

CUPID BEHIND THE SCENES MARS PLAY

LOVE PASSAGES NOT WRITTEN IN "CHANTICLEER"

Actors in Feathers and Fur Are Not the Happy Family They Seem—Love of Author's Son For Actress Stirrs Up Dissension.

Paris.—A real story of war behind the scenes at the Theatre Porte St. Martin has just filtered out into the boulevards. An immense sensation was caused on the first night when M. Guitry, who played the title role of "Chanticleer," refused to announce, according to the French custom, the name of the author of the piece. When the curtain rose after the performance he stood silent, merely bowing to the audience. Jean Coquelin, who took the part of the dog, hurried out and announced:

"The play we have had the honor to present is by Monsieur Edmond Rostand."

The same thing happened on the succeeding night. It is now said that the poet's 18-year-old son Maurice, who is a poet himself and who has made the English translation of his father's rhymed play, was the cause of all the trouble. It was his precocious lovetaking that almost wrecked "Chanticleer."

M. Guitry, who is a widowed 48 years old, is interested in a young blonde actress whom he believes has great talent. The day before the public rehearsal he was horror-stricken to discover Maurice Rostand making love to his young protegee. The scene is said to have occurred in a dressing room of the theater. Rostand the elder espoused the cause of his son and Guitry was so upset by the incident, coming on top of long rehearsals and the excitement of the production of the world-famous play, that he became seriously ill. Next day he rallied and played the part of Chanticleer superbly, but refused even to pronounce the name of Rostand.

This is the story that is exciting the boulevards. Rostand has made no direct statement, but the newspapers intimate that he is discontented with Guitry's performance of Chanticleer.

Young Maurice Rostand is the talk of Paris since a few months ago, when his mother, who is also a poet printed a full-page poem describing Maurice under the title "He Knows Everything."

GHOST ATTENDS BALL: WATCHES THE DANCERS

St. Petersburg.—General Shulman, one of the most active members of the Russian Society for Psychological Research, introduced lately the young Count Tryvdar-Burnshinsky, who says that he sees continuously his own "astral double." The count is a normal looking young man of about twenty-three. He alleges that since the age of seventeen he has always seen his own wraith.

He first noticed it in a mirror, quite close to himself, but later the wraith became much more independent. During a ball given of Kieff the wraith, the count says, remained in a room close by and seemed much interested in the dancing. It was noticed by several of the guests.

Count Tryvdar-Burnshinsky declares that he is quite accustomed to the society of his own wraith, and is not in the least afraid. Several members of the society for psychological research, among them Professor Fischer Dr. Tscheechoff and Colonel Gluchovskoi, are much interested in the case and will closely investigate it.

PENS THAT MADE HISTORY TREASURED BY OWNERS

London.—King Edward's gift to the people of South Africa of the pen used by His Majesty when he signed the South Africa Union Act is one of many similar mementoes which are religiously treasured in various parts of the world.

The last historic pen was the quill which one of the colonial premiers, Sir Robert Bond, took home with him as a souvenir of the Colonial Conference.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths,

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—If you do you will be disappointed.

once and a few years previously there was tremendous competition for the pens which were used in signing the peace treaty between Russia and Japan.

The pen used by the fourteen plenipotentiaries who signed the Treaty of Paris in 1856 is now in the possession of the Empress Eugenie. It is made from a quill of a golden eagle's wing and is richly mounted with diamonds and gold.

A quill pen used by the high contracting powers in signing the Treaty of Vienna is preserved by Lord Banger's family. A pen with which Napoleon marked the localities of coming battles during the Austrian campaign is owned by Baron Koeller of Vienna.

In the Berlin Museum may be seen the pen with which Queen Louise of Prussia signed her last will and testament, side by side with the pen used by William I. of Prussia in his famous letter to Queen Augusta, informing her of the victory of Sedan. A pen used by George Washington Lincoln and Grant is in the possession of Isaac B. Reed of New York who recently refused to part with it for $1,750.

BLERIOT WILL OPEN SCHOOL FOR AVIATION

London.—So many people in this country are anxious to learn to fly in Bleriot machines that the famous inventor of this type of monoplane, the hero of the cross-channel flight, is intent upon starting a regular school somewhere in England.

Already such schools, with large practicing grounds attached, are in operation at Pau and at Camp of Chalons, not very far from Rheims. Many Englishmen and at least one English woman Miss Dorothy Levitt have learned to fly in France. But M. Bleriot thinks—and his opinion will meet with general agreement—that England ought to have such a school of her own.

