Unspoken words, like treasures in the mine, are valueless until we give them birth. Like unfound gold their hidden beauties shine. Which God has made to bless and gild the earth. How sad 'twould be to see a master's hand strike glorious notes upon a voiceless lute. But, oh, what pain, when at God's own command, a heartstring thrills with kindness, but is mute! Then hide it not, the music of the soul— Dear sympathy, expressed with kindly voice, but let it like a shining river roll. To deserts dry—to hearts that would rejoice. Oh, let the symphony of kindly words sound for the poor, the friendless and the weak, and he will bless you! He who struck these chords will strike another when in turn you seek. —John Boyle O'Reilly.

THE WASTE OF CIVILIZATION.

Have you ever thought of the wild and foolish waste of money, time and energy demanded by modern civilization? Take the waste of fashion, for instance. The alleged leaders of fashion decree that a hat or dress is "out of style" and no matter if it has not been worn but once or not at all, it is discarded. The price is thrown away, the energy and time used in making it were worse than wasted. Manufacturers vie with each other in supplanting each other's products, in order that people will be forced to buy something new every month or every year. Hats, shoes, suits, jewelry, dressing apparel of all kinds, furniture and almost every article used by man, is subject to rapid fluctuation or change, through "style," "fashion," or other meaningless decree. If all the money, time and energy that are now absolutely wasted to make business for caterers to the whims of humanity, were used in bona fide development, the country and every individual in it, would be far advanced beyond the present status of society and government.

THE RIGHT KIND OF DATA.

A. J. Wells, who is gathering data and who will write the literary material for the Umatilla county booklet to be issued for the publicity committee by Sunset magazine, is certainly securing the right kind of data. He is going among farmers, orchardists, sheepmen, cattlemen and representatives of other industries in the county and is collecting the story from them, first hand. What he says will be gospel truth, and it will be so attractive and so forcible that the homeseeker will not be able to resist it. The East Oregonian repeats again for the thousandth time, perhaps, that the plain truth about Umatilla county and Oregon is good enough. In fact the whole truth cannot be told to easterners, with any hope of acceptance. It is too much for them. But it is evident from the nature of the data being gathered by Mr. Wells, who is a cultured, high-class gentleman and writer, that Umatilla county will fare well in her advertising contract with Sunset Magazine.

SELF HEALING.

A few years ago people who declared that they could heal their own ailments and without medicine, were considered hopeless cranks. The assertion seemed far from the accepted belief and thought of the world that it was considered fanaticism. With many well meaning people it seems the same today, but the number whom such assertions are not startling is growing larger every day.

Today hundreds of sincere, conscientious Christian men and women are able to check and in fact cure their ills, by the simple application of thought force, will power, determination not to be sick.

These people do much of this miraculous work unconsciously, but they do it. They exercise their minds and will power and thought magnetism to such an extent that the small ills of the body are made subservient to the mind.

If the small ills are subservient to the minds of ordinary men and women why are not the greater ills, the most stubborn diseases subservient to the minds of more practiced, more educated, more highly cultured people? There is no limit to self healing or mind healing, if only people will make the mind supreme over the body by constant discipline.

WILL THE MILL GO TO PORTLAND

The Portland Oregonian announces that the new textile manufacturing town of Gordon Falls, in Multnomah county, will be founded by the removal of the Pendleton woolen mill to that place, as a nucleus for a large manufacturing center.

Will Pendleton pride and Pendleton capital allow this property to be moved to Multnomah county? Is there not enough business enterprise in this city to keep that institution here and operate it? Will Pendleton sit still and allow her resources to be plucked away, piece meal?

Pendleton has received greater advertising from this mill and its products than from any other one industry in the city. Her name has been carried to the ends of the world through this institution. It has furnished her a good payroll, has purchased her wool, has kept money in circulation in her channels of trade and has made her name known far and wide. Now will she permit it to be moved away?

It can be made to pay a profit here and can be started within a week, if Pendleton capital will say the word.

But there is another side to the question, also. Perhaps it will be better to have it moved away. Perhaps it will be best for Pendleton to wipe the entire institution and all its appurtenances from the map of Pendleton and then let some new blood and new capital start anew. It has been a hoodoo, it seems, in many ways.

