PORTLAND "COWBOY" IS CHAMPION BUSTER

The awarding of first place to Dick Stanley of Portland, Ore., in the world's championship broncho-busting contest here today, and the treatment of Ikusa Purdy and Archie Kaaua, the Hawaiians, who won first and third place in the steer roping contests, will carry with them to their island home the world's championship, has done more to overcome the feeling that outside ropers could not get a square deal in Cheyenne than anything else, says a Cheyenne item. For years the Cheyenne riders, or those living close to Cheyenne, have been awarded the championship, and often when outside riders were clearly entitled to the prize; but a transformation is in progress and the people of Cheyenne are determined to give outsiders the same chance to win that is accorded local men.

This spirit was manifested in the stand today, when the Judges insisted upon Dick Stanley riding again and again against Clayton Danks, although the Portland man clearly outpointed the Cheyenne rider, by riding "Old Steamboat" to a finish, and scratched him at every jump, whereas Danks rode the veteran outlaw with his spurs set firmly in the cinches. Stanley had been giving exhibitions of fancy riding in front of the grand stand, and was worn out before he entered the bucking contest, but he gamely hung on and rode "Beaver" to a finish after he had subdued "Old Steamboat."

To Stanley belongs the honor of being the first man who ever scratched "Old Steamboat" and remained on his back, for the best riders in the country have failed to stick and scratch the outlaw.

The Portland man weighs less than 120 pounds, and not only rode straight up, but rode part of the time with his feet out of the stirrups and his spurs dragging back and forth across "Old Steamboat's" sides.

Again and again the vicious outlaw attempted to throw him, trying every jump, twist and turn he knew, but finally decided that he had met his master, for Stanley only smiled and whipped and spurred the harder.

Hoboes Are Deported.

Last night Chief Waldon and the night officers rounded up 22 hoboes and loaded them into a box car and deported them, says a La Grande item.

Each and every hobo received personal instructions to stay in that particular car until they had placed a respectable distance between them and the city of La Grande.

Chief Waldon states that this is not an uncommon procedure on the part of the officers. He says the Weary Willies keep out of sight during the daytime and in the evening begin to show up in the alleys and residence portion of the city. Then the officers take a hand and the alley creepers receive notification to leave town.

Potato Famine in Astoria.

There is a potato famine here and the man with the spuds should be happy, says an Astoria item. It is difficult now to meet the demand, yet the price has moved up from one cent to 2 cents a pound.

People are unable to account for the short supply on any other theory than that interest has centered in fruit growing and other lines this year to a greater degree than has been the case in the past, with the result that the potato acreage has been greatly lessened.

There is also a scarcity of melons this year. Statement is made that there is not one melon this year where a carload was available last year.

Gardeners have received a fine price for all classes of garden truck and the year has been a very prosperous one in that line.

Big Wheat Sales in La Grande.

Saturday was the biggest day of the season as far as wheat sales are concerned. The total transactions for the day are placed at 50,000 bushels, says the La Grande Observer.

One deal which helped to make the day a record breaker was the disposal of one lot of 35,000 bushels by A. B. Conney, the "wheat king," to the Island City Pioneer Mill company.

Most of the buying yesterday was done by the mills, although the warehouses along the Elgin branch took in a fair share of the grain offered.

The prices remain about the same as the last quotations given as the local market figures. This is a variable proposition, depending on the grade, quantity and other circumstances. The present price ranges from 72 to 76 cents per bushel.

The statistics of exportations from the United States to Germany for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, show a value of $276,910,223, against $256,595,663 in 1907. The increase in raw cotton was $13,955,443 and of wheat $8,081,974. The imports from Germany for the fiscal year 1908 aggregated $142,935,547, against $151,543,556 in 1907.

C. S. JACKSON TELLS OF CRATER LAKE

"Crater lake is the world's greatest natural wonder, and can be made Oregon's greatest attraction. Thirty thousand tourists from all parts of the world can be brought to Oregon annually to view this most picturesque and beautiful wonder spot," said Colonel C. S. Jackson, publisher of the Portland Journal, who spent the day in Medford with Mrs. Jackson on returning from a visit to the lake, says the Medford Tribune.

"What is needed to attract this travel is a good auto road, wide enough for teams to pass," continued Colonel Jackson. "The state of Oregon should aid in the building. The road will probably cost $150,000 to the forest reserve and the government can be depended upon to do its share in its reservation and park."

"The road should run from Medford to Klamath, and it should be made possible for tourists to come in one way and go out the other, a five-hour trip from Medford to the lake."

"No other way can be desirable a class of people be brought to Oregon as by making the Crater lake trip worth while. Millions of dollars will be left annually in the state by it, and it is as much to Portland's interest as any other section to help the work along."

"Medford, Jackson county, and Klamath Falls and Klamath county, and the entire state are equally interested in this highway and all together should provide the funds.

"I intend to bring the matter before the Good Roads association meeting in Portland next week and will endeavor to have the association concentrate its efforts upon building the first of the proposed state roads to the lake. I am willing to do all in my power to help advance the proposition, for I think the state has a fortune in this lake."

Medford and Jackson county should organize at once to build this road. City, county and state should work together and begin work at once."

Colonel and Mrs. Jackson were taken to Jacksonville and given a ride through other parts of the valley by Mayor Reddy. Both are enthusiastic over the lake and over the Rogue River valley and its future.
