FATAL BATTLE IN MOUNTAINS

Body is Found at Summit of Blue Mountains Showing Signs of Fatal Quarrel.

THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN MOVING PICTURE TAKERS

Boy Finds Body of Murdered Man at Summit of Blue Mountains—First Discovers Several Days—Body of Murdered Man Found Near—Thought to Have Been One of a Party of Moving Picture Men Traveling Through Mountains—Details Are Meager—Authorities Investigating.

That two men battled to the death on the summit of the Blue mountains between Pilot Rock and Starkey prairie is evidenced by the finding of the body of one of the men yesterday. His name is not known, but he is believed to be one of two men who were traveling through the country for the purpose of taking moving picture machine photographs and was probably killed Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday morning.

The two men left Pendleton Monday morning. They had a double rig and a single horse and buggy. When they reached the Judge Gilliland place on Stewart creek, at the foot of the mountain, they employed Lewis Gilliland to help them to the top of the mountain. When they reached the top Gilliland left them and they started on. They evidently continued their journey until they reached the timber, the road running along the summit of the mountain for a considerable distance. In the edge of the timber is located a spring and the "Old Knotts Corral." Here is where they are supposed to have camped and where the tragedy is supposed to have been enacted, though the details received in Pendleton are very meagre.

Boy Finds Body. Yesterday the team and double hack were found by Roy Jennings. As the horses showed evidence of having been tied up for several days he made an investigation and soon located the dead body of one of the men. By its side was a pick and shovel. The other man, together with the single rig, was missing.

Without making a further investigation he hurried to the nearest telephone, which was at the Schafer ranch on Stewart creek, and notified Coroner Folsom, he did not even look to ascertain how the man was killed. Deputy Sheriff Joe Blakeley and Coroner Folsom left for the scene about 8:20 last evening and it is expected that they will return to Pendleton with the body some time this evening. Until they do or can reach a telephone, no further details will be obtainable.

Men Were Quarreling. That the dead man was killed by his companion as the result of a quarrel is believed by local officers. According to Lewis Gilliland the two men were quarreling all the way up the mountain and he is of the opinion that the man who acted as "boss" in the slayer, as he was the aggressor in the quarreling.

Thinking that the fellow headed for La Grande, after killing his companion, the local officers notified the Union county sheriff by phone last evening. As the crime was committed earlier in the week, he would have plenty of time to reach the railroad and get out of the country.

Sheriff Taylor and Deputy Sheriff Bert Wilson will return this evening from Salem and Portland and will at once take up the trail of the murderer.

Crime in Union County. In a telephone conversation this afternoon between Judge Gilliland and his son, it was learned that the crime was committed in Union county. Young Gilliland says the body of the murdered man was found about two miles this side of Starkey prairie, which means that it was near the foot of the mountains and on the other side from the Umatilla county line.

FINES AND PRISON TERMS FOR FENCERS

Portland, May 1.—"Finis" is being inscribed in the annals of the Butte Creek Livestock, Land & Lumber company, in the federal court. The net of government prosecution is closing around the members of the organization, convicted of conspiring for the fraudulent occupation of 20,000 acres of the public domain in Wheeler county.

Hamilton H. Hendricks, secretary and treasurer of the company, convicted of subornation of perjury, was sentenced to 13 months' imprisonment on McNeil's Island, also to pay a fine of $500. On a conspiracy charge to which Hendricks had pleaded guilty a $100 fine was imposed. Winlock W. Steiwer, president of the company, convicted of conspiracy, was fined $2500 by Judge Hunt.

Evidence Against Hall. Evidence produced a the former trial of Mr. Hall tended to establish that as United States district attorney, he had protected members of the Butte Creek Livestock, Land & Lumber company in their conspiracy to fence 20,000 acres of land in Wheeler county, having been assured that President Steiwer of the company, who at that time in 1901, was state senator, could be induced to vote for George W. McBride as United States senator, rather than for Senator Senator Joseph Simon, of whom Steiwer had been up to that time an ardent supporter.

In imposing sentence upon Hendricks Judge Hunt stated that he had much respect for Hendricks' evident intelligence, and that even if Hendricks could still serve a prison sentence he could still come out and begin all over again with bright prospects. Hendricks asked for a day's delay in the execution of sentence that he might confer with his attorneys with a view to appealing the case, and this delay was granted.

Judge Hunt stated in connection with his sentence of Winlock W. Steiwer that he considered the crime of conspiring to fence the public domain equal to an aggravated case of fencing itself, and that he was inclined to impose sentence in accordance with this view.

BIG MORTGAGE BOND IS FILED

IN INTEREST OF WESTERN LAND & IRRIGATION CO.

Record Mortgages Bonds Are Filed in Interest of the Big Irrigation Project in the West End—Will Enable Promoters to Float Bonds for Their Scheme—President of the Promoting Company Has Had Much Experience in the East.

A mortgage bond in the sum of $175,000 was placed on record at the court house yesterday. Or rather it is being placed on record, the document being so large that it will require the greater part of three days to put it into the big book. The mortgage is on the project of the Western Land & Irrigation company and is to enable the promoters to float bonds in the east to secure funds to develop and pay for the project in the west end.

J. W. Messner, president of the company, and the man to whom will fall the lot of raising the money necessary to carry the project to a successful conclusion was formerly from Michigan and he appends no difficulty in securing all the money necessary. During the past few years he has been located at Baker City and has been actively engaged in the development of the Powder river valley.

The condition of the company's ditch which is the old Hinkle ditch improved and enlarged, is very satisfactory, as is also everything in connection with the project. Mr. Messner will therefore be able to make a good showing when he goes out to sell the bonds, especially since the project is generally regarded as one of the most promising in the northwest.

SAY THEY HAVE LOW PASS THROUGH CASCADES

Hurlburt, Who is Re-elected Civil Engineer, Tells About Low Pass Discovered Through Cascades—Says Grade Would not be Greater Than One Per Cent—Thought to be Unknown to Harriman—Woods Says that if Railroads Wont Build People Should—Town of Weiser is Taxed by the Large Attendance.

Weiser, Ida., May 1.—At the morning session of the Idaho-Oregon Development congress, H. A. Hurlburt was re-elected civil engineer and created enthusiasm by his address. He said there was a pass through the Cascades, permitting railroad construction on one per cent grade from the plateau of central Oregon to Coos Bay. The pass is believed to be unknown to Harriman. Delegates from all parts of Oregon continue to arrive, taxing the capacity of Weiser. A thousand attended the meeting last night.

Col. Wood Speaks. Col. C. E. Wood of Portland, spoke on "The railroad situation in southern Oregon." He explained the position of his company on the Malheur irrigation project which was of great interest to eastern Oregon. His company signed the petition asking the government reclamation service to take up the project and are bound to stay with the agreement if the government will go on. Personally he believed it more satisfactory to do business with a private enterprise proposing to irrigate the land under the Carey act, as it affords better protection to land owners and water users for the reason that it is protected by bond when doing business with private corporations.

He said if a combination existed among railroads not to build roads it was up to the people to do it.

Low Pass Overcomes Obstacle. Hurlburt said the pass was so sensibly timbered that footway would have to be cut through. Hurlburt's information would overcome a great obstacle.

State Senator Carl Davis, of Idaho, explained the features of the new Idaho district law, how to take advantage of the provisions and announced that the law would be effective May 6, when the people could proceed with preliminary steps of organizing a district.
