ACCUSED MEN TO PLEAD TOMORROW

FURTHER INDICTMENTS IN BUT NOT DIVULGED

James C. Ireland on Trial Today for Stealing Team from Athena Livery Stable—Ferguson Prosecutes; Dan P. Smythe Defends—Case Nearly Ready for Jury.

Appearing by counsel in the circuit court this afternoon, the men recently indicted by the grand jury for breaking the prohibition law asked to be given until tomorrow morning to plead. Their request was granted and unless a further delay occurs they will plead before Judge Bean in the morning.

Further indictments were brought in by the grand jury today, but nothing regarding the cases has been yet made public.

Ireland on Trial.

Practically the entire day has been taken up with the trial of James C. Ireland, who is accused of having stolen a team from the McBride stable at Athena.

Ireland is being defended by Attorney Dan P. Smythe, while C. J. Ferguson is prosecuting. The state completed its case this forenoon and for the defense Ireland himself was upon the stand this afternoon as his own chief witness.

From all appearances the case will go to the jury this afternoon.

HIGH SCHOOL CLASSES ELECT OFFICERS FOR THE YEAR

At a class meeting held yesterday afternoon two of the high school classes elected corps of officers for this year.

At the senior class meeting Alfred Euster was chosen as president; Miss Gertrude Jordan as secretary and Miss Cora Warner as class reporter.

It has been young Euster's intention to leave the school when his family moves to Portland, but his class friends are hopeful that he will not do so. He is also a member of the football team and if he leaves he will be missed by his gridiron associates.

At the junior class election held yesterday officers were chosen as follows: Harvey McMill, president; Roy Rowland, vice president; Brook Dickson, secretary and treasurer; and Miss Edith Slater, class reporter.

The junior class this year is unusually strong both in number and in the character of its members. There are 45 juniors enrolled this year and among the number are some of the most influential in the school.

At the meeting yesterday it was decided to give a class play some time this year and the production will be "The College Widow," George Ade's clever comedy.

Pioneer Day a Success.

Yesterday afternoon's program was of especial interest to the large number of pioneers who were present. Though the address delivered by Hon. J. D. Lee was more than ordinary, the talk by Colonel J. H. Riley on "Reminiscences" dealing as it did with the early history of Pendleton and vicinity, was perhaps of more interest to the people of this city. After paying a high tribute to the stirring worth of the early pioneer, the colonel told of the wonderful transformation which has been worked out in Pendleton and Umatilla county since he first came here in 1862.

Addison Bennett, who address on "Fruit," had been carried over from the day before also delivered his hearers, as usual.

Made Harness for 65 Years.

On this afternoon's Northern Pacific train there arrived Mr. and Mrs. William Hamley of Kendrick, Idaho, parents of J. J. Hamley of the Hamley harness store, whose guests they will be for some time.
