FEAR INSURRECTION

CUBAN ELECTION VIEWED WITH APPREHENSION.

Uneasiness Felt Among Officials of the War Department—Effort Made to Keep News of Danger Quiet—Reason for Uneasiness Can Not Be Assigned.

Washington, July 31.—On the eve of the Cuban provincial and municipal elections, a feeling of uneasiness pervades the war department, although every effort has been made to conceal it. It is known that Secretary of War Wright has had several conferences with his predecessor, Judge Taft, on the possibilities of an insurrection in Cuba.

Reports from Havana state that while at present there is no indication of a revolution, everyone considers there will be trouble after the elections, possibly after the municipal elections tomorrow, but more likely after the presidential elections. The Miguelistas have openly said, although not recently, that if Zayas is elected they will rebel. A conservative victory through the splitting of the liberal vote will certainly cause the liberals to fight.

Tomorrow's battle of ballots in Cuba will combine provincial and municipal elections, each province electing a governor and eight councilmen and the municipalities electing an alcalde and a proportionate number of councilmen. The governors will hold office until February 24, 1913, and the mayors until August 1, 1912.

COFFEE

The world is full of anonymous coffee: "Java and Mocha."

Who returns your money if you don't like 'em?

Have your coffee returned your money if you don't like the quality? No, you can't.

Governor Magoon has decided not to sign the decree authorizing the construction of water works at Cienfuegos until next week. This has averted a critical condition in that city, where the people are bitterly divided on the water works question. This action, it is thought, will prevent a clash between the rival factions, respectively, and supporting the Reilly contract.

According to present plans, the Cuban army of occupation is to be withdrawn on February 1 next, but many Washington officials acquainted with the situation believe that conditions at that time will be such as to render withdrawal impracticable.

Whether the spirit of unrest is due to the preparation of certain Cubans who hope to control by a show of force once the United States is out of the island or whether foreign interests are encouraging plots so as to compel the continuance of American occupancy, is not definitely made clear. The foreign interests it is well known dread the restoration of complete home rule in Cuba. They foresee excessive taxation and burdensome regulations placed upon their enterprises.

The ultimate hope and aim of these foreign and American business interests is to have this government either take over the island or establish a protectorate, which will give the Cubans a certain amount of self-government, but will promptly halt any attempt at maladministration of affairs. It is an open secret that army officers returning from Cuba are bringing back disquieting tales.

A high official in the department was asked if preparations were being pushed for the withdrawal of the troop from Cuba on the date set. He declined to express an opinion, but added that the troops might not be embarked if there was any need for them.

None of the officials would acknowledge, nor would they deny that they had received advices that foreigners in Cuba were subscribing to a fund for the purpose of financing a revolution. The revolution, according to these advices, would be timed for about the first of the year. In that case the American troops, perforce, would be compelled to remain in the island. Pressure would then be brought to bear on Washington to have this government take some definite action toward insuring the future peace of the republic.

The American army is well scattered over the island, and while it consists of only 5,000 troops, it is distributed in such a way that a fair sized body of trained regulars could be mobilized at any point in the island in a few hours. Two battalions of the Twenty-seventh infantry are stationed at Camp Columbia, near Havana, as a reserve force, which can be sent to any part of the island where trouble is likely to occur.

Contrary to what has been expected, it seems now that the provincial and municipal elections will not indicate which of the three parties, the Zalista, Miguelista or the conservative, will be the strongest in the next general presidential elections.

In each town, according to local interests, the parties have combined for the election of a mayor, the Miguelistas and Zalistas joining sometimes against the conservatives or vice versa. It will be difficult to ascertain how many votes properly belonging to the party, each party will obtain.

O. A. C. MAKING LONG STRIDES

MORE THAN THOUSAND STUDENTS REGISTERED.

Every County in State, Several Outside States and Two Foreign Countries Represented—Umatilla County Sent Twenty-six Last Year—Facts Concerning Source of Revenue.

The annual catalogue of the Oregon Agricultural College has just been issued and it shows a splendid growth in that institution.

The total registration of students in all courses during the past year was 1158. Of this number 26 were from Umatilla county and there were students in attendance from every one of the 33 counties of the state. Sixteen students attended from California and 35 were enrolled from the state of Washington. The registration also shows 21 other states of the Union represented, while there were three students from Alaska, one from British Columbia and four from India. Benton county had but 198 students during the past year.

In view of the questions that have been raised regarding the state educational institutions some facts concerning O. A. C.'s source of revenue will be interesting. The following bearing upon the same is from the catalogue just issued and shows that most of the money for the support of the college comes from the federal government:

Foundation and Endowment.

In pursuance of an act of congress approved by President Lincoln, July 2, 1862, a grant of land was made to each state in the Union in the amount of 30,000 acres, or its equivalent, for each senator and representative in congress to which the state was entitled by the apportionment of the census of 1860. The proceeds under this act were to constitute a perpetual fund, the principal of which was to remain forever undiminished; but the interest arising from said fund was to be inviolably applied by each state which should avail itself of the benefits of the act, to the support and maintenance of a "College where the leading objects shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies, and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts, in such manner as the legislatures of the states may respectively prescribe, in order to promote the liberal pursuits and professions in life." Ninety thousand acres of land were apportioned to Oregon, and by an act approved October 9, 1862, the legislative assembly of Oregon accepted the provisions of the congressional law.

The Land Grant Fund.

The subsequent sale of this land has netted the college approximately $200,000. This at present is invested in securities bearing 6 per cent interest. The act of congress of 1862 explicitly states that no part of the funds so appropriated or the interest arising therefrom shall be used for the purchase, erection or maintenance of any building or buildings.

The Hatch Fund.

Under an act of congress, approved March 2, 1887, the college receives $15,000 a year for the maintenance of an agricultural experiment station, "to aid in acquiring and diffusing among the people useful and practical information on subjects connected with agriculture."

The Morrill Fund.

On August 30, 1890, an act was passed by congress "to apply a portion of the proceeds of the public lands to the more complete endowment and support of the colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts established under the provisions of the act of 1862." This act provided that in 1890 $15,000 should be paid to each of the land grant colleges, and that the amount so appropriated should be increased by the sum of $1000 annually for 10 years, and that thereafter the amount annually appropriated should continue to be $25,000. Under an act of congress approved March 4, 1907, known as the Nelson amendment, this fund is increased by the sum of $5000 for the first fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, and by an additional $5000 for each succeeding year until the total annual amount is $30,000.

The Adams Fund.

An act of congress approved March 20, 1906, appropriated an initial $5000 for that year, and $2000 additional for each year thereafter until the annual amount shall reach $15,000. This fund is "to be applied only to paying the necessary expenses of conducting original researches or experiments bearing directly on the agricultural industry" of the state, and therefore supplements the Hatch fund in the maintenance of the experiment station.

In addition to the income from the national government, the college is dependent upon the state legislature for such appropriations as are required for the maintenance and development of the institution, in accordance with the provisions of the acts of congress, and in response to the industrial and educational demands of the state.
