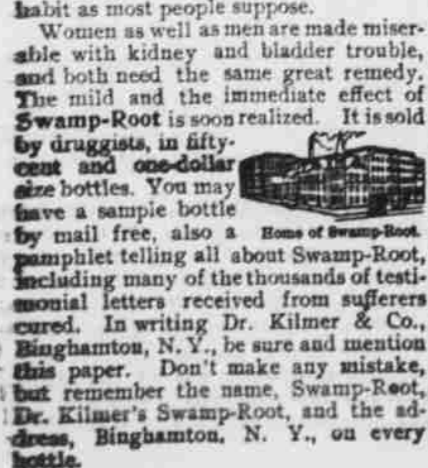

For the past 20 years the warring salmon interests of the Columbia river have been trying to get successive legislatures to regulate the salmon fishing of the river, each section striving to put the other out of business. The legislatures have been

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

held in check on such legislation, and for the most part have taken no action. This year, however, the two initiative bills have been passed by the people, thus effectually regulating the salmon fishing on the entire river between its mouth and The Dalles. If the laws are enforced, the salmon will have ample time in which to take a new lease on life.

A big fight is promised as a result of the passage of the two bills. It is expected that the upper river fishers will keep their eyes open for violations of their law regulating the fishing on the lower river. The lower river men will return the compliment by keeping close tab on the upper river men and will prosecute all violations of their law framed to regulate the upper river fisheries. Between the two it is expected that violations of the law along the Columbia.

Recall in Force.
It is now possible for all public officials who are not doing their duty under the law and custom to be recalled by the voters who are disgruntled over their failure to fulfill the oath taken. Public interest is on edge waiting to see which part of the state the recall will strike first.

The statute instructing the members of the legislature to vote for that United States senatorial candidate who receives the highest number of votes at the general election is also a law. It will not be binding upon the members of the legislature elected in June last, though it is perhaps a fact that the members of the house elected from Clackamas county are now in effect doubly bound.

Early in the last campaign practically all of the Clackamas county candidates for the legislature pledged themselves to abide by the provisions of the law should it be passed. Later they changed their pledges to a straight subscription to statement No. 1. With the passage of the law, however, it would appear that the Clackamas county men are under a double pledge.

The proportional representation amendment is now in effect, and yet is not effective. The amendment provides for proportional representation but leaves the legislature to wrestle with the manner of securing such representation.

New County Created.
It is contemplated by the amendment that the legislature by statute should provide a way of securing such representation. It will be up to the next legislature to enact a law putting into effect the constitutional amendment.

The corrupt practice act is now a law and from this time on it is illegal to offer cigars to prospective voters and political supporters. In fact under the act it is illegal to do anything except silently cast a ballot in the box, or at least nearly as close drawn a condition as that.

Grand juries have come back to the people of the state and the district attorney of any district is not empowered to sit as a grand jury from this time on. All indictments are now to be returned by juries and the filing of all informations on the complaint of the district attorney is a thing of the past.

Hood River county is now in good working order and is running under the administration of a set of officials appointed by the governor not long ago. Altogether the people of the state have quite a batch of new laws to observe.

WOMAN GETS DAMAGES.

Sues for $2500 and Is Awarded $767.
The trial of suit of Mrs. Lillie Brown against the city of North Yakima, for $2500 damages for personal injuries sustained through the alleged negligence of the city in permitting an obstruction to be placed on a sidewalk, was concluded last night and the jury this morning returned a sealed verdict, awarding the plaintiff $767 damages, says the Republic.

Mrs. Brown, while walking along South First street one night last fall, stumbled over a piece of an engine which was standing on the edge of the sidewalk outside of the Yakima iron works, and sustained injuries including the fracture of two ribs. The defense, which was conducted by Deputy City Attorney Lockhart, associated with Fred Parker and Thomas Grady, attorneys for the Yakima Iron works, was general in character and denied that any obstruction had been permitted on the sidewalk by the iron works people. This will be the issue if the matter comes to trial, between the city and the Yakima Iron works, as the latter will be required to make good the damages caused by negligence in placing the obstruction where it caused the accident to Mrs. Brown, contrary to the city ordinance. The claim may be settled without litigation.

Floyd Hatfield conducted the case for the plaintiff and stated that the verdict is satisfactory to Mrs. Brown.

TRUANCY AT ASTORIA.

Only Half of Astoria's Children Are in School.

There are only about 1300 pupils in the Astoria public schools now, although it is estimated that many more ought to be in attendance, says the Morning Astorian.

The question of the number of pupils in attendance raises an interesting problem which the board of education will probably have to contend with next year far more vigorously than ever before. The population of Astoria is just about 15,000; by the usual method of computing the number of children of school age there should be at least 3000 pupils between the ages of 4 and 20; or, conservatively, there should be approximately 2500 children over 6 years of age enrolled in the schools. Hence there were, apparently, hardly more than one-half in actual attendance one child in every two either running the streets or working somewhere.

M. J. BUCKLEY ABROAD.

Kansas City Star Comments on Work of Oregon Railroad Man.

The Kansas City Star says of the weed experiment to be made on the O. R. & N. lines by General Superintendent M. J. Buckley:

To control to some extent the dust which troubles travelers, M. J. Buckley, general superintendent of the Oregon Navigation railroad, purposes to allow weeds to grow along the tracks. It is estimated that the company spends $40,000 each year in cutting weeds and, incidentally, keeping soil worked so that weeds catch the dust. Wherever weeds have been allowed to grow dust has never troubled, and this fact has caused Mr. Buckley to try the experiment of allowing weeds and grass to cover the ties, especially the soil at the ends of the ties outside the rails.

