

HOBSON KISSES LURE WIFE AWAY

BOTH MARRIED THEY FRANKLY ACKNOWLEDGE.

Young Man Claiming to Be Cousin of Merrimac Hero Elopses from Washington with Sympathetic Woman—He Is Arrested in New York for Embezzlement.

Edward M. Hobson, who says he is a cousin of Congressman Richmond Pearson Hobson of Alabama, seems to have the kissing habit, too, says the New York World.

Mr. Hobson's osculatory affinity, it appears, is Mrs. Nellie Kyle, a very pretty young blonde—it does not flatter her to say she looks like a composite picture of Sylvia Thorne and Edna May.

Unluckily Mrs. Kyle has a husband in Washington, Raymond Kyle, an engraver in government employ; and Hobson, a clean cut, well dressed fellow of 23 years, has a wife and two children.

These obstacles both Mrs. Kyle and Hobson frankly acknowledged yesterday stand in the way of their perfect happiness. Nevertheless, Mrs. Kyle, clasping her hands over the corsage of her pink komono, exclaimed with fervor last night:

"Nothing shall separate me from Mr. Hobson. If he is dragged back to Washington, I shall go too."

Happy Until Sleuths Came.

In fact, Mrs. Kyle seemed completely Hobsonized.

Mrs. Kyle—alone—went to a boarding house, No. 312 West Twenty-second street, on Sunday, and engaged two rooms, saying her husband, Mr. Kyle, would be along in a day or two. And, as she foretold, soon appeared Hobson, who lives at No. 2414 G street, and who has been the Washington agent of the New York Horse Insurance company, whose New York office is at No. 110 West Twenty-fourth street.

"Mr. and Mrs. Kyle" appeared to be very happy indeed until early yesterday morning. Then rudely intruded on them Lieut. Stinson Melvor and Connie O'Donnell of the central office.

Mrs. Kyle met the detectives at the door of her room and vigorously protested that she was alone. But Melvor and O'Donnell found a man hidden under the bed in an adjoining room, surely an inglorious position for a kinsman of him who sunk the Merrimac in the mouth of Santiago's harbor.

After some parley the man admitted that he was Hobson, not Kyle. The detectives told him that Chief of Police Sylvester of Washington had wired he was "wanted" on a charge of embezzlement and that he must go to police headquarters.

Trumped-up Charge, He Says.

On the way to police headquarters Hobson rather agitated, talked about another man being in much deeper trouble than he was in Washington.

Later Hobson was arraigned before Magistrate Corrigan in the Tombs court, charged with embezzlement, the brief affidavit being attached to Chief Sylvester's telegram. It did not develop what the charge is nor who makes it, nor did Hobson make any statement to the court, but, having changed his tune about the other man in Washington, he said to the newspaper men:

"They don't want me for embezzlement in Washington nor any place else. The charge is only trumped up to get me back to Washington. I am sorry to say that I ran away from there with a beautiful woman. She is married and so am I, but—with a sigh—"we could not help it. Some people we left behind want to prosecute me, that's all. The lovely woman with whom I eloped is here in New York. I'm sorry for her."

Magistrate Corrigan held Hobson in $500 bail to await a requisition from Washington, and he was taken to police headquarters.

Mrs. Kyle was not in court. She willingly received a World reporter at the boarding house last evening. He had asked for "Mrs. Hobson."

Serious Affair, Says Woman.

"I wish it understood distinctly that I am not Mrs. Hobson," she said, with emphasis. "I am Mrs. Kyle, Mrs. Raymond Kyle. I have a husband in Washington, but I have been separated from him for several months."

"And Mr. Hobson is married?" asked her visitor.

"Yes," she said intensely. "Who brought this charge against him?"

"Any charge of embezzlement is absurd," returned Mrs. Kyle. "And any charge against Edward—against Mr. Hobson—has been instituted by Mrs. Hobson—this most scornfully."

"I wish to say," Mrs. Kyle continued on her own initiative, "that I am intensely indignant with a reporter who writes falsely that I seem to be distressed only because 'my lark has been disturbed.' This is not a 'lark.' I exclaimed, clasping her slender hands: 'this is the most serious, the most momentous affair of my life.'"

U. S. TROOPS TO PATROL THE RIO GRANDE BORDER.

Uncle Sam's Bayonets Will Interfere with Free Movements of Plotters Against Mexico.

A double line of bristling bayonets is to be established along the Rio Grande, to the end that the free movement of persons plotting against the peace and dignity of President Diaz's government across that stream may be brought to an end, says a dispatch from Washington. Ambassador Creel called at the state department today to say that Mexico has already established eleven army posts at as many crossing places, and intends establishing more.

President Roosevelt is taking such a deep interest in the reports of raids from Texas that he has suggested to the department of justice that more special assistants to the attorney general be hired, all with a view to looking into the question as to whether Mexicans suspected of plotting against Mexico while living in Texas can be extradited. The extradition treaty forbids the surrender of men accused of political offenses. The question to be answered by the proposed additions to Mr. Bonaparte's staff is as to whether what they are suspected of doing are political offenses or otherwise.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold.

A. S. Neubaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which only seemed to aggravate it. Fortunately, I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success. Pendleton Drug Company."

The reorganized club, under the same name, will march for Taft and Sherman this year.

Decrease in Death Rate.

Philadelphia, Aug. 6.—A decrease in the death rate from tuberculosis of 15 per cent is reported by the department of public health in this city, as compared with similar periods last year. It is believed that the lower mortality rate is due to the educational campaign against the "white plague" which is now being carried on in Philadelphia.

AMERICAN WORKMEN ARE BETTER OFF.

High Standard of Living Is Not Wrong, Says Bureau of Labor.

Is the high standard of living adopted by the American workman a mistake?

Would he be happier with the conditions that surround the English or the German laborer?

The bureau of labor answers these questions in the negative, its reply being based on reports of investigations into the cost of living in the United States, Germany and England, just made by the respective governments.

The bureau lays emphasis upon the fact that the American eats. The table of the American workman is more abundantly supplied and with far greater variety, it is declared, than either the German or the English. The food of the American workman costs more, but his table does not require nearly so large a wage percentage as that of the Englishman or the German.

Another joy that the American laborer is able to experience by his standard of living is that of keeping his family together. Statistics show that the family of the American living at home is larger than that of the German or the Englishman. The American industrial family averages slightly more than five persons, with three children to a family living at home.

A comparison of the cost of living shows that the credit the Englishmen have been given for generations of being the greatest beef-eaters on the globe is unwarranted. The American workman and his family eat much more meat than the English.

The reports indicate that the position of the English workingman is more fortunate, in regard to wages, rental and food than the German, but that in all these particulars the honors go to the American.

Rig Catholic Convention.

Boston, Aug. 6.—Following the convention of the Knights of Pythias this week, the Hub will entertain another national gathering next week, when the American Federation of Catholic societies will assemble in annual session. The principal address will be delivered by Dr. Thomas Dwight of Harvard on "Church and Science."

Novel Campaign Idea.

Richmond, Ind., Aug. 6.—Sixty-three men, in brilliant uniforms, trained to march in four irregular divisions which spell, so that all may read, the name T-A-F-T, is the idea of Captain Paul Comstock of this city. This novel marching organization will play a prominent part in the Taft demonstrations in Indiana during the campaign and it is expected to attract much attention. As there are no curved letters in the candidate's name, the formation is comparatively easy.
