CRIPPLED COLTS CAPTURE CONTEST

TAKE GAME FROM ATHENA BY THE SCORE OF 6 TO 3

Cronin Is Crippled in Third, But Harlan Goes Behind Bat and Dickson Twirls a Victory—Wilson Replaces Smith in Athena Box in Seventh.

Standing of Teams.

And still does Athena's league team have undisputed occupation of the throne seat in the bottomless pit, and all her efforts seem inadequate to hatch her three goose eggs into a positive percentage. Despite the fact that in yesterday's game with Pendleton the tallenders were materially assisted by a good beginning and a pitched ball that sadly demoralized the lineup of their opponents, they were unable to dispel the hoodoo which seems to hover over them, mockingly lifting them up to occasional glimpses of victory and then beating them back to the stygian gloom of eternal defeat and disappointment. So often have these hopeful aspirations for diamond honors been lured on by the phantom firefly only to be led further into the mirey swamps of vain ambition that they have almost reached that stage where their despair will mean their self-destruction. But there are still a few optimistic fans in whose breasts hope springs eternal, and before another week rolls by they will undoubtedly have buoyed up the sinking spirits of their champions and persuaded them that there is still a chance to sniff the pure air that lies beyond the cellar.

Things looked badly for Frazier's Colts at the beginning of the game yesterday. The Athenians put the first man up around the circuit for a score, while in the first three innings the Pendleton swatters died in one, two, three succession. Then to cap the climax one of Lefty Smith's wild shots caught Cronin on the knee when he was at bat in the third and Pendleton was apparently at the mercy of the enemy for no other catcher was to be had. However, Harlan saved the day by stepping off from the mound and donning the bird cage, while Dickson assumed the task of twirling. These two worked together like a tried team and kept the Athena sluggers at their mercy.

Pendleton's first score came in the fourth when Nelson drew a pass and purloined second. Then when Alexander's grass cutter was fumbled by Stone, Nelson raced home, while Alexander successfully negotiated the pathway to second. Powell followed with a clean single which put the young cyclone of Pendleton on the third sack. Rader flew out but Harlan's sacrifice gave Alexander an easy trip to the final landing and the inning ended with the score of 2 to 1.

In the sixth the colts annexed another. With one down, Powell was given a ticket, stole the next two bases and skurried home on a passed ball. The fourth score came in the seventh by the phenomenal speed work of Dickson. He drew a pass and hot-footed it off for second on the first ball over. Nelson laid one down to short and Dickson beat it for third, where an attempt was made to catch him. However, the runner beat the ball to the bag, but his momentum forced him off the station of safety while the ball was still in the hands of the baseman. The latter immediately attempted to tag Dickson, whereupon that player sprinted for home, closely pursued by the baseman and with the death dealing ball scarcely an inch from his back. Gradually the distance between the two increased until the pursuer, realizing the futility of the chase, hurled the sphere to the high heavens in an attempt to put it in the catcher's glove.

The other two for Pendleton came in the eighth. Rader was given a safe journey to first and on Harlan's single reached third, and then Hays and Leonard both bumped the ball, both of the former flittered to the home pan.

Athena's last two scores came in the ninth. Lleuallen opened up with a hit and stole second, reached third on a passed ball and came home on an error. That same error gave Myrick life at first and second and after he had pliffed third he sped to the rubber when Booher struck the ball to Rader.

Considering the fact that Athena's lineup was much changed, the Colts put up a clever article of ball. Nelson deserves a brass ring for the way he covered the initial bag, securing 15 out of the 27 putouts, while Dickson and Harlan of course come in for a shower of bouquets.

ECHO BOYS LOSE TO HERMISTONIANS

GAME GOES TO PROJECT TEAM BY SCORE OF 7 TO 0

Fatal Fourth Inning Proves Disastrous for Echo Team—Game Called in Seventh—Echo Band Furnishes Music—Other News Notes.

(Special Correspondence.) Hermiston, Ore., May 15.—By superior ball playing in every way the Hermiston aggregation took the Echoites into camp at the tune of 7 to 0. At no time in the game did the Echo boys have any chance to make a run, and but twice were they able to get in line with H. West's curves. In the fourth inning Hermiston had three men on bases and R. West came to bat and landed a nice little single out bringing in three men. This put the Echo boys up in the air for a couple minutes and before they could wake up Hermiston had run in six scores. In this inning several very costly errors were made by the Echo boys. For Hermiston the battery, H. West and Andrews, deserves much credit, for the way they chopped them up would have been a credit to old leaguers.

A large crowd was in attendance and the day was ideal. The Echo band accompanied the team and furnished music through the game.

The following is the summary as taken from the official score:

EAST OREGONIAN EATS UMATILLA STRAWBERRIES

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating," once remarked some savant of the Ben Franklin order and members of the East Oregonian force feel deeply indebted to the aforementioned savant. For had it not been for a belief in the truth of this old saw it is possible that A. B. Stephens of Umatilla would not have seen fit to back up his statements concerning the merits of the Umatilla strawberry by some of the "eating."

As the matter stands the members of the newspaper force are willing to testify in no uncertain manner that for size, color and flavor the Umatilla berry will compare favorably with the Hood River, Hermiston or Milton-Freewater article. Their verdict is not based on a single sample box but up on an entire crate of the luscious fruit which was received at this office Saturday evening. This is the first year that the Umatilla berries have been placed on the market.