So it may be best to obliterate every vestige and memory of the present woolen mill and then get out after some energetic new blood to make a fresh start and place Pendleton on the industrial map again.

This side of the question is worthy of thought, also.

WHERE WOMEN MAY VOTE.

Frieda Radel, the suffragist, has compiled the following record of woman's suffrage the world over.

Australia: Women have enjoyed the suffrage since September 19, 1893.

New Zealand: Of 140,000 women over age in New Zealand, 90,000 make use of their votes in the interest of morals, progress and against alcohol.

Great Britain: English women are eligible for the position of aldermen, wardens of the poor, and the right to vote in town and county elections.

Norway: Women paying from $75 to $100 in taxes are entitled to vote.

Sweden: Women paying at least $125 taxes annually are entitled to vote in all communal affairs.

Denmark: Women are entitled to vote under the same restrictions as men.

Iceland: Women have been entitled to vote on commercial matters since 1882.

Finland: Women are entitled to vote under the same restrictions and conditions as men.

The Netherlands: A bill is pending promising women active and passive right to vote.

France, Belgium, Austria, Switzerland and Germany: Women are strictly excluded from voting, but in Germany there are signs that the women are preparing to battle for the franchise, while in France, Belgium, Austria and Switzerland nothing of the kind has yet been attempted.

WILL FORSAKE THE WOMEN.

The national prohibition convention now in session at Columbus, Ohio, is seriously considering the matter of declaring against equal suffrage, for the reason that they feel the women are a "millstone" about the neck of the prohibition movement.

The equal suffrage advocates of Oregon would be very glad if the prohibitionists would separate themselves from the equal suffrage movement, as the local option fight in this state prevented the passage of the equal suffrage amendment two years ago, it is believed.

Had the women left local option and prohibition alone they would probably now be voting in Oregon. So Oregon suffragists will be satisfied to make the fight separately and alone.

These two great reforms belong together and should go hand in hand, but if the prohibitionists are so selfish and narrow as to throw their friend overboard when their own interests seem to be threatened, well and good. The women can fight alone. They have always borne their own burdens and a part of man's beside, in the past. They can do so in future.

The election of a democratic mayor by a three-to-one vote in Walla Walla, over an Ankeny man, looks like the senatorial situation in the state of Washington might be in an extremely shaky stage, as far as Ankeny is concerned.

TILLMAN'S START.

An interesting story is related in connection with Senator Tillman's ideals of agricultural education. It was through a rebuke administered to him some years ago when he tried to explain his ideals that he entered politics.

There was an old agricultural college in the state in those days in connection with it a meeting was called at Columbia, S. C. Mr. Tillman, who was then a farmer living on his lower plantation, attended the meeting. He tried to address the meeting, but it is related that John C. Haskell, a son-in-law of Wade Hampton, rather intimated that Mr. Tillman knew little about the subject, and he was not afforded an opportunity to air his views.

Mr. Tillman smarted under what he regarded as a rebuke from one of the leading aristocrats of the state. Returning to his plantation, he wrote an exposition of his views on agricultural education and sent it to the Cotton Planter, then an influential journal among southern agricultural interests.

This article attracted attention everywhere, and Mr. Tillman, still a farmer without political ambitions, was asked to address a meeting at Bennettsville. He accepted. His views made a hit. He was asked to make another address. He accepted. Organization was effected among the farmers, and in less than a year Mr. Tillman was elected governor of South Carolina.

Primaries came into vogue in South Carolina about that time, and the aristocracy of old families who had been in political control were unhorsed under the leadership of Tillman. It was as governor that Mr. Tillman brought about the establishment of the Clemson and Winthrop schools and it was the rebuke from Haskell that really forced Tillman into politics.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

TO OPEN WATERWAYS.

