ed in the Atlantic Color works, at No.
185 North Eleventh street, Williamsburg, will die of burns received last evening in a heroic fight to prevent six barrels of naphtha from catching fire and destroyed the paint factory, value at $500,000, says a dispatch from New York.

Shortly after 6 o'clock O'Brian found a fire in the mixing room within 15 feet of the naphtha. Realizing the imminent danger, he began to roll out the barrels. By the time he had reached the fifth the fire had spread all over the room. Although his coat caught fire he kept at his work. The doorway was blazing when he went for the last barrel, and it was only by repeatedly slapping out the fire on his clothing and on the barrel that he succeeded in rolling it out to a safe spot. Then O'Brian fell exhausted.

His groans attracted some late workmen, who rang an alarm and called an ambulance. Dr. Reykin of the Eastern District hospital said that it was remarkable that the man had retained strength enough to move the last barrel, so frightful was his condition.

Deputy Fire Chief Burns said that the entire factory would have burned had the naphtha caught fire.

O'Brian was taken home, at his request, to die.

JAPANESE IN FORMOSA.

Little Brown Men Civilize Barbarians of Wild Island.

Schools have been built and equipped by the Japanese on the island of Formosa with the same combination of sense and enthusiasm that has actuated the Americans in Porto Rico and the Philippines. There are today 165 common schools for Chinese boys and girls, half the teachers being Chinese and half Japanese, and fifteen similar schools for half-civilized mountain tribes. Twenty-four also are opened for Japanese boys and girls, whose education alone as yet is compulsory. Chinese children are admitted to these schools if clean and free from disease. There are also one high school for girls only, one high school for boys only, one normal school for teachers, one medical school, two agricultural schools and one police school.

This looks like work, not exploitation!

We need only remember our own efforts at education in our dependencies to appreciate the spirit of real helpfulness that has characterized this Japanese labor in Formosa.

The Chinese still maintain over 1000 small private schools, where old ideas, now being abandoned on the mainland, are still taught, no doubt partly out of stubborn opposition to Japan.

It is the plan to supplant gradually these schools of ancient foggism with modern ones, but, as usual, the Japanese will not move in a compulsory way. I said to a Japanese Christian preacher: "How about religious freedom in Formosa?" He replied:
"Entirely free; perhaps too free, for or at least opposition, would stir us up."—From "What Are the Japanese Doing in Formosa?" by William C.
Gregg, in the American Review of Reviews for August.
