FIELD TO TABLE IN 22 MINUTES

PILLSBURY'S FAMOUS RECORD IS BROKEN.

Waltzberg Breaks World Record for Quick Flour Making—Wheat Is Cut Hauled, Ground and Baker Into Biscuits in Twenty-Two Minutes.

Pillsbury may have been there with the time record for an easterner when it came to getting standing grain from the field to the mill and thence to the bakery, with a record of 51 minutes, but westerners have the record broken in a dozen different ways, and Waltzberg has the honor of carrying off first prize, for in an attempt made yesterday afternoon to break the eastern record, growing grain was harvested, taken to the Preston-Parton mill, ground into flour and made into bread and biscuits in the short period of 22 minutes, says the Walla Walla Bulletin.

The experiment was an interesting one from every point of view, but one of the main features displayed by the breaking of the eastern record, is the value of automobiles in connection with farming in the west. As soon as the grain had been cut and sacked it was loaded into Mr. Preston's automobile and hauled off to the mill, where the transformation took place. The test to break the eastern time had been considered for some time and a large number of Waltzberg people, as well as Walla Wallans, were present, a number of them having been photographers for newspapers and magazines of the state. Edgar L. Smith, of the Up-to-the-Times staff was among those present.

The record of Pillsbury has occasioned much comment since its establishment as it has been extensively used in advertising a special brand of flour manufactured in Minneapolis, but to the Preston-Parton mill of Waltzberg is due the honor of having transformed growing grain into delicious bread and biscuits in the almost unbelievable short period of 22 minutes.

300,000 VARIETIES OF PLUMS, HAS BURBANK.

Between 50,000 and 60,000 Are Ripe and Are Being Tested by Scientists.

Santa Rosa, July 23.—Here is one of the greatest plum stories ever, and it is a true one, too.

At the present time on Luther Burbank's experimental farm in the Gold Ridge district, near Sebastopol, Burbank has 300,000 different varieties of plums growing and this morning he said that between 50,000 and 60,000 varieties are ripe now. As the fruit ripens the plums are tested, this being a very important part in Burbank's great work of making fruits and flowers produce their best. The product of each tree is being tested and as a result of this investigation Mr. Burbank will determine whether further time shall be spent with those varieties that are apparently not worth while.

Some people will imagine, when they read the statement that Luther Burbank has 300,000 different varieties of plums that his orchard must cover a wide area. This is not so, for one tree, when grafted, will bear scores of varieties of plums.

INK ON SUMMER TOGS.

Inkthrower Turns Attention to San Francisco Dandies.

San Francisco, July 23.—The Inkthrower who has been keeping fashionably dressed women on Van Ness avenue in terror by ruining their costly gowns with splashes of writing fluid, seems to have turned his attention to the men for the time at least. Men who wear fancy summer suits of light colors have been his victims for the past two days, and more than one dandy mourns the ruin of his pet pair of light trousers.

Lens Pelsler, who suffered from the inkthrower last night, says he was riding on the platform of a Market street car upon which also rode two small boys and an old man of 60 years. When he alighted his trousers were bespattered with ink. He thinks the old man is the criminal, for whom a dozen detectives are looking.

Biggest Bill Filed on Coast.

The bill in equity against the Oregon & California railroad which is to be filed by the United States in the land grant question involving possession of more than 2,000,000 acres of land will be the largest bill of kind ever filed on the Pacific coast and one of the most voluminous ever drawn up in the country. The bill is now in the hands of the printer says the Oregon Daily Journal. The details of the suit as set forth in the bill will cover approximately 75,000 words. This includes exhibits of which there are quite a number. B. D. Townsend, special assistant to the attorney general, has been at work on the bill several months. It is expected that the bill will be filed possibly within the next four or five weeks.

Six masked men attempted to rob the Ada, Ohio bank Tuesday night. Finding that the time lock could not be opened they used a charge of dynamite but the attempt was a failure.

Jewelry Protection

"The general public is not aware of the carefully worked out system by which the large jewelry houses continue to protect their splendid wares long after these have been sold and passed out of their hands," said a detective, discussing daring modern burglaries. "Most large establishments dealing in precious metals and gems have a carefully organized and very efficient detective system, which makes it easy for a patron to recover stolen goods without charge and with little or no delay in the institution of the search. In the safes of these large jewel houses are minute descriptions of every piece of valuable jewelry which goes out from the establishment. Each piece is numbered too. When the gems are missed the patron telephones the shop in which the articles were purchased. At once a special detective, thoroughly acquainted with the business in hand and armed with a detailed description of the jewelry, is hurried to the scene of action. This is without expense to the client."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Something Hotel Clerks Remember.