The difficulty is to find a suitable ground. It ought to be about a mile square, fairly level not encumbered by trees, not intersected by ditches or hedges. Furthermore, it should be fairly accessible, not too far from a town, convenient to a railroad or trolley car and not altogether free to the public. If spectators were allowed to wander wherever they pleased there would certainly be accidents, and useful practice by beginners would be scarcely possible.

M. Bleriot starts his pupils in a specially built machine, which is much heavier than that ordinary type and which cannot rise from the ground in this they learn all the controlling movements, which are, by the way, very simple.

"Brewster's Millions."

"A comedy melodrama," is what one critic called "Brewster's Millions," which will be seen here on February 23 at the Oregon theater, and possibly no more apt description of this wonderful successful play could be given. Telling the story of the young man who must spend a million dollars within a year, and with such restrictions as to make the feat impossible, it discloses in several instances the paradoxical situation of incidents otherwise pathetic, but under the conditions depicted are positively humorous. The idea of the principal theme is so fantastic that under less careful handling "Brewster's Millions" would have degenerated into a cheap, tawdry farce. Much credit is not only due to George Barr McCutcheon, who wrote the original story, but to Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley, who adapted it for the stage. So much for the literary portion of "Brewster's Millions." It was natural when Frederick Thompson (that master mind of stage effects) decided to produce the play, that he would discover its melodramatic and scenic possibilities. And thus it came about that that wonderful yacht scene which monopolizes the entire third act of "Brewster's Millions" was born. There is absolutely no doubt but that this is the greatest scene of its kind that has been shown on any stage at any time. It is almost uncanny in its naturalness and utilizes many devices hitherto inapplicable to stage use. The illusion of a full-rigged steamship buffeted by waves mountain high and in the heart of a terrific electrical storm, is so realistically presented that one must pinch one's self when the curtain falls in order to believe it is only simulation. Messrs. Cohan and Harris' comedians with Royal Tracy, will be seen in "Brewster's Millions" during its engagement here.

WANTS GOVERNMENT TO LOAN MONEY TO FARMERS

Spokane, Wash.—"Since we cannot raise cheap food on dear money, we have launched a campaign to force an amendment to the postal savings bank bill so that money may be loaned direct to farmers on land security at 3 per cent. The plan of lending it to banks at 2 3/4 per cent means 10 per cent money for farmers."

L. C. Crow, chairman of the executive committee of the Farmers' Industrial and Co-operative union, which has more than 20,000 members in the Spokane country, gave out the foregoing in an interview after dispatching telegrams to the northwestern delegation in congress urging an amendment to the measure. He added:

"Our demand is merely that the farmers and producers be given a square deal by the government. This will afford them the opportunity of making their farms attractive and profitable. One of the chief things necessary to make the farm a source of profit is cheap money for the use of the farmer. No one can run a farm at a profit and pay 10 per cent for money. Prevailing rates of interest paid by the farmer would bankrupt any other class of business and these will eventually bankrupt the farmer, even in this wonderful country of almost unlimited undeveloped resources."

"One of the principal reforms we hope to bring about by the use of cheaper money is to solve the tenant problem. Tenant farming means thriftless methods, soil exhaustion and the waste of natural and human energy and resources. The farm must be made sufficiently attractive that its owner will remain on it and farm it for himself. Ownership farming means permanent industry, increasing fertility and thrift and general prosperity."

BIG APPROPRIATION FAVORED FOR THE COLUMBIA RIVER

Portland, Ore.—That the Columbia river improvements fared well in the Rivers and Harbors bill now before congress was the advice received in Portland this week from the capital. A total of $2,153,500 is proposed to be spent on Columbia river work and items provided for in the bill are as follows: Wenatchee to Bridgeport, $25,000; Bridgeport to Kettle Falls, $50,000; Sello to Snake river, $90,000; at The Dalles, $600,000; Cascades canal, $5,000; Vancouver, $7,500; below Portland, including Willamette river, $175,000; mouth of Columbia, $1,205,000; gauging $1,000.

If this money is appropriated, as now seems likely, the improvements to the Columbia during the coming year will be lasting in their benefits and will be of great advantage to the whole Pacific Northwest. The work is too important to be claimed as a betterment by any one state for an open river from the Inland Empire to the sea will benefit almost every person living in the Northwestern states more or less directly.

By clearing out the upper river steamboat navigation will be aided, with a good effect on rates to and from the interior, while the improvement of the channel to the sea from the Columbia will facilitate ocean shipments both to and from the Northwest states.
