ENROPEANS THINK JOHN D. HAS HOME IN SPOKANE

European people seem to think that John D. Rockefeller, the multimillionaire, is a resident of Spokane, says the Spokane Inland Herald. At any rate this view of the matter is taken by John C. Talbot, superintendent of the mailing division of the local post-office.

For the second time in the past few days a letter to the coal oil king has found its way to the superintendent's desk. The first epistle came from France. The letter today arrived from Germany and left Herrentrup March 22. Talbot thinks that the sea-post mail clerk sent the letter direct to the point, as the letter bears no other postmark. The name of the sender is Prasse Mossenberg and the missive is addressed as follows: "Herr John D. Rockefeller, "Also called the Oil-King, "In or by Washington, "In North America."

The letter was written in a fine German hand and required the services of the postoffice janitor to interpret the Teutonic phrases. It will be dispatched to the home of the oil king with the correct address appended.

"They say that lightning never strikes twice in the same place, but letters to John D. are getting rather numerous here of late," murmured the puzzled superintendent as he glanced at the missive. "He must have given out the fact that he intended to move into this state while abroad."

SWINDLERS WORK A SMOOTH GAME

MONEY SPENT LAVISHLY IN ORDER TO DUPE VICTIMS

Five Millionaires Make Man Stakeholder of $100,000 at Races, Then Borrow His $10,000--Get-away Follows.

New York--For lavish stage setting, workmanlike execution and ample financing, the story of a racing swindle as told the police the other night by Henry Wagner, senior member of a firm of billiard table manufacturers has no equal in the annals of the New York police bureau.

To obtain $10,000 confidence men entrusted their dupe with $100,000 in cash, hired a private car from Baltimore to Jacksonville, Fla., and impersonated successfully a party of millionaires, one of whom being "H. H. Rogers, jr., son of the late president of the Standard Oil company."

The story came out with the arrest of a man who gave his name as John Brown, 68 years old, and described himself as a broker and speculator, but who, the police say, is George C. Rockwell, alias George C. Hammond, alias "Old Joe Eaton," a notorious confidence man.

Last month Wagner met a man representing himself to be Alfred Sanford, private secretary to a Pennsylvania millionaire with money to spend on coal lands. Would Wagner take an option on 2000 acres at $7 an acre. He could sell at a huge profit. The secretary lacked funds to finance the deal himself, but if it went through he asked only 25 per cent for his tip.

A trip to Baltimore followed where the "millionaires," including "H. H. Rogers, jr.," "Colonel Moffatt" of Colorado, one Palmer and one Marshall.

From Baltimore the entire party journeyed to Jacksonville by private car--all of the "millionaires"--and at the race track there was heavy betting "between friends" in which the victim was not asked to join. Instead, his confidence was soothed by his being made stakeholder until at one time he held $100,000. His draft for $10,000 was obligingly cashed and he generously loaned the money to one of the crowd to fill out a bet of $20,000. Then came the get-away.

Wagner said that Brown, arrested recently, took the part of Moffatt. When searched by the police $2071 in bills was found strapped around Brown's waist.

"That guy thought he was in for something soft," said Brown. "He thought he was in for some of that $100,000 and when he did not get it he was sore."

SAVES 60 LIVES AND GETS $2 AS REWARD

Geneva--During the heavy rains and floods in the Cantons of Geneva and Vaud at the end of January, a

Swiss railway gatekeeper at a level crossing, named Allaman, hearing an unusual hissing sound, walked along the line, having a presentment that there was something wrong. He found that a stream flowing from the Jura mountains into Lake Geneva had become a torrent and, overflowing its banks, had swept away 30 yards of the permanent way, leaving the rails suspended in the air.

As the Geneva-Lausanne express, traveling 60 miles an hour, was due in a few minutes, and would be precipitated into the torrent with its 60 passengers, Allaman ran to his little house for a red flag and stopped the express 50 yards from the suspended rails, and then returned home pleased with the fact that he had prevented a terrible accident. Some days ago the news of the affair arrived at the Berne headquarters of the federal railway company, and the Swiss managers thought such an act on the part of a gatekeeper should be rewarded. Allaman received his reward this week for saving the express and its 60 travelers from destruction. The reward was $2, which works out at 3 cents a life.
