MISS BARKER IS COUNTRY MOUSE

ECHO TEACHER RETURNS FROM EASTERN TRIP

Likes the Sage Brush Best—Successful Contestant Tells of Trip Through East in Advertising Umatilla County—Found Great Interest in Western Country.

Eastern cities have but few attractions for Miss Beulah Barker of Echo, as against the sage brush country of the west end of Umatilla county, and that young lady, who is visiting Pendleton friends after an extended trip through the east as the representative of this county in the trip given by Phillip S. Bates of the Pacific Northwest as a reward for subscription efforts for that magazine, declared this morning that she was perfectly contented to remain a country mouse.

As the young lady had the misfortune to see one man killed and another horribly mangled by street cars in New York city, she hesitates to consider herself "city broke" and frankly admits that her western spirit is likely to shy at the cars. Miss Barker and her companions visited Salt Lake city, Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis, Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, New York, Niagara Falls, Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, swinging around the circle will all the ardor of a presidential candidate. In each of the places the young lady distributed such literature regarding Umatilla county as she was supplied with—mostly regarding the irrigated districts of the west end. She found a great interest in the west among eastern people, but was convinced that Oregon did not receive the credit due. Miss Barker has the highest praise for her trip, and her treatment among the eastern people. She regrets that inability to secure a greater portion of literature regarding her home county prevented a wider dissemination of its possibilities at the points included in her trip. Although a visitor in the heart of Yankee land, Miss Barker found eastern astuteness most marked in her visit at Washington, D. C. In that city the guide pointed out to the party the house which William Howard Taft would occupy next year. In order not to offend any political prejudices that worthy also exhibited to the home which would house William Jennings Bryan. Neither edifice was the White House, which leads Miss Barker to think that Chafin may be the winner.

HARRIMAN FEARS FOR OLD GENERAL APATHY.

New York, Sept. 15.—That old General Apathy will take a hand in the present campaign and that republican success will be endangered thereby is the fear of E. H. Harriman expressed today when the railroad magnate declared that he had found but slight interest in the political situation during his visit in the west. Harriman with usual willingness turned the subject to politics when asked about the rumors of the formation of a new holding company for Southern Pacific.

RESIDENT KERR HAS GREAT WORK

O. A. C. GROWING FAST EXPECT 1400 THIS YEAR.

Is Director State Experiment Station Which Does Work of Great Value to Agricultural and Horticultural Interests—School Has Grown Beyond Accommodations, Making New Buildings Now Imperative.

One of the most important positions in the state is that held by President W. J. Kerr of the Oregon Agricultural college, who was here Saturday and Sunday with the experiment station party. As president of O. A. C. Dr. Kerr is the head of the largest educational institution in the state and in the opinion of many the most important. The value of the experiment station work, which he directs, cannot be overestimated.

Though the courses at O. A. C. are not as high, along literary and classical lines as those at the university, they are more practical. Aside from supplying students with a general education the courses also gives them special training so that upon graduation students may commence actual work in such lines as civil, electrical and mechanical engineering, agriculture, pharmacy, business and for numerous positions in the government service, especially with the department of agriculture.

In view of these things and the large number of students in the school, President Kerr is virtually the leader of those who in later years are to constitute the industrial and business life of the state.

Last year the enrollment at O. A. C. was slightly over 1100, and this year President Kerr is expecting an attendance of between 1200 and 1400. Should the attendance increase at the rate it has been increasing during the past few years the enrollment will shortly reach the 2000 mark.

New Buildings Needed. As a result of the great growth O. A. C. has undergone the present buildings have become inadequate and the regents are now wondering how to accommodate the throng. The present administration building is regarded as entirely too small and the college chapel, where student assemblies should be held, is able to hold only one-third of the students. Consequently assembly is held once each week in the armory which has to be fitted out with temporary seats each time. The armory itself is large enough only for one-third the cadet regiment.

But while new buildings are imperative and an appropriation will be asked of the legislature this winter, President Kerr says that it will be the policy of the school to be conservative in its requests. Accordingly it will ask only for what is absolutely essential and rely upon securing further appropriations in the future. The Experiment Station. The state experiment station is operated in conjunction with the college by an experiment station board of which the president is director. Most of the science men in the faculty are members of the board and aid in its work. However, their salaries are not paid from the experiment station fund. An annual sum is paid by the United States government for maintaining the station, which does a vast amount of work, informing the farmers and orchardists concerning the same by means of bulletins.

Colgate denied that his visit had any direct significance in such a connection, but admitted the possibility of such a move. The banker said, "I will admit that this trip is not made for pleasure only. I am not in any way connected with Hill, but if he builds the proposed line it is quite possible that my firm will furnish some of the money."
