UMATILLA COUNTY'S POSSIBILITIES

Upper McKay Creek Section Compared to California —Is Especially Adapted to Peach Orchards.

McKay, Ore., June 5.—In the fall of '95 the writer visited the mountainous country east of Sacramento, Cal. This is a section known as "around Auburn." These once useless mountain sides or foothills were then covered with orange groves. Not one here and there, but miles of them adding to California's fame and the owner's pocket book.

And here in Umatilla county is a great, undeveloped field similar in character to California. True, it will not grow oranges, but it will peaches nearly if not every year. The soil is black and rich. You will find some pine trees that will pay for the clearing of the land in cordwood. Also, black brush in abundance, but by plowing deep and harrowing well this can be subdued in one year. Plant potatoes and cultivate much the first year. After the potatoes are removed you may set out your strawberries or other small fruit. Place the apple, pear or peach trees in the same rows, and as your trees come to bearing remove the berries.

Berries from this section are unusually large and luscious, and do not come on the market until after those from other sections are gone, thus meeting with no competition and commanding a good price.

The land needs no irrigation, as many showers fall during the season. Last week showers fell on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and again on Tuesday of this week. No dust storms fill the nostrils or try the patience of the housewife. The streams do not go dry in the summer, and abound with trout. Grouse are abundant and there are many pheasants on the creek bottoms. Near the writer's "shack" are three grouse settings—the farther one not over 150 yards away. The "hoot, hoot" of the males has been a constant reminder of the baked grouse to come.

And where is this wonderland? Right at your doors. Nearly every Northsider sees it every day, and one who will take the trouble to visit the reservoir on the south hill may view the "green hills far away. For to the south, southeast and southwest of Pendleton are the foothills of the Blue mountains, where in every canyon lurks a small fortune for the energetic man who is filled with the determination to dig it out.

At the Third District Fair two years ago Pilot Rock astounded Umatilla county with her display of fruit. A large portion of it came from the foothills nearby.

On September 3, 1907, an unusual frost killed all the garden truck in and around Pendleton, yet on the 23rd of the month, or 26 days later, tomatoes were ripening in a canyon on the south fork of McKay creek that were planted on the 18th day of June. (Where tomatoes will ripen, peaches will.) The reason for the late planting was the owner's first garden on the creek bottom was washed out, and the plants on the other high in the canyon to avoid a repetition of his troubles.

It is hard for Pendleton people to believe that frost does not fall in the foothill canyons until a month or more after it does there, when they can see the early snows on the mountain tops. But it is true, nevertheless. It is probable that the warm atmosphere from the reservation is drawn up through the canyons during the night by the cooler air on the mountain tops, thus keeping off the frost.

This land can be purchased for less money than any other highly productive land in the county. In many localities at the present time the settlers are anxious for more neighbors with families that they may have better schools, and will dispose of these choice tracts at low prices. In a few years the productiveness of these lands will be generally known and then the price will soar beyond the reach of the poor man.

Senator Lorimer of Illinois

The breaking of the dead-lock in the Illinois legislature and the election of William Lorimer, to succeed Senator Albert J. Hopkins, brings a unique figure to the upper house.

Lorimer has made a meteoric career. Twenty odd years ago he worked as a common laborer in the great Chicago packing houses. Here he entered the field of politics. Abandoning work in the packing houses, Lorimer entered business as a contractor, where his politics helped him. At one time he was a conductor with the Chicago street railroad company. He has won and lost large sums of money in business and on the stock market, but still retains a comfortable fortune.

Nine long after his entry into politics, Lorimer became the acknowledged republican boss of Chicago. His leadership suffered an eclipse five years ago, when he opposed Deeney's nomination for Governor of Illinois and lost. He has often been charged with playing in with the democrats during the political career, but nevertheless has always bulked large in republican politics in his state.

He has served twelve years as a member of congress, and was re-elected last November for two years more.