Hundreds of people who suffer from backache, rheumatism, lame back, lumbago and similar ailments are not aware that these are merely symptoms of kidney trouble. Pinules for the kidneys act directly on the kidneys, bringing quick relief to backache and other symptoms of kidney and bladder derangements. 30 days' trial $1 and guaranteed or money back. ## SOME DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES---JOHN A. JOHNSON

St. Paul, Minn., June 30.—"By far the best medicine that ever came out of a drugstore."

This is the way Frederick B. Lynch, treasurer of the Minnesota state democratic committee, a few days ago described John Albert Johnson, governor of Minnesota. He referred to Johnson's early employment in a drugstore at St. Peter, Minn., and his subsequent achievements for the people of his state.

Johnson, who was put out in the eleventh hour to run against Bryan for the democratic nomination for the presidency, has been a clerk in a drug store, auditor for a lumber company, editor of a country newspaper, a state senator and finally, governor. He rose from the most abject and cruel poverty, being obliged to work so as to keep his mother from continuing the labor of taking in washing to support the family.

But through it all he preserved his optimism and his faith in human nature. Today his character is a series of delightful contrasts. He is conservative in his personal beliefs and tastes, disliking ostentation or display and deprecating anything like personal advertisement. Yet, so simple is he in his views, that when he was introduced to Speaker Cannon one day in Washington while the house was in session, he took it as a matter of course that he should sit on the speaker's desk with his back to all the members because there was no extra chair on the dais for him.

What He Has Done.

He is beloved by the people of Minnesota for having given them a 2-cent railroad passenger rate and for having delivered the farmers from the extortions of the twine trust. He is one of the greatest fighters ever known when he believes the public is being victimized, but he can cast from his mind all thoughts of the serious side of life when the empire's "play ball" rings up to the grandstand. And he knows no greater pleasure than ice skating.

He is distinctly a "baseball crank." Whenever the St. Paul team plays at home, the governor is on the job at the stand, cracking peanuts and "rooting" for the team like mad. If per chance, some matter of state keeps him from the game, his private secretary knows it is his business to get the score by telephone and communicate it to the governor as soon as the last "out" has been called.

In the winter he slips off from his office, his skates under his arm, and skis across the ice for a few hours. When he was at Old Point, Va., last spring, he got into the water without anyone being aware who he was. But he could not resist the temptation to turn a back somersault off the springboard into the waves, and this attracted so much attention that pretty soon his identity was generally known.

An Outdoor Man.

Johnson's love of baseball, skating and swimming explains his healthy mode of thought and his calm, bright outlook on life. What he cherishes in his heart as his idea of true greatness is shown by the following remark he once made to a friend:

"As a life work, I would rather be able to provide for the needs of a family, enjoy the fellowship of good friends and good books, and write one book that would be read a hundred years from now, than to be able to amass all the money in the world."

The governor has been a great student and reader all his life. When he was 12 years old and got a place in the drugstore in the little town of St. Peter, he pored over his books far into the night. He has kept up this habit ever since. The result is that, although he never went to school after that first employment, he possesses a style in writing and speaking that is clear, forceful and eloquent.

Now 47 years of age, he often looks back and recalls that he is distinctly a product of the country store and that he owes much of his success, much of his knowledge of human nature and all of his democracy to the discussions which went on, night after night, when the men of the village were grouped about the big stove in the drugshop.

Supported the Family.

One of the things that twice helped him, a democrat, to carry a normally republican state overwhelmingly for the governorship, was his early history. He started to work at $10 a month, and, as soon as he was getting $12 he could no longer let his mother work. From that time on, he supported his mother and the other children of the family. Later he turned down an offer to play with a professional baseball team at a tempting salary. Then he was offered the editorship of the St. Peter Herald.

Like "The Gentleman from Indiana" he built his future as he sat in the little office of the town's paper, chronicling the comings and goings, the births and deaths of his fellow men and women. And he made the editorial column of his paper a real power in that and adjoining counties. Also, like "The Gentleman from Indiana," he became a finished speaker and a deep thinker on political subjects.

Thus it came about that the people turned to him as deserving political honors.

He Enters Politics.

In 1898 he was elected state senator and again in 1900. In 1904 he was elected governor by a plurality of 8,000, while Roosevelt carried the state by 161,000. Two years later he was reelected by 88,000. Among his achievements as governor are cited the increased assessed valuation of the U. S. Steel corporation in Minnesota, from $32,000,000 to $100,000,000; a reduction of railway rates from 10 to 20 per cent; 2-cent passenger rate; a free state labor bureau, and a reformed system of taxation.

Johnson is not a "society light." Both he and Mrs. Johnson long ago made up their minds that there was nothing much to be gained by drinking afternoon tea in unlimited quantities. Although they have met all the social demands that go with the gubernatorial office, they have stopped there. Mrs. Johnson is as much of a reader and student as the governor, and, when anything of moment comes up, it is to his wife that he turns for decisive counsel.

No Lameleg for Him.

Naturally modest and retiring, Johnson continually objects to doing the things his friends want him to do in order to bring him into the limelight. When they suggest something of a theatrical nature, something that looks like pandering for publicity, Johnson immediately takes to his heels. His political managers tear their hair, argue with him and beg, but it is of no avail.

For instance, the subject of his making a speaking tour throughout the country to show himself to the people was brought up. His friends thought it would be an excellent plan. But right away the Johnson modesty stepped in, and the plan was doomed before it had been half outlined. "I've been elected governor of Minnesota. I'm employed to work for the people of Minnesota, and here I stay," he said. And all that argument and pleading could get out of him were two speeches, one in Virginia and one in Alabama, and the Alabama speech was made after the people of that state had refused to endorse him for the presidency.
