Marriage License Issued.
A marriage license has been issued to Ernest Riep and Margaret Cornfield, both of this county.

Class Track Meet Today.
The class track meet between the schools of this city is now in progress at the ball park on West Court street, having started at 2:30 this afternoon. This is the first complete meet of its kind ever held in Pendleton and it has aroused almost as much interest as an interscholastic affair.

Fair Premium List to Printer. Injunction Is Granted.
The Appleburg Irrigation company has secured an injunction against Addie C. Henderson et al. to prevent them from in anyway interfering with the irrigation ditch. It is alleged that the Hendersons recently destroyed the headgate and filled up the ditch in places.

Secretary Thomas Fitz Gerald of the district fair association, has sent the revised premium list of the fair association to the state printer. As soon as the lists are printed at Salem they will be returned to Mr. Fitz Gerald and will be ready for distribution. The list of premiums will be more complete and up to date than ever before.

Parole Is Denied.
The petition for the parole of Wilbur Bailey was this morning denied by Circuit Judge Bean and he will be compelled to serve out his two-year sentence in the penitentiary. Bailey was the young forger from Milton who was arrested in Portland after a chase of two years. He was also one of the seven men who broke jail here a few days before the grand jury met.

Mrs. Hazel Hill Arrives.
Mrs. Hazel Hill, wife of Harry Hill, who died suddenly in this city Monday morning, arrived this morning from Seattle and took charge of the remains and took them with her to Seattle this afternoon for burial. She says her husband was a member of the Knights of Pythias, the Eagles and the Elks and members of these organizations are now assisting her in caring for the remains.

Arthur Renn Returns Home.
Arthur Renn, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Renn, and late chief yeoman in the United States navy, has returned to Pendleton to reside. He expects to take a position at the Byers mill and will make his home here with his sisters. Mr. Renn left Pendleton eight years ago to enter the navy and by good, consistent service, rose to be a chief yeoman, which position corresponds to the position of regimental sergeant major in the army. He was next in line to the warrant officers. Renn was aboard the Bennington when that ill-fated warship blew up in San Diego harbor. However, he escaped injury.

The Laugh on "Judge" Steiwer.
Friends of Deputy District Attorney Frederick J. Steiwer are enjoying a huge chuckle at the young barrister's expense. It seems that that gentleman, because of his legal occupation and dignified bearing, is familiarly accosted as "Judge" by his friends, and it is this practice which led to a rather delicate situation. The "Judge" has his bachelor apartments at one of the leading hosteleries of the city, and it so happened that a winsome chambermaid at that particular house had just given her consent to some lucky young swain to enter with him into the transcendent realms of conjugal bliss. Desirous of expediting the matter, and knowing that a judge is empowered by law to perform the necessary ceremonies, the young lady entrapped Steiwer in one of the corridors and blushing confusedly, astounded him by asking him if he could marry a woman. His "judgeship," though taken unawares and with his guard down, was true to his profession and equal to the occasion. He replied that he not only could marry a woman, but would if such there should be who desired to share his humble lot. Then it was the maiden's time to be consternated, and with much embarrassment on both sides, she explained that she only wanted his services as a judge to unite her with another man. The story leaked out and therefore the chuckles, and now the "Judge" is seriously considering applying for an injunction against the use of this appellative misnomer.

PRINCESS DE SAGAN GETS THE SURPRISE OF HER LIFE
Paris.—Anna Gould, Princess de Sagan, has experienced the surprise of her matrimonial life, for her husband has bought, paid for and presented her with enormous portraits of two of his distinguished relatives. Hitherto her experiences have been that she not only paid for what her husbands bought but discovered later that they came in for commissions on the sales as well. At least this was no uncommon happening as regards her first husband.

One of the portraits is that of Alphonse de Berghes, archbishop of Malines, who was born in 1625 and died in 1689; the other is that of his brother, Count de Berghes, counselor of state to his Most Catholic Majesty, Philip the First of France, captain-general and grand master of artillery. The last Count de Berghes died two years ago. His mother was a De Sellieres, a sister of Helie's mother, the old Princess de Sagan. Hence the prince's interest in the picture is a compliment to his mother, although she did her best to distinguish him in favor of her favorite son, the Duke de Valencay.