The new senator is a clunky, rather short man, with drooping eyelids and a mass straw-colored hair. He has a family of eight children—mostly girls. Lorimer is reserved in his manner, even-tempered and does not smoke, drink or swear.

FIFTEEN INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK

Cottage Grove, Ore., June 7.—By the collapse of the bridge over Rowe river, five miles from here on the Oregon & Southeastern railroad, a train consisting of an engine, tender, passenger coach and some flatcars loaded with lumber was wrecked on Saturday, only the engine remaining on the track. Fifteen persons were injured, nearly all seriously, and Engineer Ostrander, who stuck to his post and prevented the engine from rolling back onto the wrecked cars, may die of his injuries. His chest is badly crushed and he is injured internally. The rear end passenger coach was submerged in water and it was with the greatest difficulty the injured were removed. Some of the less injured did heroic work in getting the injured out of the cars. They were assisted by people living near the scene and by persons who went from this place on a relief train which carried a number of doctors to the wreck. It was only after several hours' hard work that all the injured were taken from the cars.

Most of the injured are residents of Cottage Grove and vicinity. The most seriously injured:

William Ostrander, engineer, chest crushed, ribs broken and injured internally, will die; F. A. Hall, lumber buyer, leg broken; Price Rogers, leg broken; L. Haney, hip broken; J. B. Protzman, head and legs cut badly; D. C. Bosley, head cut; Mrs. Garrouite, back wrenched and bruised; Master Garrouite, head cut; Claude Klime, badly bruised. He was pulled out of the river by the Garrouite lad.

PORTLAND POKER PLAYERS FINED AT ASTORIA

Astoria, Ore.—M. M. Tuft, a well known timberman of Portland, and three traveling men of Portland, who gave their names as John Kennefick of 850 Belmont street; Paul C. Morton, 221 Tenth street, and Ray Lafferty, 89 Eighteenth street north, were arrested on an Astoria & Columbia train last night near this city on a charge of gambling. The four men were playing a friendly game of poker. It chanced that Deputy Sheriff McLean and Justice of the Peace Goodman, both of Astoria, were on the train, and the deputy sheriff "pulled" the game and took the four men off at Clifton.

Justice Goodman held an impromptu session of the court there and the men were each fined $20 and released upon payment. The sheriff's office now states that Justice Goodman had no right to take jurisdiction of the matter as he did, and an announcement is made that the four men will be apprehended and held for the grand jury.

The lid is on here tight. Never in its history has Astoria been so orderly as now. Last night two Chinamen were arrested for playing fan tan.

SAYS COLLEGE "FRATS" ARE NESTS OF TROUBLE

Chicago.—Members of college fraternities were criticized in a lecture delivered in the Belden Avenue Baptist church by Professor James A. Reed, dean of the University of Michigan. Professor Reed said he believed fraternities were responsible for most of the poor scholarship and dissatisfaction among college students. He said that every student at Ann Arbor who had to be carried home in a cab at night or who became involved in any unpleasant incident proved to be a member of some fraternity.

"The men who hang around street corners and insult women in college towns are invariably fraternity men," he said.

He added that the members learned bad habits and a defiance of law that affected all their college life and that almost all of the students conditioned at college were fraternity students, while the non-fraternity men stood high in their classes. Despite the evil he saw in fraternities, the professor did not advocate their abolition. He said they needed to be brought under college control.

DETERMINE LIFE OF DEADENED TIMBER

Portland.—Chester B. Cox of the Portland office of the United States forest service left this city June 3 for Puget Sound points, where he will investigate deteriorating agencies which affect timber that has been killed by forest fires. This is one of the investigations recently begun by the forest service in the states of Oregon and Washington.