"There's lots less danger of the night clerk forgetting an early call left by some guest than most travelers imagine," remarked a hotel manager the other day. "The fact is," he declared, "the average night clerk could not forget one of those early calls if he wanted to. You know, it's a mighty lonesome job the night clerk has. There is little for him to do, few arrivals to take care of and little to break the monotony of his long vigil. About the only fun the night clerk has is those early morning calls. When I was a night clerk I used to count the hours until I could start in on those early calls. There was nothing else to do or think about, and it would keep going through my mind what fun it would be to make some guest share my forlorn state by getting him out of his warm bed all sleepy eyed. I could not any more have overlooked one of those early calls than I could have overlooked my breakfast when the time came."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In the Jaws of a Lion.

A lion comes at its enemy at full speed, galloping low, and dashes a man standing upright to the ground by the full impact of its body. Major Liverarity states that "the claws and teeth entering the flesh do not hurt as much as you would think," but that the squeeze given by the jaws on the bone is really painful. When knocked over he was still keenly conscious and felt none of the dreamy sensations experienced by Livingstone.

Major Swaine, struck down by a lioness going full gallop, was unconscious for some minutes and did not know what had happened till he found himself standing up after the accident. "I felt no pain," he writes, "not, I believe, owing to any special interposition of Providence, but simply that the shock and loss of blood made me incapable of feeling it. There was no pain for a few days till it was brought on by the swelling of my arm on the twelve days' ride to the coast."—London Spectator.

A Woman Governor.

Queens have ruled many nations, but Pennsylvania is the only one of the United States that ever had a woman for governor. A passage unearthed from Amos's "Governors of Pennsylvania," page 128, says: "On the 30th of July, 1718, William Penn died, at the age of seventy-four. By his will his wife, Hannah, was made his sole executrix and assumed the management of colonial affairs, executing this difficult task with rare tact and business capacity. 'She became,' says Watson, 'in effect our governor, ruling us by her deputies or lieutenant governors during all the term of her children's minority.'"

Lion and Unicorn.

The animosity which was supposed to exist between the lion and the unicorn, as referred to by Spenser in his "Faerie Queene," is allegorical of the deep rooted ill will which anciently existed between England and Scotland. Ever since 1603 the royal arms have been supported, as now, by the English lion and the Scottish unicorn in token of the fact that St. George and St. Andrew had at last shaken hands and forgotten their old difference.

An Explanation.

The passionate rhythms of "The Merry Widow" waltz floated through the office, and the boss looked up from his desk impatiently. "Frederic," he said, "I wish you wouldn't whistle at your work." "I ain't workin', sir," the office boy replied calmly. "I'm only just whistlin'."—New York Press.

A Japanese Joke.

Guest—Do you know that fellow of Sayama is telling all kinds of lies to defame your character? Host—If he is telling lies I don't care, but if he'd begin to tell the truth I'll throttle him. Guest—Oh, you will, eh?—Japan Current.

Her Raven Hair.

"Some novelists don't know what they're talking about. Here's one who speaks of a girl's 'raven hair.' " "What's wrong with it?" "All wrong. Ravens don't wear hair. They wear feathers!"—Liverpool Mercury.

No Gift.

"Would you call that orator's eloquence a gift?" "Not at all. He always charges at least 50 cents admission."—Washington Star.

The greatest quarrels in the world's history have been between people who were once friends.—Atchison Globe.

Work of a Burmese Bud.

Instead of a coming out party as we know it, the Burmese girl's entrance into society begins when she has her ears pierced. As soon after this as she feels inclined she selects a husband and goes to live in a home of her own. The home is provided by the man, but it becomes his wife's as soon as they are married. All women, young and old, are addicted to the use of tobacco. The women seem to prefer the very large size black cigar. Often one meets a woman on the streets of a village with one of these huge cigars in her mouth and two or three more stuck in the holes of each ear.

Deceitful.

"Men are queer animals," said the pessimist. "They are all more or less deceitful." "Oh, I don't believe that!" replied the optimist. "I think there are plenty of people who strive to be honest. I know I do, and I don't give myself credit for being any better than the majority of men." "Then why do you ask me how my health is every time we meet and stand around and look bored if I tell you?"

Permanent.

Bride of Some Months—My tempers you say are trying. He—At times. "I would not have you worn out with them. If you cared to be released from"— "Oh, no; not at all; not a minute. I don't feel so even when I am cross. I'm no ninety day volunteer. I enlisted for the war."—Life.

Not Disappointed.

"A young friend of mine," remarked a humorist, "got married last month. He said to me the other day: "'When I married Mamie I thought she was an angel. But,' he added, 'I soon found out my mistake.' " "Disappointed?" I asked. "Disappointed? Not!" he cried. "I found she was a good cook!"

Doubly Exciting.

"Dorothy always begins a novel in the middle." "What's that for?" "Why, then she has two problems to be excited over—how the story will end and how it will begin."

A Chance.

Husband—My colleague is the most hasty man I ever saw. He wants everything he sees. Wife—Can't you introduce our daughter to him?—London Mail.
