NORTHWEST DEVELOPMENT CONGRESS AT COOS BAY.

Judge Stephen A. Lowell invited to represent Pendleton at important gathering in Marshfield, August 24 and 25—Second Southern Oregon District Fair Will Be in Session.

The first session of the Northwest Development congress ever to be held will be held in Marshfield, Coos county, Ore., on August 24 and 25, and it is possible that Pendleton will be represented at that important congress.

Judge Stephen A. Lowell, vice-president of the Pendleton Commercial association and a prominent member of the Oregon Development league, this morning received an invitation to attend the congress, and it is possible to get away at that time he will go.

The Northwestern Development congress is an outgrowth of the industrial and commercial development of the coast counties and will be a fixed event each year hereafter. All three of the northwest states are interested and will take part in it. The official invitation issued by Secretary Walter Lyon of the Marshfield chamber of commerce is as follows:

Marshfield, Ore., Aug. 12.
Dear Sir:—You are cordially invited to sit in the commercial congress to be held in Marshfield, Ore., on Coos bay, August 24 and 25, 1906.

Coos bay is selected as the first meeting place of the congress because it is situated within the neglected district and because weather conditions on the bay can be counted on as con-

OSTEOPATHS GO HOME.

Twelfth Annual Session of American Society Ends Its Labors at Kirksville, Mo.

The East Oregonian has just received from Dr. G. S. Holsington of this city a copy of the Kirksville, Mo., Daily Express, giving an account of the twelfth annual session of the American Osteopathic association at that place, which Dr. and Mrs. Holsington are attending.

The meeting was held in a tent with a seating capacity of 5000 and was attended by members of the profession from every state in the union. During the session which was held last week occurred the 80th birthday of Dr. Still, founder of the society of osteopathy, and that event was celebrated in a fitting manner by the convention.

Dr. Holsington of this city took part in the program with an osteopathic demonstration on the afternoon of August 7. Kirksville is the center and hub of the osteopathic science in the world, as Dr. Still lives there, and his college, the largest and oldest of its kind in the world, is located there.

TEN YEARS AGO
MANILA FELL

TENTH ANNIVERSARY OF FALL OF SPANISH CITY.

Number of Pendleton Boys Who Were in Victorious Army Recount Incidents of Famous Campaign—Company F Occupied Post of Honor as Guard for General Merritt.

Ten years ago today, August 13, 1906, the old Spanish city of Manila fell into the hands of the victorious American army, and a number of Pendleton boys who were in that victory have been celebrating the anniversary by recounting the incidents of the fall.

Among the Pendleton boys who were at Manila on that eventful day are George A. Hartman, A. E. Lambert, Joe Sullivan, A. O. Carden and D. C. Bowman, who were members of the Second Oregon regiment, which took a prominent part in the siege of Manila.

Company F of the Second Oregon regiment was detailed as a private escort to General Merritt, and in that select company were the Pendleton boys.

The Oregon boys went into the city by way of the water front on the Chinese vessel, the Quong Hoy, and were among the first to enter the city.

In the past decade in which Manila has been an American city it has been completely changed in appearance and surroundings and but little of its old aspect remains.

Melon Crop Is Shy.

Because of the late and backward spring, the melon crop of The Dalles and vicinity this year will not be up to the standard as to quality though the quality is excellent, says The Dalles Chronicle. Watermelons, a sample of which was brought in by C. L. Hazen of Dry Hollow, Monday, are said to yield not to exceed a half crop. Canteloupes are yielding better, though they are not so prolific as last year. Both products are from two to three weeks later than common. Ordinarily water melons begin to appear in the local markets about August 1, this year August 10 marks the first showing of the local product. Canteloupes, which generally ripen from one to three weeks before watermelons, are also late, and did not appear until about August 1 this year.

Funeral of Mrs. McPherson.

The funeral of Mrs. Rosa B. McPherson, formerly of this city, who died on August 9 at Everett, Wash., will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. from the Rader undertaking parlor, by Rev. W. T. Euster. The remains arrived today over the Northern Pacific, accompanied by the daughter of the deceased, Mrs. J. D. Sipp, and her husband. Interment will take place in Olney cemetery.

BIG HERMISTON LAND SALE MADE

400 ACRES OF SEMI-ARID LAND BRINGS $21,627.50.

Orchard Development Company Purchases Large Tract South and West of Hermiston, Which Will Be Divided Into Small Fruit Farms.

