GRAND JURY PROBES CRIMINAL CASES

INVESTIGATING UMATILLA MURDER CASE TODAY

Will Probably Return Bill This Evening—Indictment Is Looked For—Local Option Violators Will Be Overhauled.

The Umatilla grand jury is now in session, having been called together this morning by Circuit Judge H. J. Bean.

Judging by the witnesses summoned the first case to be called for investigation was the most important of those to be considered at this time and was that of George Tracy, accused of the murder of Andy Rabael, near Umatilla, the evening of November 23. As it is believed that the number of witnesses to be examined is comparatively small, the investigation of this case will probably be concluded today and the grand jury will be ready to return a true bill or a not true bill, by this evening or early tomorrow morning. The general impression prevails that the prisoner will be indicted.

The case against the other men now in jail will be taken up next. After those are disposed of the cases against those men who are out on bail will be investigated and later, suspected violators of the local option law will be looked into and any other cases which the district attorney may have to present for the consideration of the jury.

One of the principal cases to be investigated is that of William Walker, who is accused of burning his son-in-law's house and barn.

As District Attorney Phelps is busy in court, Deputy District Attorney Steiwer is directing the investigations of the grand jury.

The following are the members of the grand jury: R. H. Wilcox, J. W. Keen, J. C. Neal, M. R. Yates, Sam Bannister, Bell Davis and Swanty Anderson.

IS SAND A MINERAL?

CASE IN COURT RESTS ON THAT QUESTION

Parties Dispute Ownership of Sand—Both Claim Possession on Different Grounds—Case Being Argued Now.

A civil case of more than usual importance is being argued today before Circuit Judge Bean. It is the case of Joseph C. Scott versus Sam Looney and G. W. Knight and an imposing array of legal talent is represented in the case. The point at issue is the possession of a gravel pit near Umatilla from which is obtained valuable building sand, an article of commerce which is exceedingly scarce. The pit has been operated for a number of years by Knight and Looney both as a sand and gravel pit and also as a placer claim. They are now trying to hold it on the ground that it is a placer claim, while Scott seeks possession by virtue of a deed which he obtained from the Northern Pacific company.

Looney and Knight are represented by Phelps & Steiwer, and Lowell & Winter of this city and John H. Pedigo of Walla Walla. Scott is represented by C. C. Gose of Walla Walla and Carter & Smythe of this city. Attorney Guy Bartlett of Walla Walla is here as a witness.

The defense alleges that the pit is valuable as a placer claim and also that the building sand is mineral in nature and that therefore they are entitled to hold it as a mineral claim. The plaintiff alleges that the pit is not valuable as a placer claim and denies that building sand is to be considered as mineral.

The claim is a very valuable one for the reason that the sand is of a

SEAGG FAVORS RETENTION OF GAME WITH MODIFICATIONS

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago, who returned today from the meeting of the intercollegiate athletic association in New York, declared that football as played in American colleges is well on the way to thorough revision, but that the present game would be retained with changes and no other substituted.

"I feel just as strongly as ever," said Coach Stagg, "that the modern scientific game of football should not and will not, be given up. I also feel that the salvation of the game will be in making it more open." Stagg further asserted that any impression that the national experts favor a revision to Rugby on the adoption of the association game is false.

MAY TAKE WATER FROM CLEAR LAKE

Klamath Falls, Ore.—Considerable agitation has been caused by the report coming from Modoc county, Cal., that an effort is to be made to utilize the waters of Clear lake for the irrigation of lands in California. Instead of the lands in what is known as the upper project of the Klamath system. The waters of Clear lake could be diverted so as to irrigate either the lands in Oregon or those in California. There is, however, not enough water for both projects. It is claimed by the people of Modoc county that there are 30,000 acres of irrigable land in California all of which would be subscribed for government irrigation in the event the waters of Clear lake should be diverted so as to be utilized in the reclamation of the Modoc county lands. In Oregon there are more than twice as many acres, but less than 30,000 have been subscribed for government water.

While there are many Klamath landowners who are inclined to believe that there is a remote chance that the waters of Clear lake may be diverted for the benefit of the Modoc country, there are others who feel that the project is too far advanced to permit of an action of this kind.

HOTEL CELLAR TOO MUCH FOR BULLDOG

San Jose, Cal.—"Complete nervous prostration, superinduced by rough treatment at the hands of hotel employees."

Such was the verdict of the veterinarians in charge of the hospital to which Lucky, the blue blooded brindle bull dog of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Metmore of San Francisco was brought yesterday.

The animal, accustomed to the best couches of the San Francisco exclusive hosteleries, was relegated to the coal cellar of the St. James hotel here by bell-boys who were unacquainted with his pedigree. Mr. and Mrs. Wetmore were out of the hotel at the time, and the bulldog was carried from his couch to the basement by hands that handled him none too gently. The plebian surroundings were too much for Lucky, and he fell ill fighting cats and mongrel dogs upset his nerves, and he collapsed. His condition is reported to be serious.

"Good gracious, isn't that your husband across the street there quarreling with the man on the opposite porch?"

"Oh, they're not really quarreling. They dispute that way every night. George is a monopolist, and Mr. Stiggins is a biplanist."

During "aviation week" at Rheims an aeroplane was fined twenty francs for reckless flying. He did not run into anyone, nor did he smash into anything; he merely frightened the spectators.

NO GAME WITH MULTNOMAH.

Clubmen Have Holiday Dates Filled—All-Stars Must Seek Other Fields.

Manager George McMillen of the Multnomah club, this morning telegraphed to Tom McDonald at Seattle, closing for the appearance of the All-American football players here New Year's afternoon. This closes both holiday dates in Portland and disposes of the proposed visit of the Englewood or Ann Arbor high school eleven to Portland during the year-end. McDonald will bring down the greatest aggregation of stars ever gathered on one eleven in the northwest. Most of these stars have been coaching during the fall and are hard as nails. The others will find it an easy matter to get into condition.

McDonald is banking on Bob Forbes, the great Yale All-American end, who coached the University of Oregon team; Oliver Cutts, the old All-American lineman of Harvard; Jack Owsley, the great Yale back; Gilmore Dobbie, the famous Wisconsin player who coached Washington into two championships; Grogan, the Idaho coach, who starred at Knox college, and half a dozen others of equal fame.

Getting together an eleven to play Christmas or New Year's football is no small task. The college elevens have all quit playing and the club must look to other clubs or all-star aggregations to fill in the date. On the surface the game New Year's with the All-Americans, as they are styled, looks as if it will be the classiest struggle that has been seen here in recent years.

Captain Latourette will order the clubmen to report for practice and the players will be whipped back into shape as rapidly as possible. They will probably be strengthened by several college stars and the All-Americans will find themselves up against the real thing.—Portland Journal.
