WAGON ROAD LAND TO BE OPENED TO SETTLEMENT

Pend. Ore., May 14.—Evidence of the powerful influence the advent of a railroad is having in the development of central Oregon and the price of its lands, is shown in the offer made a few days ago by an eastern timber syndicate to purchase the 200,000 acres of timber land lying in the Cascade mountains and embraced in the Willamette Valley & Cascade Mountain Wagon Road company's grant. This grant, stretching from Albany eastward across the state to the Idaho line, was purchased by a group of Minneapolis capitalists a few weeks ago and includes 600,000 acres. The purchase price was $7,500,000. It is stated authoritatively that the Minneapolis company was offered $5,000,000 for its timber land alone, an equivalent of $25 an acre for the 200,000 acres. The offer, it is understood, was not even considered. Timber men state that if the timber in the grant is ever sold it will bring more than twice the amount recently offered, or a sum $2,500,000 in excess of the price paid for the entire grant of practically 900,000 acres. Some of the finest and heaviest timber in the Pacific northwest is embraced in the wagon road company's grant. The figures quoted, however, show the intrinsic value of the Minneapolis company's purchase and give an inkling of tremendous profits to be derived with in a few months when the agricultural and grazing lands are put on the market and sold.

Granting that the timber is worth only the $5,000,000 which has been offered, the balance of the 700,000 acres in the grant represents a cost price of $2,500,000, or $3.50 an acre. Of this 700,000 acres, nearly 300,000 lie in Crook county and include the richest and most fertile agricultural and irrigable lands in central Oregon. Thousands of acres of the tract are worth today between $50 and $100 an acre. The same run of values holds true throughout the confines of the grant in Harney and Malheur counties. The men who chose the land years ago for the road company for a distance of six miles on either side of the line had the entire country to pick from and they selected the meat of central Oregon from Albany to the Idaho line.

With scrip quoted at $13 an acre, the purchase of which is the only means open for the acquirement of large bodies of government land, a greatly enhanced value is given to the company's holdings which cannot be classed as agricultural areas, but instead will be sold for grazing purposes. The grazing lands, however, represent but a small part of the 700,000 acres held outside of the timbered districts in the Cascades.

Waldon Rhea Lost Valuable Horse Yesterday—Brief News Notes of Echo and Vicinity.

(Special Correspondence.)
Echo, Ore., May 14.—There are on display here some samples of grain which we believe can not be surpassed or equaled by any other section of the country at this season of the year. One is the Cox wheat, brought in by George Coppinger from his farm east of Echo, which measures four feet in height with heads six inches in length and is on display at the Lisle Hardware company. The other is a stalk of alfalfa on display at the Hotel Hoskins which Joe Bailey pulled from his garden. The top measures five feet and nine inches and not yet in bloom. The wheat is a dry land production and the latter is the result of irrigation.

A valuable horse was lost yesterday by Waldon Rhea. It became entangled in the harness in some manner and the cords in both hind legs were severed by the Fresno to which it was attached. The animal had to be shot.

ROOSEVELT'S ANCESTRY.

Record Shows That First Teddy Was Fighter Himself.

Washington, — "General Stewart's daughter Martha, called Patsie, first married United States Senator John Elliott, and after his death she married James S. Bulloch, Mattie, daughter of this alliance, married Theodore Roosevelt, sr., whose son, Theodore Roosevelt, was president of the United States."

This is a paragraph from the report of a house committee recommending the erection of a monument, at a cost of $2500, to the memory of General Daniel Stewart and James Screven. They were members of what the report calls "a little band of cultured and pious men who, with their families, settled in Georgia about 150 years ago." They called themselves "The Midway Society." Screven, who had a record as a brave and daring patriot, was killed in one of the battles of the revolution.

Roosevelt's grandfather was 15 years old when he shouldered a rifle bigger than himself and went forth to shoot daylight into the British invader. He was wounded by a shot at Pocotaligo, South Carolina, captured, and confined in a prison ship at Charleston. On a stormy night he and eight others slipped through port holes and swam through mighty waves to shore. Stewart entered the service again and fought to the end of the war, much of the time with Sumpter and Marion.

Soon after the close of the war he was at the head of a regiment chasing Indians along the coast of Georgia. The trouble was that the Indians were robbing the settlers of cattle and horses, pillaging houses and murdering families. He was a presidential elector and voted for Madison.

When Stewart returned home after the revolutionary war he found that his tranquil plantation, near Riceboro, had been occupied by General Prevost, commanding the British troops in the south. On the wall of the sitting room, he found branded on the boards "This house was the home of a nest of rebels." This historic home was destroyed by federal troops during the civil war and now only the chimneys remain.

In the second war with Great Britain in 1812, General Stewart again took the field and the office of brigadier of cavalry was created and given to him.

Both Stewart and Screven were buried in the cemetery beside Midway church and there the memorial is to be erected if the bill becomes a law.
