Ellis has done much toward advancing the commercial interests of this section of the state of Oregon, and the people of his home town, especially the business men, desire to extend to him their appreciation of his efforts in behalf of his constituents.

To that end the Commercial association of Pendleton will tender to Judge Ellis a reception next Tuesday evening, July 7, from 8 until 10 o'clock, at the Commercial association rooms in Pendleton.

ticut, and the crash of a gun spoke out the farewell of the fleet to its own country.

It was not until the reverberating echoes from the last saluting gun had rumbled off into silence, that the thousands of bluejackets who had stood like statues at quarters, gave vent to their suppressed feelings in tremendous cheers.

The crowds on shore, taking up the lusty cheers of the nation's sea fighters, sent back across the waters a deafening roar of wild hurrahs. Not until the ships were "hull down" on the horizon did the multitude of spectators commence to disperse.

HEALTH OF DAIRY COWS IMPORTANT

DR. COLE WILL ENLIST
COUNCIL IN CRUSADE

Strong Sentiment Developing in Favor of Having Local Herds Tested—City Fathers Will Be Asked to Make Order and Pass Ordinance—Dr. McClure Asks Permission to Make Tests.

Since the announcement of Dr. Cole's intended war upon tubercular dairy cows much interest has been aroused in that subject and a strong sentiment in favor of the movement has been developed. It is now probable that the council will be asked to pass, not only an anti-tubercular cow ordinance, but also one which will still further prescribe how the dairy business of the city shall be conducted.

According to Dr. Cole he will present the subject of dairy cow tuberculosis at the council meeting tomorrow night or else at the subsequent meeting of that body. Meanwhile Dr. S. W. McClure has written the head of the animal bureau asking for permission to make an inspection of the local dairy cattle at the request of the city physician. Whether or not this permission will be granted remains to be seen. The bureau may refuse it on the ground that to allow the men stationed here to do strictly local work would be a bad precedent. Should the government men be barred from the work some other veterinarian will have to be engaged and Dr. W. H. Lytle will likely be chosen. Should Dr. McClure be granted permission to do the work he will make the inspection without cost to the city or to the dairymen.

Consumption Is Transmissible. According to both Drs. Cole and McClure, it has been repeatedly demonstrated that bovine tuberculosis is transmissible to human beings and Dr. Cole is firm in the belief that much existing tuberculosis originates from milk supplied from tubercular herds. Hence it is very necessary to see that no dairy cows are affected with the disease.

In the past the local dairy cattle have never been inspected for tuberculosis and the doctors say they are estimating conditions here purely upon the strength of what inspections have revealed at other places. Inspections that have been made in different portions of Oregon and Washington in the past have revealed an alarming amount of tuberculosis, the percentage varying from 10 per cent to as high as 30 to 50 per cent. In view of this fact they believe that there is some tuberculosis here and that the inspection should be made in order to learn the real situation.

In addition to the provision regarding tuberculosis it is very probable that the council will be asked to pass an ordinance regulating the sanitary conditions of dairies or at least giving the city health officer further powers on that subject. It is held that such is necessary for the reason that typhoid, diphtheria and other diseases are often spread by dairymen who through ignorance or neglect do not take proper sanitary precautions.
