AMUSEMENTS

THIS IS THE STORY OF "THE TOP O' THE WORLD"

Well, you see Prince Tinymite, the good fairy, was just passing when Maïda said: "I wish I could go out alone, I wish I did not have to go to bed early, I wish I was grown up." And Tinymite grabbed the little girl in his arms and carried her swiftly to the top of the world where Santa Claus has his workshop.

Maïda was ten years old and lived in an apartment house in New York City. She was very unhappy because she could not go out alone and because her papa and mama told her that she could not do anything alone until she had grown up, so Maïda made a wish that she grow up, quickly.

It was a wonderful shop, this place of Kris Kringle's and full of wonderful toys all of which came to life at the expression of a wish.

Two very interesting toys, The Candy Kid and Jack-in-the-Box made friends with her at once. Being only toys and full of main springs and cog-wheels they could not play with her until she wished them legs and arms and a couple of hearts. Maïda was philanthropic and favored the two funny toys, and soon, to her great delight, they were hopping about and making love to the little girl as only toys can do. But Maïda was only toying, and she wished to grow up and told Kris Kringle so.

"Dear child," said the kind old man, "you can do this by standing with your back to the North Pole and wishing for it. If you go to this wishing pole you can immediately grow up by making the wish."

It was a hard trip and so far away that Maïda wept bitterly because she could not go.

But at this moment came in the Shellman Group of explorers and they were looking for the North Pole also. The expedition was just starting, Shellman and Morse invited Santa Claus, Jack-in-the-Box, The Candy Kid old Santa's tame pet, the Friendly Bear, and last but not least Little Maïda, to go along with them to the top of the world.

To guard against inclement weather Morse carried with him a machine called "A Can of Climate," with which he could make the coldest day in the north regions warm and pleasant enough for the birds of the park. Old Jack Frost, who was Premier of the City of Illusia, ruled over by Queen Aurora Borealis, sent a bitter cold wind to frustrate them, but Morse merely turned on the nozzle of the "Can of Climate" and the whole party merrily sang: "Old Jack Frost, Old Jack Frost, Met a can of climate and his job was lost."

The wishing pole was guarded, in the wonderful city of Illusia, very carefully by the outposts of the Queen's army, but fortunately the party had picked up Kankakee and Kokomo, an Esquimaux Chief and his daughter, and these two acting as guides, safely brought the party into Illusia. Meantime Kokomo fell in love with Morse and married him, Princess Stalacta, whom the Queen hated on account of her beauty, had the good fortune to win the favor of Shellman, the explorer and according to the rules of Illusia, he released her from imprisonment with a kiss.

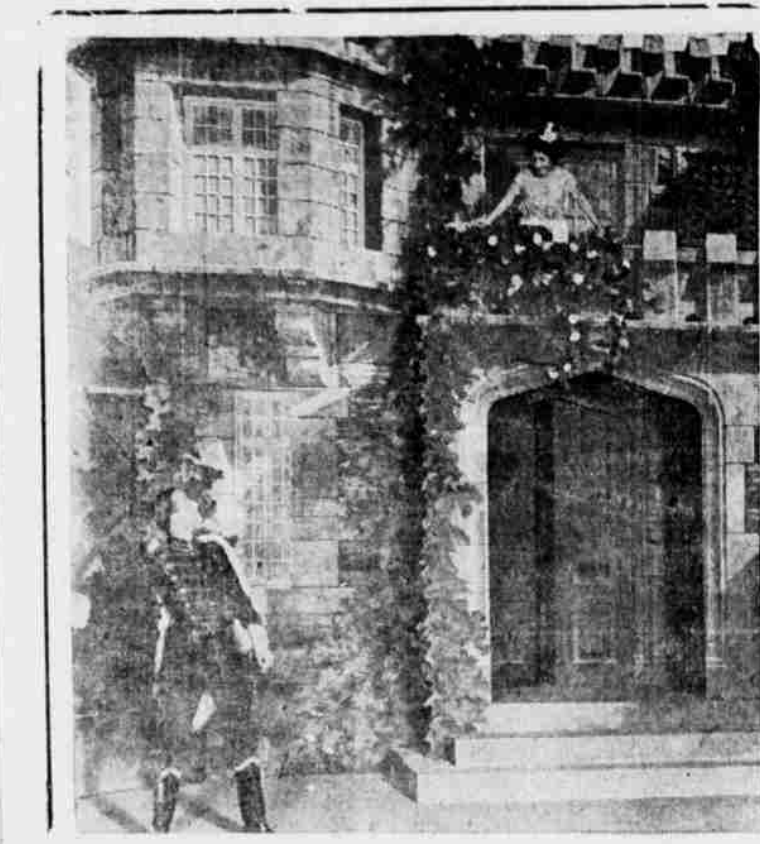

The explorers were captured within the city by the Queen's guards and little Maïda was condemned to a dark dungeon. As she was being led away, she broke into tears and regretted that she had left her father and mother. As this was the wishing land, no sooner had she expressed a wish to go home than the fairy prince Tinymite appeared, clothed as a knight, and with his flaming sword dared the myrmidons to do evil to little Maïda.

