Washington—After jotting down the above figures and taking a glance at his bank book, Senator Flint of California held up his right hand and cried "Never again!"

So he is going back home to Los Angeles to eke out a miserable existence with a pitiful law practice that will probably net him only $30,000 or $40,000 a year. But, at home, he'll not be obliged to accept dinner invitations from Senator Moneybags and Ambassador Goldbug and return them next week or next month. Neither will he be called upon to maintain a political organization in every one of California's 57 counties at an average cost of $1000 per.

"I have looked at it from every angle," said Senator Flint, "and have come to the conclusion that the United States senate is no place for a poor man if he hails from California and must make his campaign every six years under the new direct primary law. How much will the next campaign cost? I don't know, but for the remotest idea. Nobody has for a human's been tried yet. But I'd have to maintain an organization in every congressional district and every county. California is more than 1,000 miles long. Therefore I'd have to cover a territory as long as from Maine to the Carolinas along the Atlantic coast. If the state were small and compact like some of the New England commonwealths, the case might be different and the expense less. I would really have to make two campaigns, one for the primary and one for the election.

"If the direct primary law is to stand, a poor man can never hope to run for the senate until after the passage of some extra legislation for his protection, some corrupt practice act that will forbid the spending of any money whatever in a political campaign or for the state itself to defray the expenses.

"Of course, if I were so disposed I might allow friends or friendly organizations to help me out. One or two organizations back home have intimated that they would be glad to contribute $5000 or $10,000. But hardly. It is bad enough to have an organization or an individual make

Facts for Weak Women

Nine-tenths of all the sickness of women is due to some derangement or disease of the organs distinctly feminine. Such sickness can be cured—is cured every day by

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

It Makes Weak Women Strong, Sick Women Well.

It acts directly on the organs affected and is at the same time a general restorative tonic for the whole system. It cures female complaint right in the privacy of home. It makes unnecessary the disagreeable questioning, examinations and local treatment so universally insisted upon by doctors, and so abhorrent to every modest woman.

We shall not particularize here as to the symptoms of those peculiar affections incident to women, but those wanting full information as to their symptoms and means of positive cure are referred to the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser—1008 pages, newly revised and up-to-date Edition, sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only; or, in cloth binding for 31 stamps.

contributions to the party; its out of the question to think of them putting up money for the candidate personally.

"I must say that I like the senatorship. If I were not for the sake of my family, I would like nothing better than to stay here the rest of my life. But, I owe my family something, and if I spend $50,000 or $60,000 every six years for the campaign and then come to Washington and spend more than my salary—as I have during the last six years—it would only be a question of time when I would go broke."

they flare up like a bulldog at sight of a tramp.

Nelson, usually of calm and equable temperament, fairly explodes when he reads Wolgast's "cocky" statements.

"I see where the little rat is going to let me stay 15 rounds if I don't stall," said the Dane today. "I wonder how long he is going to let me stay if I do stall?"

"It's awfully kind of him to let me go as far as 15 rounds but I'm rather inclined to the belief that he will be mighty lucky if he manages to stay that long. If he does manage to get through he will be the sickest boy after the fight you ever saw."

"In all my battles I have trained with but a single thought and that was to win, but I am making an exception in this case. I am in good condition and could step into the ring tomorrow, but I want to give him such a wallop that he will never forget it the longest day he lives. And he's going to get it."

"I have always made it a point to inflict as little punishment as possible—just enough to win—but this kid is going to get everything that I have in the shop, and whatever he gets he will have only himself to blame. If he had kept his mouth shut and not bragged so I would have gone into the ring with him feeling as I have felt toward all my opponents."

And Mr. Wolgast holds similar views, so if the boys fight as they talk what an awful battle they will put up next Tuesday afternoon.

DRAGS WOMAN BY HELM

FASHIONABLE COLLEGE

Uniontown, Pa.—Wearing her hair in the latest mode, piled high on her head, after the manner of Empress Josephine was in part responsible for a serious state of affairs for Miss Helen Shenberg of this city.

