CAN ALLEGED AMATEUR ATHLETES PLAY?

Whether the colleges of the north west will stand by the agreement to disbar from participation in their sports all athletes who violated the rules governing amateur athletes which they entered into at the conference held here last fall will soon be known, says the Walla Walla Bulletin.

Should all prove loyal to their pledge it will mean that valuable athletes from at least six colleges must be disbanded from further competition on the grounds of professionalism. The following, clipped from the Oregon Daily Journal, gives somewhat of an idea of the effect it will have on the different schools:

Within the next three weeks it will be known whether or not the northwestern colleges intend living up to the conference rules adopted at Walla Walla last fall.

So far as is known locally, there are offenders from Whitman, Idaho, Washington State, Oregon Agricultural, and Oregon University. Whitman, the originator of the conference idea, has already declared that three of her crack athletes, including the captain of her football team, must go. This will be a hard blow to the missionaries, and one from which the team may not recover.

Oregon Collegians Offend. The frankness of Whitman should be extolled. It would not be justice to the northern colleges to try and cover up the delinquencies of the Oregon institutions. Both the state university and O. A. C. have athletes who have played summer professional baseball.

Curtis Coleman, the first varsity end, disregarded the rules this summer and played baseball with the Salem team of the Tri-City league, a semi-professional organization. Whether or not he received any consideration is not the question. He played with professionals and that is tantamount to professionalism himself according to the A. A. U. If Oregon permits Coleman to play on the football squad this fall or the baseball nine next spring, it will be a direct violation of the conference rules.

Perhaps more than one baseball spectator at the Tri-City league games wondered at the identity of a spectacular catcher going under the name of Ruple. He was none other than the clever Otto Moore, crack backstop of the Oregon Agricultural college. Moore played with St. Johns. He did not wait until the college season had closed, but came to Portland every Sunday to play with his semi-pro teammates. His work with the Angies was largely responsible for bridging the college championship to that place.

Whitman's disqualified athletes are Walter Brubaker, the heady quarterback and captain of the football squad, who played summer baseball, and Stanley and Vincent Borleske, brothers, who were members of the semi-professional baseball teams in the inland empire during the summer.

Washington State college's offenders are Vaughn Jones and Frank Brown, two excellent baseball players. Idaho's man who violated the amateur rules is Captain McGee of last season's baseball team. These are the ones known to the conference authorities.

Whether or not the University of Washington can present a clean slate is not yet established. If such is the case the fact will be quite a feather in the cap of the evergreen college. In the past Washington's athletes have not been wholly above reproach and the reports from Seattle this year will be watched with considerable interest.

PURE FOOD FOR SOLDIERS.

Supplies to Be Tested for Purity Before Purchasing.

Samples of potatoes and onions were spread out before Major H. J. Gallagher, in charge of the United States army purchasing commissary, at Seattle, the other day, by bidders who wish to furnish soldiers stationed at North Alaskan posts with those vegetables for the next eight or nine months. There are nearly 1000 soldiers in extreme northern posts and these will be fed 237,000 pounds of potatoes and 37,800 pounds of onions before navigation opens next July. Major Gallagher will award the contract for the shipment, to be made before ice bars the way of vessels.

The most careful inspection of all food samples is made, even to the extent of chemical analysis before contracts are awarded, and another inspection is made of supplies before shipment to the posts. The care taken to assure the best and most wholesome food for the soldiers does not end even at the second inspection, for observation is kept of each product as it is consumed to ascertain if there be complaint or dissatisfaction.

The purchasing commissary is equipped with a complete laboratory and to this Major Gallagher resorts if a slight suspicion rests upon any food product. The administration of the office also requires an expert knowledge of all vegetables, their value as foods, and the relative nutriment afforded by the hundreds of varieties.

Major Gallagher cut a potato in half, and as he rubbed the two pieces together, observing the result, said: "We try to give the soldiers the best of everything. Awards are not always made to the lowest bidders. We take into consideration the quality, and no poor food is purchased under any circumstances. Since the passage of the national pure food law, our work has been greatly facilitated. For instance, here is a bottle of catsup. The label shows the exact amount of preservative. If that label is not correct, the manufacturer can be sent to the penitentiary. I would not hesitate to report any such violation of the law."

"The food purchased for the army stores, where officers buy their supplies, is the best the market affords. These cost the government nothing, for the money expended is returned as officers make their purchases. Neither profit nor loss is made on the stores, the department calculating on coming out exact even."

LUMBERMEN PROTEST.

Don't Like Decision of Commerce Commission.

The long looked for decision of the interstate commerce commission on the cases of vital importance to the lumber shippers of the west has at last been announced. At the first glance local shippers feel that they have been handed a lemon.

The decision boiled down as interpreted by local shippers is that the interstate commerce commission has told the railroads that they may increase the rates on lighter materials than fir to an amount not to exceed 16 cents a hundred more to ship over the same distance than fir. Heretofore no distinction has been made on materials or efforts made on the part of the railroad to grade lumber.

The following dispatch outlining the decision was received today through the Associated Press:

Washington, Sept. 4--In the case of the Pacific Coast Lumber Manufacturers, the St. Paul & Tacoma Lumber company and numerous other concerns, against the Northern Pacific and 19 other railroads, also the case of the Southwest Washington Lumber Manufacturers' association against the Northwestern, Burlington and other roads, and the Oregon and Washington Lumber Manufacturers' association, the Eastern and Western Lumber company and nine other lumber concerns against the Union Pacific, Oregon Short Line and eight other lines, the interstate commerce commission has authorized the railroads to establish differentials not exceeding 16 cents per 100 pounds above the rates on fir lumber between the same points.

This authority is with the provision that no such differentials or a differential of less than 10 cents existed prior to November 1 last, and that differentials prescribed in the case of the Potlatch Lumber company and others against the Northern Pacific and other carriers must be observed. The commission says that this permission does not constitute sanction for the indorsement of the establishment of higher rates for a shorter haul than for a longer haul in the same direction, when the shorter is included within the longer.

WANT POWER LIMITED.

Advertising Men Think Postmaster General Has Too Much Latitude.

An effort to obtain a law through which the power of the postmaster general in issuing fraud orders against publications may be curtailed is to be made at the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, being held this week in Kansas City.

The clubs believe it dangerous to the rights, liberties and property interests of the people and business community to place in the hands of the postmaster general the power to issue fraud orders on evidence "satisfactory to him" or to exclude a publication from second-class mail privileges after it has once been admitted thereto.

They argue that such power makes it possible for him through mistake or otherwise to ruin the business of a person, firm or corporation and tends to enable him to curtail the liberty of the press.

A resolution will be offered asking that the power now reposed in the postmaster general be taken from him and vested in the federal courts and that the law be so framed as to require that neither the use of the mails nor the second-class mail privileges be taken away until a hearing has been accorded the person affected.

Gathering Timber for the Fair.

W. H. Wehrung of Hillsboro and M. D. Wisdom of Portland, president and secretary of the Oregon state commission for the A-Y-P. exposition and directors of the Country Club and Livestock association, left for Coos bay this morning, says the Oregon Daily Journal. They will kill two birds with one stone while in that country. From their long affiliation with the state board of board of agriculture and their important work in developing the harness race game in the northwest their invasion of Coos bay has interest at this time because they hope to secure a strong representation of the fast horses as well as of the livestock shown at the fair now in progress there at the north Pacific race and stock meet here four weeks hence.