Queen Aurora had never seen her own face and in spite of all her faults possessed a love of the truth. Cynical Morse presented her with a mirror, which is an article absolutely unknown in Illusia, and then the Queen saw that for all her years her courtiers had obtained their wishes by flattery and lying, and she thought so much better of the explorers that all were released from captivity. Who knows but that Tinymite suggested the solution of the difficulty? Discovering then that it was better to grow up slowly like ordinary children, Maïda said goodbye to her friends and wished herself back home with papa and mama, and there she was, sure enough. Then Maïda awoke from her dreams.

"BEVERLY OF GRAUSTARK" STORY OF REAL LIFE

"Beverly," the dramatization of George Barr McCutcheon's successful novel of that name, the sequel to "Graustark," which will be the attraction at the Oregon theatre on Tuesday, February 1, is a story of real life told in a real and convincing manner.

It relates the exciting adventures of an American girl, Beverly Calhoun of Washington, D. C., while on a visit to the ruling princess of a mythical principality in the eastern part of Europe, one of the Balkan states.

In staging the production, the management, Delamater & Norris, have endeavored to make every least possible detail true to life, and it is only necessary to state that they have been aided and advised by that master of stagecraft, David Belasco. For theatergoers to realize with what care and expense "Beverly" has been produced, Belasco has a standard from which he will not recede and anything that bears his imprint must be as perfect as money and artistic genius can make it. "Beverly" was staged under the personal direction of Oscar Eagle, one of Mr. Belasco's highest salaried aids.

In selecting the cast the management has been equally careful. It contains such well known people as Gertrude Fowler, said to be one of the most beautiful women on the stage; Edith Shayne, last season leading lady in the Savage production of "The Devil" and for the three seasons previous with Margaret Hillman and "The Lion and the Mouse;" Hattie Carmontello, for many years and man with Billy Rice's minstrel, playing opposite the well known Billy Vaw; Francis McGrath, last season with the Brooks & Dingwall production of "The Sins of Society;" Raymond other a female which makes the experiment more interesting. They are not brother and sister, however, because a seal never has more than one pup at a birth.

They made their long railroad journey from San Diego, Calif., to Washington in a box, six feet by three. On their arrival here they were not at once placed in the big water tank which will in the future be their home, because, strange as it may seem, they have yet to be taught how to swim. A young dog thrown into the water will swim naturally, but the seal pup has to be taught how.

Boatswain Thurber was ordered to bring his pets here so that the scientific chaps at the Fish Commission could see for themselves the success of his efforts. If the pups continue to thrive under his treatment nurseries may be established on the seal islands to take care of the pups left to starve after the killing of their mothers by pelagic sealers.

Saved at Death's Door.

The door of death seemed ready to open for Murray W. Ayers, of Transit Bridge, N. Y., when his life was wonderfully saved. "I was in a dreadful condition," he writes, "my skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, emaciated from losing 40 pounds, growing weaker daily. Violent liver trouble pulling me down to death in spite of doctors. Then that matchless medicine, Electric Bitters—cured me. I regained the 40 pounds lost and now am well and strong." For all stomach, liver and kidney troubles they're supreme. 50c at Tallman & Co's.

TACOMA GOING AFTER BIG AVIATION MEET

Tacoma, Jan. 28.—Tacoma business men have raised $15,000 as a guarantee demanded by Promoter Dick Ferris for the proposed aviation meet here. An ideal site on an open prairie just south of this city was secured, today and the committee is awaiting word from Ferris regarding the dates.

Birthday of Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 29.—Kansas Day the forty-ninth anniversary of the admission of the Sunflower state to the union, has attracted the usual number of prominent Kansans to the city today. The annual meeting of the Kansas Day club will close with a banquet tonight. A year from today Kansas will celebrate its semi-centennial, and it is expected that a celebration on a much larger scale will be arranged for.

For indigestion and all stomach troubles take Foley's Orino Laxative. It is the natural remedy for indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, bad breath, sick headache, torpid liver, biliousness and habitual constipation. Foley's Orino Laxative sweetens the stomach and breath, and tones up the entire alimentary system. Koepfen Bros.

To Meet Yale Fish.

New York, Jan. 29.—With the strongest swimming team in its history the College of the City of New York expects to give the human fish of the big universities a hard tussle for first honors. Yale is here today, and the New Haven swimmers will give the local men their first real try-out of the season. Dates have also been arranged with the swimming teams of the University of Pennsylvania, Harvard, Columbia and Princeton.

It is a dangerous thing to take a cough medicine containing opiates that merely stifle your cough instead of curing it. Foley's Honey and Tar loosens and cures the cough and expels the poisonous germs, thus preventing pneumonia and consumption. Refuse substitutes and take only the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. Koepfen Bros.

Brewer to Speak to Kansans.

New York, Jan. 29.—At the annual dinner of the Kansas Society of New York to be given at the Plaza Hotel this evening, United States Supreme Court Justice Brewer will be the principal speaker. Other guests will include Hamilton W. Mable, United States Senator Joseph Bristow and Henry J. Allen, editor of the Wichita Beacon.