The plank of the national democratic platform concerning the opening and maintenance of the waterways of the country, is as follows:

Water furnishes the cheapest means of transportation and the national government having control of navigable waters should improve them to the fullest capacity. We earnestly favor the immediate adoption of a liberal and comprehensive plan for improving every water course in the United States which is justified by the needs of commerce and to secure that end we favor, when practicable, the connection of the Great Lakes with the navigable rivers and with the Gulf through the Mississippi river and the navigable rivers with each other and the rivers, bays and sounds of the coast with each other by artificial canals, with a view to perfecting a system of inland waterways to be navigated by vessels of standard draught.

We favor the co-ordination of the various services of the government connected with waterways in one service for the purpose of aiding in the completion of such a system of inland waterways; and we favor the creation of a fund ample for continuous work, which shall be conducted under the direction of a commission of experts.

Pumps Supplant Water Mains.

A man who is taking an active interest in irrigation by pumping states that about 30 people in the city are now using that method and state they find it cheaper and more convenient than obtaining water from the city mains, says the Boise Capital News.

It is argued that at any time of day they can secure sufficient force for sprinkling, while at times when on the public main the pressure is so low that it is impossible to fully irrigate. He believes that in a few years when electric power can be supplied through the valley, all the small tracts of land will be irrigated by means of pumps and many of the larger ranches will secure their water by this method.

Men who have made investigations are of the opinion that an ample supply of water can be secured from the earth in nearly any section of Idaho and the only force needed is electricity to raise it from the bowels of the earth to reclaim much of the arid land which cannot be reached through ditches.

That there is plenty of water in the vicinity of Boise was shown by the fact that the Short Line got an Artesian well with a flow of 80 gallons per minute to the surface at a distance of 501 feet.

BLOOD POISON TREACHEROUS-DANGEROUS

Contagious Blood Poison is the most treacherous of all diseases. It has its victims in its power almost before they realize its presence; because its first symptom, which is usually a little sore or pimple, is so insignificant that it does not cause alarm, or even excite suspicion. But notwithstanding the outward symptoms are not manifested in the beginning, this insidious poison is at work on the blood, and in a short time the patients find themselves diseased from head to foot. The mouth and throat ulcerate, the hair begins to come out, a rash breaks out on the body, copper-colored spots, and even sores and ulcers appear on the flesh. Unless the poison is driven from the blood it affects the bones, and literally eats out the life of the sufferer.

There is scarcely any limit to the evil powers of Contagious Blood Poison. It is often transmitted to others by a friendly handshake or from the use of the toilet articles of an infected person. And if the virus is allowed to remain in the circulation, its blighting influence will be handed down to offspring to ruin their innocent lives. Contagious Blood Poison is too dangerous to trifle with. No time should be lost in ridding the blood of this insidious poison; and in no disease is it more important that the proper remedy be used. Medicines which merely check the symptoms for a time and leave the real cause smoldering in the system, have brought misery and despair to thousands. Faithfully the sufferers took such treatment, and when all outward signs had disappeared left off its use, only to find that the virus had been shut up in the blood, awaiting a favorable opportunity to break out again.

S. S. S. goes down into the circulation, and removes every particle of the poison from the blood, makes this vital fluid pure and healthy, and does not leave the slightest trace of the poison for future outbreaks. S. S. S. is made entirely of roots and herbs of the forests and fields. It does not contain the least particle of mineral in any form to injure the delicate parts of the system, impair the digestion or corrode and irritate the membranous tissue or lining of the stomach and bowels.

If you are suffering with Contagious Blood Poison, S. S. S. will cure you, because it will purify your blood, and destroy every vestige of the taint. It will act as the finest of tonics to build up and strengthen your system, assist it in overcoming the effects of the disease, and insure a speedy restoration to perfect health.

We have a Home Treatment Book, describing the different stages and symptoms of Contagious Blood Poison, and containing many suggestions that will be helpful to you in curing yourself with S. S. S. We will send this book and any medical advice desired to all who write; no charge for either. S. S. S. is for sale at all drug stores.

IF THEY ONLY KNEW.

There are millions of acres of land lying idle and within easy reach of the large cities of the United States. There are millions of people who would be much better off if they were engaged in cultivation of this land. Very many of them would be upon the farms if they only felt that they could succeed. They could succeed by education. If these people only knew how nearly agriculture can be reduced to an exact science the problem of bringing landless people into contact with the barren lands would be easy.
