MARTYR TO HIS VANITY.
French Scientist Describes Strange Case of Morbid Mentality.

A curious sort of vanity was described at the meeting of the French Academy of Medicine when Professor Deulafoi detailed the case of a man who for over two years had been afflicted with ulcerous sores, which broke out on both arms.

The patient consulted over a dozen physicians and tried many varieties of treatment, without relief. Finally he submitted to the amputation of his left arm above the elbow. Some improvement followed, but later the sores made their appearance with greater frequency than ever. He was then admitted to the Hotel Dieu and placed under Professor Deulafoi's care.

After keeping the patient under close observation for some time, the professor declared the patient to be a simulator. The man admitted that he had been in the habit of producing sores with caustic potash, and had kept up the fraud for two years and a half.

Professor Deulafoi explains the case as one of morbid mentality, in which the victim is irresistibly impelled to disfigure himself in order that he may become interesting and an object of pity.

Horses Burned Alive.

Fire, which resulted in a $1000 loss to the owners, broke out in the Barn on the Baker & Druse ranch on Summit View road Friday afternoon, says the Yakima Republic. Two horses, a quantity of hay, the building itself and a dozen fruit trees were destroyed before willing neighbors could form a bucket brigade and prevent flames spreading to near-by out-buildings and the house.

The cause of the fire is a mystery. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Riegler have been living on the ranch all spring. They were moving their furniture and other household effects to town when the blaze was discovered. It is believed a drayman who assisted in the moving dropped a lighted match into a dry manure pile.

So quickly did the flames spread that it was impossible to do much fire fighting. The horses which were burned were valuable. They both dropped in their stalls. A strong wind was blowing at the time.

Found Coin of 1848 in Garden.

That Josephine county is the most resourceful, as well as the most prolific, when it comes to productiveness of the soil, of any in the world, is no longer a mooted question, says the Grant's Pass Courier. When a farmer can raise a big crop of potatoes and a crop of gold and silver coins on the same piece of ground at one and the same time this should be sufficient to convince even the most skeptical. This feat has been performed by L. E. Sharp, who resides near the mouth of Jones creek.

Mr. Sharp's farm is what was formerly the old Curry place, and last season while digging his potatoes he picked up with the spuds a $10 gold piece of the date of 1848. The coin is not worn perceptibly, which would indicate that it was lost before it had been in use very long. At another time and in very nearly the same place he plowed up a Spanish shilling, dated 1793. This silver piece shows evidence of long usage.

How these coins came to be where they were found or how long there, is a mystery.

League Team to Disband.

Owing to the somewhat limited patronage of the baseball games in this city during the last three weeks, it is doubtful if there will be any more league ball here this year, says the Walla Walla Statesman. Yesterday's game was witnessed by some 30 or 40 people and games before have been played to smaller crowds. A 14-inning game brought out but about 50 people. Although there can be nothing definite learned about the future of the league as far as this is concerned, it is hardly probable that it will be continued.

Taxpayers More Numerous.

Over 20,000 personal tax statements will be collected and returned by the county assessor this year when the work of securing valuations has been completed. This is a gain of 2000 over last year, when about 27,000 statements were returned to Assessor Sigler, says the Oregon Daily Journal. The field work of the assessor's office for the year is about completed and the statements are coming in at such a rapid rate that the work of making out the roll is progressing rapidly.

Littlefield Rules Gilliam Dry.

The Portland Journal says in a dispatch from Condon: In the circuit court here yesterday Judge Littlefield decided the case of the saloons against the county court, in which the saloons of Condon contended the city charter was supreme over the county vote on prohibition in favor of the county court. This closes every saloon in Gilliam county for two years.

Busy Day for New Judge.

Six hundred and sixty-four days in jail—that was the total of the sentences doled out by John Van Zante on his first day as police judge of Portland, says the Oregon Daily Journal. Six boxcar tourists came before him charged with trespassing upon the property of the Harriman lines by sleeping in a car. The six were black as ebony. The six will break rock at Kelly's butte for 30 days each.

Disguised as a Woman.

Disguised as a woman, a man effected entrance to the Cape Foul Weather lighthouse at Newport, Ore., early Friday morning, and at a pistol point held up Captain Wellander, the keeper, and robbed him of $60 cash. The robber made his escape after being recognized by Wellander as a Greek laborer who has been hanging around Newport for some time.

Wholesale Vaccination in Montana.

The Montana state board of health has made sweeping orders for the preservation of sanitary conditions throughout the state. The first provides that each pupil, teacher and janitor of all schools shall be vaccinated forthwith, and the second that sewage farms shall be acquired by all cities. Streams must no longer be contaminated. Nominal prosecution will follow.

Kills Himself With Explosive.

Returning to his ranch after a trip to Snohomish, where he made some purchases, including a quantity of liquor, Robert Pfeueller killed himself with giant powder Friday. No cause for the deed is known. A widow and three children survive him.

FINGER NAIL BALL IS LATEST THING

Owen Summers of Detroit Has Newest Delivery in Twisters.

Vague rumors have drifted over the wires from time to time about a wonderful new twist to the baseball invented by Owen Summers, the new Tiger recruit of the American league. It is called the "finger-nail ball," but most of the fans have supposed it was merely some slight variation of the knuckle-ball, the fade-away or the splitter that was being exploited for the benefit of Summers, but according to the Baseball Magazine, "Sik" O'Laughlin says it is something entirely new in baseball, and is the most remarkable delivery in use today.

"I've been behind pitchers of every kind and description for a good many years," comments "Sik," "and I don't want to look at any stranger thing in the pitching line. If I saw anything more weird I'd think I had the jim-jams. I have worked behind Summers in several games which he has won, and that ball of his is easily the most wonderful piece of pitching I ever saw. How he gets such a freakish break on the ball is more than I can fathom.

"He grips the ball with the tips of his fingers when he goes to throw. It pushes through the air like a float, and yet has speed. Just as it gets near the plate, the slight curve on it stops and the ball is apparently suspended in the air for the fraction of a second, until it looks as if Summers has thrown a boomerang that is about to start back towards him. For just that fraction of a second it seems to cease moving, and then instead of continuing on its natural course, the curve is completely reversed, the ball going the other way. He can use it as a slow ball, when it breaks more slowly, or he can put speed on it."

"I got it trying to develop this knuckle ball I had heard so much about," says Summers. "I watched Eddie Cicotte, who first used the knuckle, and tried to follow him. He rested the ball against his knuckles, but I quit that because I could not control it. I found by holding the ball with my finger tips and steadying it with my thumb alone I could get a peculiar break to it and send it to the batters with considerable speed and good control. I worked on it two years."

The delivery requires strong, wiry fingers, and these Summers possesses. His fingers are well placed and remarkably long and he has a grip like a vise. The nails must be kept trimmed or they will be torn in delivering the ball. Summers suffered from a torn nail from his own delivery two weeks after the season opened up.

County Judge T. P. Gilliland leaves this afternoon for the south end of the county to look after some road matters in that section. He will be gone four or five days.

Hunting on John Day.

Bert Whitman, deputy assessor, and his cousin, Clarence Mason, of Waitsburg, Wash., have gone upon a hunting trip to the mountainous country along the John Day river.

At Walla Walla Monday, Judge Brents sentenced Bud Barnes, the murderer of Mrs. Anna Aldrich, to be hanged. No time was fixed as it is the announced intention of Barnes' attorneys to appeal to the supreme court on the ground that the discharge of the former jury was practically an acquittal.