The timber land owner and the national government have for some time past been very much interested to know how long timber will remain commercially valuable after it has been swept over by a forest fire. The agencies which cause timber to decay and encourage the attack of wood borers are undoubtedly influenced to a greater or less degree by the intensity of the original fire and the climatic conditions and altitude of the burned areas. It is the purpose of the Portland office of the forest service to investigate a large number of fire areas in Oregon and Washington during the coming summer in order to determine if possible the length of time which will elapse after a forest fire before the timber deteriorates to such conditions as to decrease its commercial value.

All of the information in connection with this investigation will be obtained at first hand by forest service

DANCING PAVILION FOR PENDLETON

A summer dancing pavilion for Pendleton is the innovation promised by Prof. John Bloomfield, musical director at the Grand theatre. Prof. Bloomfield leased the Ireland rink building on west Webb street and if the proposition meets with sufficient encouragement he will give two dances a week in the big pavilion which will be fitted up very much as a summer garden.

Cozy corners and ice cream parlor booths, the latter under the management of the Delta, will be features of the arrangements. A five piece orchestra has been secured to furnish the music while the floor is being put in the best possible condition for dancing.

Courteous employees will be on hand to supply every want of the patrons of the place and it is proposed to make it as cool and attractive as possible. Dancing will commence at 8:30 and those who desire to trip the light fantastic until midnight, at which time the music and dancing will cease.

The feature of the decoration scheme will be the moonlight effect and the large number of African palms for which Prof. Bloomfield has been compelled to send east.

On Wednesday evening is to be the opening night and the success of the first night will largely determine whether or not the venture is to be made permanent. If the lovers of dancing show by their interest that they desire such an institution and Prof. Bloomfield proposes, he will continue it. If sufficient interest is not manifest he will abandon his plan.

DOWN AT THE LAKE SHORE AT THE ALASKA-YUKON-PACIFIC EXPOSITION.

The tracks of the Northern Pacific railroad, which run through the grounds of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, offered rather a problem to the engineers who had the laying out of the grounds. They finally overcame it by means of viaducts and subways, and the rustic bridge seen in the picture is one of the happy results. It leads from the heart of the grounds, near the pumping station, across the tracks to the banks of Lake Washington, which offer free the finest picnic grounds in the state. Here thousands of persons during the fair season will discuss their luncheons, parties of the sort being encouraged by the exposition management.

BEE SWARM ON PORTLAND BRIDGE

Portland.—About 1:30 Wednesday afternoon there was a swarm within a swarm which threatened for a time to block traffic at the west end of the Morrison street bridge, says the Telegram. The outer swarm was of curious human beings craning necks strenuously and eager to see, yet tentative about approaching too close. The inner swarm was a bona fide one of domestic bees, runaways from some unknown honey fancier.

Foreman J. H. Richmond of the Morrison bridge first noticed the bees when they appeared as a circling cloud high above the bridge beams. Pedestrians and teamsters, hearing the hum of the settling cloud, began to stop and look upward.

Here and there some one in the crowd embraced the opportunity to air his knowledge in bee culture. One man ran out of a nearby boathouse with a tin tub, upon which he beat lustily, and an excited pedestrian called for a garden hose with which he proposed to drench the bees into thinking a shower had come up. Foreman Richmond, however, having herded bees as a chore when a boy, gave instructions for the crowd to keep quiet, as the insects were already in the act of swarming, and hastily telephoned the Portland Seed company, from whence a man came running with hives for the housing of the runaways. The little honey gatherers meanwhile settled contentedly upon the big beams of the bridge, and without undue rebellion submitted to being hived.

Ranch Sells for $24,000.

Baker City.—Dr. O. M. Dodson returned Wednesday evening from Vale, Malheur county, after an absence of several days during which time he negotiated the sale of what is known as the old Gray estate of which Mrs. Dodson, a daughter of the deceased, is administrator.

The farm consists of 480 acres cultivated to alfalfa and grain, and brought $50 per acre.

Mrs. J. H. Hoskins, one of the contractors on the Northwest railroad was the purchaser.

The farm is situated on Willow creek, about 20 miles southwest of Huntington, and is one of the best in that locality.—Democrat.
