NEWSY NOTES OF ECHO

WELL KNOWN COUPLE MARRY IN WASHINGTON

A Longwell Starts New Residence—W. L. & I. Co. Repair Their Ditch.

(Special Correspondence.)
Echo, Dec. 15.—Cards were received today announcing the marriage of E. Clayton Fish to Miss Lulu May Flester of Washington, D. C., on Wednesday, December 8, at the residence of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Fish will be at home after January 1, 1910 at their farm four miles above Echo.

E. J. Murphy, manager of the Henrietta Milling and Grain company of Echo, is up from Portland. He is looking after the alfalfa meal mill and the general interests of the company here.

Work on the foundation of A. Longwell's new residence was begun today. Mr. Longwell intends to build a comfortable little $1200 bungalow on his lots west of Echo just across the Umatilla river. Mr. Longwell is manager of the Tum-a-lum Lumber company's business at this place, having come here two years ago direct from New York. Echo has improved and the business conditions are so favorable to an observer on the inside that Mr. Longwell felt justified in making this his home.

Sheriff T. D. Taylor was a visitor here yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Ross left tonight for Los Vegas, New Mexico, where they will spend the holidays with their daughter. They will return home soon after the first of the year.

Mrs. Hugh D. Smith left for Pendleton this evening on a short visit. Water Superintendent Foreland had a force of men making a few repairs on the city reservoir on the hill.

The Western Land & Irrigation company are making extensive repairs to their ditch. They have twenty four-horse Fresno teams scattered along the ditch from here to Butter creek, clearing out and strengthening the ditch banks for next season's irrigation. Walter Hinkle is the engineer in charge of the work.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Brown returned this morning from a business trip to Portland.

A MODERN MELODRAM.

Wealthy American Girl Works in Restaurant to Test Lover's Faith.

Paris.—The American colony is mystified by a romance of which an American girl is the heroine. It is whispered that the young woman is a member of a certain wealthy family. Her mother disapproved of her love for a titled Frenchman and forbade her marriage.

A few days ago a young woman, pretty and well dressed, but very melancholy, sought employment as a waitress in the Restaurant Wiber, near the Opera Comique. She spoke French excellently, but with an unmistakably foreign accent, and said very frankly she was an American. She said, too, that she was homeless, without friends or money, and that she would be industrious and perform her duties satisfactorily.

The girl was engaged and she showed great aptitude and earnestness. The table she served became popular because of her good looks and politeness.

After she had been at work a week an automobile drove up to the restaurant, and from the car an elderly woman entered the place and looked around. As soon as she saw the waitress she cried out in English: "At last I've found you. How could you do this?"

The girl began to weep, then fainted. The woman sought the proprietor and told him the waitress would leave his employ immediately. The girl revived and still weeping, drove away with the elderly woman in the auto.

The girl's friends say her mother broke off the match with the Frenchman because she suspected that the loved money rather than herself. It was to disprove this that the young woman tried to make her own living.

HOBBO HEN AND TRAMP ROOSTER TAKE LONG RIDE

Spokane, Wash.—Ed Choate, conductor of the Moscow train, found two hens and a rooster riding the rods when his string of cars pulled into Colfax Wednesday night. The car they were riding under contained wheat and had been picked up at Riverside. At the time the trainmen noticed the chickens at work eating grain at a record-breaking pace, but thought they had driven them all away.

The three tramps that stayed with the car were promptly stuffed into a bag the second time they were found and taken back to Riverside on the next train. The owner has been warned that the next time his chickens travel they will be confiscated to pay transportation charges.

LA GRANDE IRRIGATIONISTS GROWING ENTHUSIASTIC

In spite of the unfavorable weather yesterday the meeting to discuss the irrigation question as put forth by the Meadowbrook project was very well attended, says the Sunday La Grande Star. A very large number of the land owners of the valley braved the storm to participate in the meeting. The main object of the gathering was to have a full and free discussion of the matter from all sides and phases of the case. Those who had objections were allowed full expression as to their objections and a large number of the land owners who live in the district east of La Grande were heard on the subject. Judge T. H. Crawford set forth the irrigation company's side of the case. It was stated that the form of contract was thought to be as nearly equitable as could be devised, although the company was willing to accept revisions that might more fairly meet the conditions.

SURGEONS KNIFE CURE FOR KLEPTOMANIA

St. Paul, Minn.—A surgical operation for the cure of a case of kleptomania has proved by its results that Miss Jeannette Mitchell, daughter of William K. Mitchell, 4935 Washington Park court, is not of a criminal nature, according to testimony given by her father, says a dispatch from Chicago to the Pioneer Press.

A detective for a State street department store had charged Miss Mitchell with presenting stolen goods to the value of $14,771 for refund of money. The case was continued after Miss Mitchell's arrest and preliminary hearing November 5.

Miss Mitchell did not appear in court when the case was called again. Her father was her only representative. He admitted that his daughter while in an unbalanced condition of mind, had obtained valuable goods at the store, and that a year ago she had procured goods by having them charged to the account of other persons.

That the case was one of kleptomania the father urged when the girl was brought into court a month ago. On the advice of Miss Mitchell's uncle Dr. A. G. Ochsner of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, she underwent an operation three weeks ago.

Dr. Ochsner believes that the operation has resulted in curing his niece of her propensity. The girl's father, with the assent of the department store's representative, asked Judge Fiske to place her in the care of Dr. Ochsner, that she might take further treatment. Mr. Mitchell refused to discuss the nature of the operation.

WOMAN CLAIMS SHE CAN RESTORE LIFE

Boston.—In the presence of prominent Boston physicians, Dr. Louise G. Roblnovitch of New York and Paris, electrocuted a Belgian hare, and after the animal had been dead for some moments restored it to life by means of electricity.

"I am sure," she said, "that I could take any of those people who are electrocuted at Auburn in New York State, or in any other prison, and resuscitate him as I have this animal."

She resuscitated the dead hare by removing the cathode from his head and affixing it over the respiratory organs and heart, and the anode over the joints.

Prior to electrocuting the Belgian hare and restoring it to life, she produced anaesthesia in a white rabbit by means of electricity, such perfect anaesthesia, she claims, as cannot be produced by ether or chloroform, with the added advantage that there are no after effects. When the current was shut off the animal became wide awake at once.
