LITTLE PROBABILITY OF NEW YEARS GAME

COLLEGE STARS BARRED BY ELIGIBILITY RULES

Enthusiasm Wanes in Both Pendleton and Baker By Announcement—Old Veterans Still Willing—Carlisle Indian Would Don Moleskin Again.

Numerous inquiries are being made about the much-heralded football game in which the numerous stars of this city were to re-establish name and fame. Manager Steiwer declares that enthusiasm is on the wane owing to the fact that the college gladiators upon whom both Pendleton and Baker have relied for a nucleus are barred from participating in vacation games by the new eligibility rules. This bars Baker, Storie, Scott, Gilbert and Fee from representing this city, while Baker loses Enderberg, Dodson, Gilles and Kellogg.

these losses, there are still enough veterans of bygone glory lurking about the woods to make up formidable teams, and these old scintillants of other days are still anxious to don the moleskins.

All hope of securing a game with either Multnomah or The Dalles has vanished, but it would take but little inducement to make Baker sign for a New Year's game.

Manager Steiwer says the only thing that has stayed his fast-ebbing enthusiasm is the news that a 220-pound buck Indian on the Umatilla reservation, with a five syllable name, and a Carlisle reputation, is desirous of once more chasing the pigskin spheroid. In fact so enthusiastic has he become that he has sent word in to the attorney-manager to send him out a football so that he can practice up a bit.

This is the situation summed up, and if long discussed plans are to materialize there will have to be "something doing" very suddenly.

James Sturgis and Cress Sturgis, both students at the university of Washington have arrived from Seattle and will spend the holidays at their home in Pendleton.