A contract for the sale of about 400 acres of land situated a mile west of Hermiston on the Umatilla river has just been filed with County Recorder Hendley, in which Robert Stanfield sells to S. R. Oldaker for the Orchard Development company a body of semi-arid land for the sum of $21,627.50.

All of this land lies east and south of the Umatilla river and is situated from one mile to a mile and a half west of Hermiston and will be divided into small tracts to be sold by the Orchard Development company to settlers in that district.

The land can all be irrigated and is situated favorably for a fine fruit and vineyard industry as it is within a short distance of the railroad and has plenty of water and is practically all good soil.

It is one of the largest sales reported from that section for some time and shows the continued activity in real estate in the west end of the county.

CARL POWERS ENTERS SCHOLARSHIP CONTEST.

Local Boy Will Try to Win Scholarship to Pendleton Academy.

A Carl Powers, a promising young man of this city, enters the Portland Oregon Journal's educational contest.

Mr. Powers has just returned from the encampment of company L of Pendleton. Arriving early this morning Mr. Powers was immediately interviewed by Miss Clemens, the contest manager, who is in the city for the purpose of starting the contest work here, and soon secured this young man as a contestant. It is expected by the many friends and acquaintances of Carl that he will easily lead from this district, which comprises all of eastern Oregon.

Although Mr. Powers is starting a month behind his fellow contestants, still, with this rich country to support him he ought to come out even yet with flying colors.

Mr. Powers enters with the purpose of securing the scholarship offered in the Pendleton academy. This scholarship will provide for two years in any branch in the academy.

Miss Clemens will work with Carl for a day or so, instructing him in the work, as she has been in a contest herself and so understands the work.

So far no other contestant is in the field for this scholarship and Carl is confident of securing his coming winter's tuition by a little rustling for the remainder of the summer.

Many Harvesters in Town.

It is estimated that 200 harvest hands and farmers came to the city today on account of the rain. Harvest operations were stopped in every part of the county and both the Northern Pacific train from Helix and the O. R. & N. train from Walla Walla brought in large crowds of idle men who are waiting for the sunshine to make harvesting possible again.

Finished Harvesting.

Will Ferguson has pulled his combined harvester into the shed after harvesting his 720-acre crop east of Adams. He had a most successful harvest season and is pleased with the results. His crop averaged between 25 and 30 bushels per acre of No. 1 wheat and he did not miss a day with his machine while harvest was in progress.

Plan to Incorporate Wapato.

Sixty-five residents and electors of Wapato, Yakima county, Wash., have petitioned the county commissioners for an election to be held August 29, at which time the incorporation of the town may be voted on by the inhabitants. Affidavits show Wapato to have 354 residents, the statute requiring 300 residents and 60 qualified voters.

RUNS HER OWN FARM AT 64.

Mrs. Tongue of Washington County Won't Quit Work.

An Oregonian correspondent at Hillsboro writes an interesting story of Mrs. Rebecca Tongue of Washington county, who, although 64 years of age, conducts her own farm.

Probably the most remarkable incident in the Northwest in the way of an aged woman conducting a large farm is evidenced on the plains north of this city. Mrs. Rebecca Tongue, who was 64 years of age May 1, 1906, personally conducts the operations of a 160-acre tract of cultivated lands. She does her own planting and directs two hired men the year round; does her own housework; markets her butter and eggs, and from the income from these two products alone, together with veals, etc., pays for all her help. This leaves her the income from the product of the entire farm, net.

Mrs. Tongue came to Washington county from England 48 years ago, and all this time has resided in this place. She is a sister of the late Thomas Otchin, a Hudson bay man, pioneer of 1833. In the 48 years of life in Washington county she has seen a wilderness developed; has raised one child and educated him, sending him to Pacific university, and lived to see that son a force in state politics first; then one of the leaders in congress, representing Oregon's First district.

For years prior to the death of Congressman T. H. Tongue he tried to get his mother to move to town, but she steadfastly refused to leave the farm where her life had been spent. Her grandchildren later tried to get her to leave the farm and its arduous duties, but again she always declined. She is still in the possession of her faculties and always has time to drive over her farm and direct the work. She is at present having plans drawn for building a large farm house, the old one having burned.
