PRIZES ARE OFFERED FOR WHEAT GROWING

C. S. Terpening of this city, has just received a copy of the Winona Republican-Herald, published at Winona, Minnesota, in which McConnon & company of that city announce a wheat contest in which all parts of the United States may participate. As Umatilla county is the banner wheat county of Oregon and one of the leading wheat districts of the United States, the article is reprinted in hopes that some Umatilla county farmer may enter the contest and carry off a prize for the county. The Winona paper says:
A good wheat contest has been inaugurated by McConnon & company of this city and already samples of wheat entered for the contest are beginning to come in, although, according to the terms announced the decision will not be made until about January 1. From the entries already made it would appear that the desired interest has been fully aroused.
In the conduct of this contest customers send in samples of wheat raised by them, and these are entered in competition in the appropriate districts and stand a chance in sharing in the division of $150 prize money, which is the amount which has been hung up. The three divisions under which the wheat samples are to be listed have been established as follows:
Spring wheat division.
Winter wheat division.
Pacific coast division.
In each division $50 in prizes are offered, there being five prizes in each division in the following amounts: $25, $12.50, $7.50, $3 and $2.
Applications for entering this contest have been received from a large number of different states as far south as Alabama and Texas and as far west as Washington. Samples of wheat have already been received from Alabama and other southern states where the wheat has been harvested and threshed. They will be carefully kept until all the samples are received and then the judging will take place.

This judging will be done by experts, and the distribution of the prizes will be according to their recommendations. It would be possible to make the wards and distribute the prizes before the first of the year were it not for the fact that in some parts of Minnesota and North Dakota, as well as in Idaho and Washington the threshing will not be done until November and December in the case of a number of farmers who have entered the contest.

Entry blanks can be had upon application to McConnon & company, and after the entries are made the contestants are supplied with paper sacks in which to ship the samples. These sacks when filled hold about 12 ounces.

The popularity of the contest is shown by the way in which entries have already begun to pour in, but this contest becomes more generally known.

NEW COURSE OF STUDY.

State Board of Education Completes Important Work.

Superintendent of Public Instruction J. H. Ackerman has just completed the revision of the courses of study for the elementary and high schools of Oregon, which will be ready for distribution to the county superintendents in a few days, says the Salem Journal.

Several important changes have been made this year, among which may be mentioned the two-year commercial course designed for the eleventh and twelfth year pupils, and the teachers' training course, designed to be of assistance to high school students, who intend to follow teaching, but who feel they cannot afford to leave home to fit themselves for that work.

A change has also been made in the classification of high schools. Hereafter the high schools will be classed according to the courses adopted and the number of teachers devoting their entire time to the teaching of high school subjects.

O. R. & N. Storing Coal.

For the express purpose of unloading approximately 30,000 tons of coal for regular and storage purpose, is the object in bringing a crew of 25 Greeks to this city today and setting them to work on the elevated track in the railroad yards, says the La Grande Observer.

Every autumn the O. R. & N. fills its huge bunkers here with hundreds of tons of coal for emergency use and for the daily consumption by local engines. A portion of the cars on which the coal is shipped in here, are of the automatic unloading class, but a large per cent of them are not, hence the unloading by hand system. The crew of Greeks which arrived here today will do this hand work, and before the winter months set in, the company will have ample coal fuel famine on the road.

SCHOOL FOR HORSEMEN.

New Cavalry Recruits Will Be Given Training.

A recent decision of the United States army in establishing a training school for the new recruits in horse for cavalry and artillery purposes is certainly commendable from the standpoint of economy and from the common horse sense point of view as well, says the Twentieth Century Farmer.

The army supply of today is mainly made up of the unbroken western range horse. This is the best army horse in the world, but should go into the hands of the professional horse handler and trainer in order to develop his best value and greatest service.

The abuse of the range horse when first haltered and when the first efforts are exerted to subdue his wild nature and bring him under control are too often extremely damaging to the after life of the horse.

The work of training the wild range horse or breaking him, as the process is commonly termed, very often is simply abuse, a wearing out of the animal by vicious and cruel treatment. This, of course, is when the work is left to the ignorant, unskilled horseman. It no doubt accounts for so many unsafe horses, balkers and buckers, credited to the range stock.

A government horse training station, established in the western range horse country, where a competent and sufficient force of expert horse trainers could be provided with all the needed appliances and accommodations for carrying on this work skillfully and systematically, would result in a great saving to the government in the work of fitting and training these horses, as well as raising the standard in proficiency and service of the army horse in general.