THE CANALS ON MARS.
Famous Scientist Has New Theory of So-Called Canals on Planet.
Copenhagen.—Dr. Arrhenius, the famous Swedish scientist and Nobel prizewinner, has propounded before the Stockholm Society of Physics a new and curious theory concerning the so-called canals on Mars. He said that as a consequence of various changes, including the thickness of the planet's crust, several parallel cracks had been formed, which had gradually been filled up with sand. This sand, Dr. Arrhenius argued, contains various salts, which assume different colors, according to the amount of dampness permeating the soil of the planet at different seasons. The "melting snow" often referred to by writers on Mars is, says the doctor, merely evaporation at the Martian poles. During this evaporation the cracks assume a darker hue, but become light in color again when the temporary dampness has passed away. His theory, Dr. Arrhenius believes, completely explains the reason why the channels change color. The seas in Mars, he adds, contain a large quantity of sand, and are not very deep.

$40 A MONTH ACTORS THREATEN TO STRIKE

Paris.—The "Dramatic and Lyric Theatre Artists"—that is to say, actors and singers of the legitimate stage—formed a trade union a few weeks ago, and are now agitating. The list of their grievances and the statement of their claims show that the members belonging to the somewhat humble ranks of the profession. As their chief desideratum is a minimum wage of $40 a month, they can hardly be exactly of the class of Gully, for instance, who is said to be receiving $3,000 a week for "Chanteclair."

"I don't think," he added, "that anyone will consider that to be an exorbitant claim. The public does not know what hard times we have whose duty it is to amuse it."

The secretary of the new union explains pathetically that even a minimum wage of $40 a month could not be counted upon all the year round. Allowance being made for the off-season, it would work out at about 50 cents a day throughout the year. The union is agitating also for the suppression of fines, which are "both humiliating to our self-respect and a cruel drain on our slim purses." The union not only agitates, but threatens. In a statement, it says:

"If we do not obtain satisfaction we shall not hesitate to go on strike, and should we do so we would be backed by the Union of Lyric Artists, the Union of Chorists and the Federation of Musicians-Artists of France, which includes thirty-six branch unions all over the country; the Union of Stage Hands and Carpenters, the Union of Choreographic Artists, the Union of Small Employes of Theatres and Music Halls, and the Union of Theatre Electricians, which would all stand solid for us.

"We are well aware that the granting of our claims would increase managerial expenses. But why not make up the difference out of the authors' rights and the poor law tax on theatres? The former is at present 12 per cent, and the latter 10 per cent, on the gross takings. Both figures are exceedingly high. Authors and paupers alike could afford to give up a little to ensure us our minimum of $40 a month.

The Grand.
Manager Smith of the Grand has secured for the last half of the week an excellent vaudeville bill that will please everyone of the patrons that take the opportunity of attending the performance. The novelty feature on the bill is that of Professor Murphy and his trained rats and monkeys. An act that is a rare novelty. Don't fail to see the slide for life and the Salome dance by one of the professor's little monkeys.

The two Rays in a singing, talking and roller skate novelty was well appreciated by the audience last evening.

Master Ray, at the Grand this Week.

Master Ray, the juvenile comedian, won much applause from the audience and kept them in good humor from start to finish of the act.

Burk & Burk in "The Messenger Boy and the Maid," have an act that would drive away the blues. Their singing is excellent and their act is full of comedy, making the bill throughout one of the best that has appeared at the Grand for a long time.

There is also an excellent picture program: "Branding a Thief," an excellent wild west drama, "Seine Fishing in a Hurricane," Very interesting, "Western Justice," A very good picture with plenty of excitement. Coming next Monday, Schame and King, the funniest act that has ever appeared here, a headline act coming direct from the Panjages circuit.

"HENID" NEW WORD JACK LONDON USES

San Francisco.—Jack London is going to have his telephone taken out. It has made him a lot of trouble in the past but he was willing to stand that. The end came yesterday when he had calls from almost every member of the local press clubs, and in almost every case the voice, masculine or feminine, sounded something like this:

"Mr. London? Yes. Well, I heard you use a word last night that I have never met before and which I cannot find in any of the dictionaries. I don't want to display my ignorance, but—what do you mean by 'henids,' anyway?"

London is a patient man and admits that it is not his word and that he took another man's word for its meaning and that he has no clear idea of its derivation.

"A 'henid,'" said London, "is the attitude of mind in which a person finds himself when he is talking about a subject with which he is not thoroughly familiar and yet which he finds himself compelled to continue to discuss. I don't know where it began to be a word, but it is a good word and expresses an idea that no other one word does."

That people will eat elephant meat with a relish has been proven by a butcher in Frankfort-on-the-Main, to his own profit and without the knowledge of his customers.

Aldrich and Hale have pleaded guilty, some will reason. Next Burrows, Dewey and some others might well follow their example.
