There is but one office in the city that is fittingly decorated for the big celebration tomorrow. That is the one occupied by Judge Fitz Gerald, the judge having with his own hands and with his own flags made that office take on a patriotic appearance.

In spite of the report that the famous red-haired Oregon sprinter was laid up with a sprained ankle and would not be able to race again, he has appeared once more ready for action, entering with the Multnomah club in the giant A. A. U. meet at the stadium of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition in August. Dan has announced that he will enter the broad jump. In this event, whatever the eastern critics may say about his sprinting ability, he is admitted to be one of the top-notchers of America. He easily won first place in the "broad" in the Jamestown meet and took second in the London Olympic games last year.

put up against the best men in the world on a straight track. Kelly fell down in his heat at the Jamestown exposition and since then he has never run again. He may be persuaded to
