Little Boys Run Away.
Tired of the slow life of a Walla Walla summer, two little lads, Fred and Conrad Gettmann, aged 7 and 8 years, yesterday afternoon started from their home at 233 Malcolm street and headed for the A.-Y.-P. exposition at Seattle, says the Walla Walla Statesman. Loading a little express wagon full of provisions and worthless junk of all kinds, they started on foot for Seattle or the Klondike.

Arriving at the head of Birch street they pitched camp; but before they had finished their nap and were ready to take up the second lap of their journey, they were seen by residents of the neighborhood and reported to the police station. Sergeant Morse went after the little fellows and put them in the juvenile ward of the new jail until this morning, when about 7:30 their mother, Mrs. Conrad Gettmann, appeared and took the little chaps home.

RE-SEEDING BIG FOREST RANGES.

Government Aids Stockmen in Saving Depleted Pastures.

Lewiston, Idaho, July 29.—The government spent $250 this year for grass seed to reseed the depleted cattle ranges in the Bitter Root forest and the grazing area is increasing instead of decreasing under the wise supervision and the intelligent pasturing given by the stockmen who hold permits from the government. The stockmen sow seed, but the forest service furnishes it. On depleted ranges, where the wild grass is dying from over-grazing the stockmen sow seeds of mixed native grasses, bluegrass, timothy and selected seeds of different kinds distributed by the department of agriculture.

The stockmen reseed the winter ranges in the spring, and they see to it that none of the herds trespass on the grass-sown areas during the summer, so that by late fall the grass is well set. In the fall depleted summer ranges will be seeded and the cattlemen will keep their stock off this area until late spring. In this manner the stockmen increase the grazing area, while they protect all of the grass country from depletion, and by following this course make it possible to increase the number of cattle which will be apportioned for grazing in the forest.

Picks Tubercular Camp Site.

Lewiston, Idaho, July 29.—The Indian tubercular camp will be established in a few weeks in a natural grove near the government school at Fort Lapwai, as Indian Agent O. H. Lipps finds this spot best adapted, as it can be easily drained. A natural grove of trees will shelter the camp and the waters of Lapwai creek will add a touch of wild beauty to the little city of teepees which will soon spring up. Dr. John Ally, the government physician, will supervise the construction and advise the Indians how to live.

Big Bean Crop Expected.

Juliaette, Idaho, July 29.—Although hindered by unfair freight rates, which give the California bean-grower an opportunity to ship his product to Montana common points at the same rate given the Juliaette farmer, the ranchers on the ridges around Juliaette will grow 500 acres of beans this year. The farmers have decided to quit the business and the area has been reduced because bean-buyers will not contract the growing crop, owing to the experience of the last two years, when the shipper has often lost money.

ILLEGAL FENCING.

Five More Suits Filed in Federal Court Against Eastern Oregon Men.

Five suits have been filed in the federal court against alleged illegal fencing of approximately 112,540 acres of government land in Eastern Oregon. Criminal suits as well as equity suits to enjoin the maintenance of the fence will be brought. These suits are similar to that of the Butte Creek Land & Livestock company, in which the principal entered a plea of guilty. The Butte Creek people, however, had but 26,000 acres illegally fenced. Criminal proceedings will be brought against William Hanley, president and manager of the William Hanley company. Harry L. Corbett of Portland is secretary. Hanley is accused of inclosing 52,540 acres of government land and 4,500 acres of school land in Harney county.

The Pacific Livestock company is charged with maintaining a fence enclosing 28,000 acres in Malheur county.

The American Livestock company of Chicago is accused of enclosing 1,800 acres in Harney county. J. F. and Ralph O. Smith are accused of fencing 360 acres in Union county, and Elijah and Royal T. Oliver of fencing 360 acres in Union county. Examination of Hanley will be held before the United States commissioner at Burns.
