MAKES WORK EASIER.

Pendleton People Are Pleased to How It Is Done.

It's pretty hard to attend to duties with a constantly aching back; With annoying urinary disorders, Doan's Kidney Pills make work easier.

They cure backache. They cure every kidney ill. T. M. Lacy, Elgin, Ore., says: "I have known the value of Doan's Kidney Pills for at least six years. At that time I first began their use, I was suffering severely from pains through my back and kidneys and was practically laid up. I was unable to get around but could not do any work. Stooping or lifting or any sudden move caused terrible pains to radiate through my body. Doan's Kidney Pills regulated the passages of the kidney secretions and benefited me in every way."

BIG SHEEP RANCH IS CROWDED OUT

OWNER PUTS BLAME UPON FORESTRY POLICY

Curtailing of Allotments Is Disastrous for Ranch—Starting With 40,000 Head, J. G. Edwards of Hay Creek Ranch, Has Had Number Reduced to 12,250.

The famous Hay Creek sheep ranch, located in eastern Oregon and one of the largest and best-known sheep ranches in the United States, has been forced out of business on account of the forestry bureau's policy of conserving the forest reserves, says the Portland Oregonian. J. G. Edwards, owner of the famous ranch of 27,000 acres, said yesterday that he had been forced to the wall by the government's policy and he had decided to cut up the big ranch and sell it.

Several years ago Mr. Edwards came to Oregon from Wyoming, where he had a range with 100,000 sheep, the largest in the country. He selected Hay creek as ideal for a sheep country, sold his Wyoming interests and started the big establishment in eastern Oregon. In 1906 he had 40,000 head of sheep, which he wintered on his 27,000-acre ranch and which he kept on the range in the government forest reserve in the summer months.

Range Allowance Cut. That year the forestry bureau, in its policy of conservation, cut Edwards' allowance of range to a territory sufficient for only 24,000 sheep. Mr. Edwards sold a large number of sheep and continued. In 1908 came another order for a 40 per cent cut, but this was fought hard by Mr. Edwards, who had it modified to 25 per cent in his range allotment and now that he can give range to only 12,250 head of sheep he has decided to retire from the business, asserting that unless the sheep business is carried on a gigantic scale, it cannot be a success.

"It is the government's policy right through which has forced me out of the game," said Mr. Edwards, at the Portland Hotel. "I cannot continue in business with this small bunch of sheep on the big ranch and now all I can do is to sell out."

Policy Is Criticized. Mr. Edwards believes that the forestry bureau policy is bad, not only for him but for the state and country at large. It could have no other effect, he said yesterday, than to drive great industries, such as he had built up in eastern Oregon, out of existence. He had created a ranch which had become famous the country over, was a model in every detail and one of the great producers of the state. There was no great expense to which he would not go to build up his line of sheep, he said, and he imported rams costing thousands of dollars and by systematic breeding produced a sheep which had wool from its nose to its hoofs, the only sheep of its kind in existence.

Recently, in anticipation of the death of his business in eastern Oregon, Mr. Edwards has been investing heavily in Portland real estate and in the last few months has made three purchases, aggregating $145,000. One of these purchases he made last week when he bought a quarter block on the corner of Grand avenue and Belmont street for $35,000.

NAVY TO ORDER INQUIRY.

Nebraska's Collision With Georgia

One of Mishap Series. Washington.—Unless Rear-Admiral Schroeder, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, appoints a court of inquiry into the collision Thursday of the battleships Georgia and Nebraska, off the Virginia capes, the navy department will do so as soon as the full reports of the accident arrive in Washington.

For weeks the Nebraska has been known as the unhappiest ship in the navy. Her latest trouble was linked with the name of Lieutenant U. S. Macey, formerly ordnance officer of that vessel, who, when the Nebraska made a wretched score in target practice wrote a letter to the navy department explaining that the low score was due to a practical state of mutiny aboard the ship.

Rear-Admiral Schroeder ordered a court martial of Lieutenant Macey, who was acquitted. He was transferred to the other hoods of the navy, the Texas, but was finally rescued from that ship and sent to Minneapolis as recruiting officer.

O. A. C. NOTES.

The Oregon Agricultural College exhibits at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition won the gold medal offered for the best educational exhibit. Grand prizes were also awarded to each of the seven departmental exhibits.

The Oregon Agricultural College winter short courses which commence on January 4, and continue for a period of six weeks, will be the most complete ever offered. Practical work in every line of agriculture, dairying, horticulture, domestic science and art, road building and business methods will be taught. An exceedingly strong staff of instructors will have charge of the work. The equipment for demonstration and experimental work is the most complete ever used at the college.

There are twelve literary societies with an average membership of thirty at the Oregon Agricultural College.

Six hundred and seventy men are drilling in the cadet regiments at the Oregon Agricultural College.

The Oregon Agricultural College now has two regiments and two regimental bands.

SUFFRAGISTS TRY ODD DEVICE TO WIN VOTES. New York, Dec. 10.—"Wax Works" designed to illustrate the beauties and utility of suffrage for women form one of the attractions at the Suffrage Fair, opened this afternoon at the Hotel Martha Washington. Forbes Robertson, the actor, who is a devoted adherent of the cause of votes for women, opened the exhibition. Young men and women personate the old favorites in Mrs. Jarley's collection of wax works, but when wound up perform in strange and unexpected ways designed to influence the beholder to become a suffragist.

The booths at the fair represent the countries and states where women vote, and there is a booth where the art of marking a ballot is taught—for a consideration. There is also a house built entirely of newspaper clippings bearing on woman suffrage.
