

AFTER SUFFERING FOR YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Park Rapids, Minn.—"I was sick for years while passing through the Change of Life and was hardly able to get around. After taking six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I gained 20 pounds, am now able to do my own work and feel well."—Mrs. Ed. LA DOT, Park Rapids, Minn.

Brookville, Ohio.—"I was irregular and extremely nervous. A neighbor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I have become regular and my nerves are much better."—Mrs. R. KINXISON, Brookville, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

It's pretty hard to attend to duties with a constantly aching back; With annoying urinary disorders. Doan's Kidney Pills make work easier.

They cure backache. They cure every kidney ail.

T. M. Lacy, Elgin, Ore., says: "I have known the value of Doan's Kidney Pills for at least six years. At that time I first began their use. I was suffering severely from pains through my back and kidneys and was practically laid up. I was able to get around but could not do any work. Stopping or lifting or any sudden move caused terrible pains to radiate through my body. Doan's Kidney Pills regulated the passage of the kidney secretions and benefited me in every way."

PALMY DAYS AT WHITE HOUSE ARE NO MORE

Tennis Court Has Been Destroyed and Pall of Sadness Enshrouds Scene Where Happiness and Joy Once Cavorted—Several of Most Enthusiastic Players, Too, Have Sunk to Oblivion.

Washington, D. C.—A subtle sense of sadness pervades the new tennis court in the white house grounds. No court could have been made more perfect. The net is taut; the squares within the white chalk lines are mathematically correct as they can be made. No fairer environment could have been selected for it—not even Versailles itself where the habits of the court of the grand monarch played the same game in a setting so splendid that France went bankrupt in creating it.

The new white house court lies under the shade of the budding elms. The spring breezes waft across it the soft fragrance of the magnolia blossoms and the lulling music of the splashing fountain nearby. The robins run across the green turf and the squirrels scamper about without fear of molestation. The picture is one of perfect—perfect—peace—but peace with sadness.

Vainly does Captain Archibald Butt, with lissome figure clad in snowy flannels, invade the domain of profound serenity in an effort to evoke the glory of the days that were. Beekman Winthrop, assistant secretary of the navy and Ambassador Jusserand, members of that informal cabinet which is now but a memory, struggle to revivify the fading tradition that traced a parallel in the triumphs of statecraft and the victories of the tennis court. Even the untrammelled energy of Charlie Taft, who sometimes diverts his attention from more boyish pursuits to whale the ball over the fence or into the fountain, lifts but momentarily the impalpable veil of melancholy sadness which drops its folds all the more closely after this burst of juvenile activity.

The white house tennis court that was, has been obliterated, the tennis cabinet is scattered to the four winds of heaven—or almost as bad as that—and it seems that efforts to organize another will be in vain. Of that old cabinet but few familiar faces are left. Beekman Winthrop, Ambassador Jusserand and Lawrence O. Murray are left behind. Gifford Pinchot, Jimmy Garfield, Phillips and the others—perhaps they still play tennis, but the eyes of the political world are no longer centered upon the score. That day is past and the guiding spirit is far away in other lands.

The old court, which was sacrificed to provide for the addition to the executive offices was no such dream of creation as the present court. It was more rectangle of clay and it was surrounded by green canvas walls which flapped unpoetically in the wind. And how different the attitude of the players who galloped about under cover of that canvas screen! One could catch a glimpse now and then of a stocky figure clad in a shapeless sweater or an elongated anatomy that resembled the quondam chief forester, clad in garments stained with yellow mud. There was no serenity. On the contrary, there were grunts, expletives, and the sound of the swish of balls. Occasionally a mild whoop and boisterous laughter would indicate that somebody had in all probability been hit in the eye.

CZAR TO BUILD FINE PALACE.

Translucent Amber Stone Will Be Material—Old Chapel Saved.

St. Petersburg.—It is an interesting fact that the czar has determined to pull down his palace at Livadia, and in its stead to build a wonderful new one made entirely of the beautiful Balaklava stone, which, when polished, resembles nothing so much as pure amber. In the light, especially in the light of sunset, this stone has a wonderfully fairy-like appearance, and the new palace, which is to be completed by 1912, will be one of the wonders of the world.

The only part of the palace now standing, which is to remain, is the chapel, which, built in the early part of last century, is a masterpiece. This contains a white marble altar screen, but the gem of everything is the elegant marble cross mounted upon a pedestal of Crimea porphyry, which was presented to Alexander II. by the workmen of Livadia as an expression of their gratitude for the emancipation of the serfs.

WANTS TO CONSERVE THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME

Washington.—Here's a new idea in conservation. Associate Forester Potter proposes to conserve the "good old summer time."

Away up on the mountain tops in the national forest reserves Potter tells Secretary Wilson that there are any number of winding lakes and crystal streams fringed with cool woods that would make ideal rest cures for residents of our western metropolises. His scheme is to provide for the poorly paid and over-worked slaves of capital, at the cost of about $5 per annum, tracts of nature which they may fence in and use for their very own, with no restrictions other than the ten commandments and the regulations of the forest service.

Under Potter's plan permits would be issued to applicants good for ten years, unless revoked by the secretary of agriculture. There are now several special permits issued by the forest service for summer homes and one for a hotel or club house, on the San Bernardino mountains in California. These are good for only a year at a time. The club house permit, however, has become a quiet permanent institution.

Potter's new plan is now passing under the critical eye of Solicitor McCabe, of the department of agriculture, because Secretary Wilson does not intend starting anything again unless he knows it is legal even to the crosses of the t's. Unless the solicitor's stern regard for duty compels him to object, the plan should be in operation before long and the people of the west will be able to put in their applications for "country seats" this spring.

Prayer Chain Harmful.

Hazleton, Pa.—Several cases of illness of nervous women are reported by local physicians, who say the receipt of prayer chain letters makes the trouble. These letters, thousands of which have been circulated in town express the idea that if the recipient does not write the prayer nine times and send it to nine different persons in as many different days some great calamity will befall. If the prayer is sent as directed, the letter says, a great blessing will follow. One woman did as directed, but failed to send a letter one day out of the nine owing to illness, and was taken very sick through worry. A number of similar cases have turned up.
