

SUNDAY SERMON BY W. T. EUSTER

PROHIBITION IN CITY OF PENDLETON DISCUSSED.

Pastor of Methodist Church Intimates that Law Is Being Deliberately Violated—Duty of Every Citizen to See that Law Is Enforced—Impossible for Saloons to Ever Come Back.

Members of the various churches were present last night at the First M. E. church where Rev. W. T. Euster, the pastor, preached on the subject, "How can a place where prohibition has become a law attain unto continuous prosperity?" The text chosen was from James 2, 14, "Can a fountain send out sweet and bitter water at the same place?"

He said in part: "James with his 30,000 members there in ancient Jerusalem had somewhat the same problems to contend with as we have today. It is easy to answer this question which he asks the people of his time. A fountain can send out bitter and sweet water at the same time, but always and inevitably to the ruination and destruction of the fountain."

"A certain party was rejoicing that a fight occasioned by beer did not take place in his neighborhood or near his home, but such selfish narrowness will never make a town. Whatever takes place in Pendleton ought to be considered as vital to every citizen of the place, for the simple reason that this city belongs to us all, and whatever helps the place should be encouraged and whatever hinders its growth and prosperity should be discouraged by all who reside here. We should be as ambitious to help Pendleton as we are to help our own home. We should do as much to make it clean and respectable as we do to keep clean our own yard."

"I knew a certain very fine man, a perfect gentleman. He had a fine family, two boys and a girl. His home life was perfect. No more generous man ever lived. He was wealthy and making plenty of money. His home was a place of culture and happiness."

"Some months ago he took to drink. Living in a growing town in Washington, he conceived the idea of going to Western Oregon to a place which went dry on the 1st of July, but a certain senator lives there called Reddy, the author of the infamous Reddy bill, the sole object of which was to foist the saloon out of Oregon cities and towns for all the future. This man expected to get away from his great enemy, the open saloon, but, finding some friends there who introduced him to the boys, he sank back again and in a fit of desperation after a spree suddenly took his own life before anyone standing by could hinder. A sad responsibility belongs to that place."

"Now there is not the least hope that Pendleton will ever have the saloon back. Lane county voted over 400 more against the saloon this year than two years ago. The same is true of Wallowa county."

"The Pendleton program now is a 'dry' one. All law abiding citizens will work accordingly. Prohibition does prohibit with all law abiding citizens. It will never prohibit with the law defying and law breaking criminal classes, for all law breakers are criminal."

"The mistake places have made has been to begin with a money fine as punishment for law breaking criminal classes and end with imprisonment. Now they are beginning to learn that the jail and prison are the cure that should be administered at once, thus saving costs and increased crime, for men who will deliberately set the law at defiance and sell liquor to minors and Indians and sell contrary to law, care not for a money fine. They will quit only when imprisoned. And it is wise for any city to see to it that a cure is effected at once."

"A law defying spirit and training boys to line up to bars recently used for saloon bars and thus creating a bad state are the dangers before us. Now, it is the duty of the city government to arrange all ordinances in line with the will of the people as declared in the new law, and when any place has a city government that neglects to do that it is the duty of her citizens to see to it that she gets a new city government as quickly as possible, for no city government has any right to wait until it is forced to do certain necessary things. Pendleton can be prosperous altogether dry. It cannot prosper partly dry and partly wet, and every man who argues now for the old condition and thus divides the place is neither a law abiding citizen nor a friend of the place. All such argument is inimical to the best interests of the place."

"For any set of law breakers to continue breaking the law for the sole reason of making easy money and laying up an argument against the very law all are to obey, when they are the only reason why it does not work perfectly, is the most hypocritical thing man can ever do, and her law abiding citizens should see to it that Pendleton is free from this curse as quickly as possible."

"Yes, a fountain can send forth bitter and sweet water at the same time, but it always destroys the fountain. Let us say to all the world, 'Come drink at our fountain, for it is sweet and wholesome. It will invigorate and will give health to your boys and girls and build you up in healthy citizenship.'"

