THIEF ALLEGES CONVERSION.

North Yakima Officers Inclined to be Skeptical.

The alleged "conversion" of Thomas McCarthy, petty larcenist, who recently was released from the county jail after serving a term for the theft of a tent from a second hand store, is of interest to the sheriff's office. It has been known for some time past that McCarthy was wanted by the Indiana authorities for breaking parole and a notice to that effect is in the sheriff's office. McCarthy's conversion and decision to return to Indiana will save some trouble and expense.

There is another matter, however, that might be adjusted with advantage before Mr. McCarthy puts his virtuous resolve into execution and goes back to the "fourteen" years in a cell, the facts concerning which are that he will probably not be required to serve more than a month, as he well knows.

Disclaimed Ownership.

When McCarthy was arrested for stealing the tent the officers found in his room several suitcases filled with a variety of dry goods, from gaudily colored Indian blankets, to drawing room curtains and ladies' dresses. The value of the stuff, all of which was new and doubtless represented considerable activity on the part of McCarthy along the line of his other exploits which have successively landed him in different jails, is about $150. McCarthy was questioned about this stuff after his arrest on the charge of stealing the tent and told the officers the dry goods were not his. After being released for a month or so, McCarthy, it is supposed, gained courage together with his religion and came to the sheriff's office a few days ago and asked for his goods. Deputy Sheriff Cox was alone in the office and knew that the stuff had been taken from McCarthy's room and so handed out the suitcases and their contents to the "convert."

Mr. Cox had his suspicions as to McCarthy's title to the property being quite clear, but as the goods had not been identified as stolen by any of the storekeepers of the city, many of whom, months ago, inspected them, there was nothing for it but to hand the stuff over to McCarthy. He came to the sheriff's office with a clothes basket and took all of the stuff away.

The officers hope that in view of his conversion McCarthy will return to the office, redeposit the property and tell them just where he got the various articles so that they may be returned to the rightful owners, provided, of course, that McCarthy's lately awakened conscience tells him that they do not rightfully belong to him.—Yakima Republic.
