Dear friend: They have hired me down at the grocery. What do you think I do? Everywhere they put my picture, a new one each time, in the paper. My work is to tell everybody where to buy good groceries. I like my place very well because it is a good place where they treat me well. They treat everyone well where I work, because they carry good groceries and sell them at the right prices.

The largest social event of the week was the joint reception Thursday afternoon at the home of G. I. La Dow on West Court street. Mrs. G. I. La Dow and Mrs. F. F. Perham were the hostesses and from three until five they received in honor of Mrs. Mamma Sullivan of Los Angeles. A total of 177 invitations had been issued. Mrs. Sullivan is a sister of Mrs. Perham and a cousin of Mr. La Dow. She arrived Sunday for an extended visit with relatives in this city and other parts of eastern Oregon. The La Dow home had been most beautifully decorated for the occasion. The house had been darkened and then lighted by innumerable wax tapers. White was the prevailing color in the living room, the scheme being carried out by the aid of a profusion of snowballs and bridal wreaths. In the dining room the color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the refreshments as well as in the decorations. Mrs. Charles Greenlich, assisted by Master Robert La Dow, received at the door, while the hostesses were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Lee Teutsch, Mrs. George Hartman, Jr., Mrs. E. A. Mann, Mrs. W. C. La Dow and Mrs. C. K. Cranston. Those who poured coffee and served ice at the different hours were Mrs. Lina Sturdivant, Mrs. E. P. Marshall, Mrs. W. U. Shultz, and Mrs. Will Moore. DOUBTS WHETHER SALMON RETURN TO BIRTHPLACE

Washington.—That interesting old story about salmon leaving the streams in which they are hatched and disappearing until they return, full grown to spawn in the identical stream in which they came to life was challenged at the meeting of the house committee on territories the other day. Dr. P. W. Everman, an expert of the bureau of fisheries, said in answer to a question by Chairman Hamilton that in his opinion a great majority returned to the streams in which they were hatched.

"If there proof that a single salmon ever returned to the stream where it was hatched?" challenged Judge Wickersham, the delegate from Alaska.

Dr. Everman said he thought it had been proved by the experience of the government in restoring a supply of salmon to the Sacramento river but Wickersham was not convinced. The doctor, by request, also enlightened the committee by the statement that a fish is an "animal."

CLERICAL DEBATOR ALMOST STIRS UP A TURMOIL

Washington.—By using departmental writing paper for private purposes a clerk in the department of commerce and labor narrowly escaped bringing about a bitter controversy between Secretary Nagel and officers of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor. This clerk is a member of the debating team at the Y. M. C. A., and was preparing for a debate upon the subject of labor unions. He wrote to a local labor official asking him for certain data regarding labor troubles and the alleged practice of labor men breaking contracts.

The letter accidentally fell into the hands of William J. Spencer, an officer of the building trades department of the federation, and it read to him as though the department of commerce and labor was preparing an investigation into labor matters. A meeting was called, and a letter was sent to Secretary Nagel asking why the investigation was called and why he should proceed without considering the officers of their organization. The secretary first replied that no such investigation was being conducted, then it was discovered that one of Secretary Nagel's clerks was the author of the letter and the storm clouds passed away.

STRATEGIST.

Mme. Marguerite Durand, one of the candidates for election to the French chamber of deputies from the Ninth district of Paris, delivered a stroke the other night which distinguished her as a political strategist of the first order. Addressing an audience of men, she acknowledged that her sex probably would prevent her from being seated, even if she received a plurality of the votes cast, and then introduced one of the candidates opposing her, Charles Marest. "Here," she said, "is an imbecile whom the laws allow to vote and to be a candidate. By his side there stands a woman in the full force of her intelligence, and yet she is denied the same privilege by the same law." This is what might be called campaigning by means of human documents. If Marest knew of the comparison that Mme. Durand intended to draw between herself and him, he certainly was an imbecile in consenting to appear with her.—New York Evening Mail.

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of illness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact that it is the only remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is, therefore, all-important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to purchase and note that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

It is pleasant and refreshing to the taste, and acts gently yet promptly on the kidneys, liver and bowels, cleanses the system effectually, dispels colds, headaches and fevers and assists in overcoming habitual constipation permanently, also biliousness and the many ills resulting therefrom. The great trouble with all other purgatives and aperients is not that they fail to act when a single dose is taken, but that they act too violently and invariably tend to produce a habit of body requiring constantly augmented doses. Children enjoy the pleasant taste and gentle action of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the ladies find it delightful and beneficial whenever a laxative remedy is needed, and business men pronounce it invaluable, as it may be taken without interfering with business and does not gripe nor nauseate. When buying note the name, California Fig Syrup Co., printed on the front of every package. Price, 50 cents a bottle.