A runaway horse with a broken sleigh chattering at his hoofs dashed onto a crowded sidewalk near a department store. Women and children scattered into doorways out of danger. Miss Shenberg, however, was not quick enough for the shaft of the sleigh shot through her big collar and dragged her 100 yards before the horse was stopped. Beyond the shock, a few scratches and much soiled clothing, the young woman escaped injury.

NELSON AND WOLGAST; HOW THEY LOVE EACH OTHER

San Francisco—Is all this feud talk that battling Nelson and Ad Wolgast are building on the level or is it the same old line of bunk dished up for the benefit of the box office?

That is the question that fight fans are asking themselves, but if they would relieve their minds of any doubt it is only necessary to go to the fighters themselves and talk it over. Just a few seconds' conversation will entirely convince them that if ever a pair of boys hated each other they are Nelson and Wolgast. Mention the name of one to the other and

Decrease in Salmon Crop.

Portland—In the annual report of Master Fish Warden McAtister, lately submitted, it is shown that the 1909 crop of salmon harvested in the waters of the Columbia river, Oregon side, amounted to 17,694,997 pounds, which is a decrease of $88,549 pounds. The chief reason for the decrease is thought to be the shortening of the open season by the legislature. Blue-back salmon alone show a gain in the pack over 1908.

WILL TRAIN GIRLS WITH REAL BABIES

TEACH FUTURE MOTHERS THE CARE OF INFANTS

Women's Industrial Council of England Undertakes to Assist Nature in Developing Natural Duties of Womanhood.

London.—Just now, when nearly every child is brought up on Teddy bears instead of dolls, it is good to know that the Women's Industrial Council is making fast progress with its scheme for training young girls to become nurse-maids by supplying them with real live babies on which they can practice the arts of mothering.

Already many promises of support have been given, and the London County Council has entered into the idea.

Briefly, it amounts to this. The Women's Industrial Council has discovered that there are hundreds of girls in the poorer districts of London, just leaving school, who would make excellent nurse-maids in middle-class families. In the ordinary way they go into factories or shops, or drift into undesirable early marriages. The Women's Council is not satisfied with this, and think it would be far better if they learned the things that will fit them for a useful and successful life. In a word they should be trained in the care of babies.

Already, as the result of the agitation by the council, they are trained while at school in washing, clothing and generally looking after children. But the children, alas! are not real. They are mere India rubber dolls, without any capacity for inspiring the niceties of the nurse-maid's art.

Therefore, real babies must be found, and this is where the council has been ingenious. There are hundreds of mothers of the "working" class who are willing to pay about 3d a day to someone who will take care of the baby while they themselves go out to work. Thus you get the creche already a familiar institution in London. But the present creche is a place, not for the training of nurse-maids, but for the care of children by paid nurses. In this case, however, the baby will not be so much a paying guest as raw material for the enlightenment of young girls of fourteen or so, who will be taught the very science of mothering. They will not only take care of the babies, but they will take care of them hygienically. They will not only feed them, but they will feed them with the right things and in the right way. They will not only wash them, but they will wash them clean. And so on.

"The American Lord."

"The American Lord" is a cracking good play.—Virginia Pilot.

Two hours of bubbling and wholesome humor were given the lucky auditors by Charles B. Hanford and Marie Drofna in their presentation of "The American Lord." From the audience arose a roar of applause which brought Mr. Hanford and Miss Drofna to the footlights exactly six times after his first act and five times at the end of the third.—Fort Worth Telegram.

"The American Lord" is brim full of well-made situations of the most amusing nature which gradually lead up to climaxes that would make a Bilikien ashamed of his mission.—Wichita Eagle.

Hanford's "American Lord" is one of the best things the American stage has ever seen, from a combined patriotic and fun making standpoint. If anybody can find a fault with Hanford in his new role the discoverer deserves a medal. "The American Lord" with more actors like Charles B. Hanford would do much to elevate the American stage and make the American people feel better and consequently better Americans. Miss Drofna has a light comedy role that she handles most cleverly.—The El Paso Herald.

"Frauds Upon the Public" is what some physicians have called patent medicines, and it is undeniably true that some are frauds and some are even worse, because they are injurious. On the other hand, there are many patent medicines such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and others, which are of real worth, and are recommended by physicians of recognized standing.