"Do this, and the scene of 10-year-old boys lining up to an old whiskey bar and of 12-year-old girls going home drunk as the result of deliberately planned work to set the law in disrepute will never be possible again."

BUTCHERS ARRESTED.

Pocatello Men Accused of Butchering Stolen Cattle.

A. M. Stangle and Henry J. Frey were arrested at an early hour this morning by Sheriff D. T. Quigley and Deputy Sheriff Burnett McGarvey, charged with the crime of grand larceny, says the Pocatello Tribune. The arrest was made at the slaughter house of the Cold Storage Meat company of this city, located about two miles north of town along the Portneuf river, and it is alleged that Stangle and Frey were guilty of slaughtering six head of beef steers to which they could not read their title clear. They were taken to the county jail, where they are being held to await preliminary hearing tomorrow morning.

Mr. Stangle is proprietor of the Cold Storage company, whose retail shop is on North Arthur avenue, adjoining the Black grocery. Frey is his cattle buyer. Both men are well known and highly respected business men of the community, and there is everywhere heard hope that they will satisfactorily clear themselves of the charge made against them.

The arrest, says the sheriff, was made on the strength of a suspicion, long entertained by members of the sheriff's force, that there was being slaughtered at the Stangle abattoir beef which had never been regularly purchased. When the sheriff's office determined that for some time past it has been the habit of the Cold Storage company to purchase beef cattle from boys and Indians, a watch was set to see if these suspicions of alleged irregularities were well grounded. Last night Stangle and Frey were discovered in the act of slaughtering six head of steers bearing the brand of the Evans Brothers of Malad and of Theodore Swanson, whose ranch is down the Portneuf river near the edge of the Indian reservation. The sheriff says he has determined that Evans brothers had not sold the steers to the meat company and that Swanson had not disposed of the cattle bearing his brand. The arrest of the butchers followed.

Baker's Exports.

Hardly a man in this city realizes what constitutes Baker's exports and the quantity that is shipped from this city. Few days pass that several cars are not picked up at this station for various points, says the Baker City Herald.

Today Frank A. Phillips loaded out four cars of fat cattle for Carsten Packing company's plant at Tacoma, and yesterday several carloads of sheep were sent to Billings, Mont.

The brewing company shipped a carload of ice to Huntington today, and a hide dealer by the name of Berg from Portland loaded four carloads of hides, besides shipping many barrels of tallow. Yardmaster Thompson when looking after the loading of hides remarked, "This is where the natives get skinned, but not like most skinning the pelts go to commercial centers and are made into commodities for man's use."

Vernon, B. C., Aug. 10.—All of the four western provinces are well represented in the congress of the Western Canada Irrigation association, opened here today. Mr. Chafin is a citizen of Illinois, but was born in Walworth county, Wis., November 1, 1852.

He worked on a farm by the month to defray his expenses while at the University of Wisconsin, from which he was graduated in 1876. He practiced law at Waukesha, Wis., for 25 years. He was state president of the Epworth league two terms and grand chief templar of the state Good Templars four terms, a candidate on the prohibition ticket for attorney-general of Wisconsin twice and for governor in 1898. In 1901 he went to Chicago. He is the author of "Lives of the Presidents" and "Lincoln, the Man of Sorrows."

PRINCESS ALICE IS 17.

President Roosevelt's Only Unmarried Daughter Has a Birthday.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Miss Ethel Roosevelt, the president's only unmarried daughter, is today receiving the congratulations of hundreds upon the occasion of her 17th birthday. Scores of beautiful presents were received by the young lady of the White House, not only from relatives, friends and schoolmates, but from admirers in all parts of the country.

At the age of 17 she "Princess Ethel" has become a strikingly charming and beautiful young woman and her intellectual attainments are above the average. In many of her personal characteristics she resembles her famous father. She will not actively enter society for several years yet, although she will likely take part in several functions this winter, owing to the fact that the coming season will be the last her father will spend in the White House. Many rumors of love affairs in which she has been involved have been circulated, but there has been little basis of truth in any of them.
