TO PROTECT THE TRAVELING PUBLIC

HEALTH COMMISSIONERS EVOLVE SAFETY METHODS

Will Seek to Secure Sanitary Methods on Railroads—Movement Is Country Wide—Dr. E. E. Heg Is in Charge in West—Other News of the Northwest.

Seattle.—The protection of the traveling public from disease by safe-guarding trains from infection, regulating the travel of diseased persons, and scientific and unremitting sanitation in every phase of travel within the states, is the plan evolved at a recent conference of health officers at Washington, D. C., and Dr. Elmer E. Heg, state health commissioner of this state, has been assigned the task of planning the work west of the Mississippi river. Dr. Heg has just returned from Washington and is now arranging for a conference in Seattle, of health officials from western states.

Dr. Heg believes that even if the Owens bill, providing for a national department of health, is not passed, the state health officers can accomplish by co-operation the same results for which a national department is needed. Uniform sanitation laws to protect travelers are needed, so that epidemics will not be allowed to be introduced from one section into another. There is no place where all sorts of people are brought in such close contact, with such few sanitary precautions as on trains. Consumptives travel with impunity. Convalescent patients and half sick people use the cars where there is no chance for taking proper precautions. All of these conditions, Dr. Heg believes can be improved by co-operations between state health departments.

To Preserve Forests.

An important step toward preserving the forests of the northwest from damaging fires, has been taken by the state fire wardens of Washington, in ordering all locomotives to use practical spark arresters. Railroads failing to comply with this order will see their engines stopped from operating by state officials. A great percentage of forest fires are started by locomotive sparks, or sparks from logging engines. The trans-continental lines have generally shown a willingness to take proper precautions but even the big roads have been occasional offenders, and smaller lines, including many logging roads have never paid any attention to the law requiring spark arresters. The Washington Fire association, organized by timber owners to protect the forests, brought the matter to the attention of the state officers and the law will be strictly enforced. Other north-eastern states will be asked to co-operate in this plan in the hope of saving many thousand dollars worth of timber each year.

Washington Winner.

The University of Washington won the rowing championship of the Pacific coast from Stanford university in the race on Lake Washington May 26, and the winner left immediately to race against the University of Wisconsin at Madison on June 4. The beautiful aquatic sport is gaining many followers in the northwest, and the racing enthusiasts hope to introduce it into high schools and into such colleges as have bodies of water near by where rowing can be enjoyed.

With the arrest in Seattle last week of "Darby" Thelman, the government secret service officials have rounded up the last of the famous Maybray gang of prize fight and phoney wrestling match operators, who are said to have made a million from their victims in the last ten years. They operated by conducting "fixed" matches, to which the victim was given a supposedly sure thing tip. Many reliable business men fell into the trap, believing that they were the fixers. Of course the match always went wrong, one of the participants feigned serious injury there was a fake police raid, or some other scheme to so frighten the victim that he gave up his money without a murmur.

The gang operated in Seattle in 1906, fitting up a houseboat on Lake Washington, with a crew and seats for a few spectators. They were exposed by the late "Billy" Lavigne, a thoroughly square fight promoter who refused to mix in their crooked deals. No arrests were made and the gang left Seattle. Finally the government agents began an investigation which led to scores of indictments by a grand jury at Council Bluffs, Iowa, on charges of fraudulent use of the mails. Maybray, the leader, is serving time, as are Joe Carroll and Bert Warner of Seattle, and Win Harris of Spokane, and members of the gang from other states. Thelman is the last one to be arrested. The operation of the "big stores" gang, the biggest swindlers of recent years, are now a matter of history.

The Methodist ministers of Seattle at their last meeting passed a resolution endorsing equal suffrage and urging the passage of the amendment to the constitution of the state of Washington, which comes before the voters in November. The women who are making an active campaign for the right to vote are one by one winning over influential organizations in their behalf.

The northwestern states will enjoy one of the finest fruit crops in their history this year, according to early reports. From the Yakima valley comes word that 1500 men will be needed to handle the crop, the supply of peaches being especially abundant. If this is the case in one small section there will be a great demand for labor throughout the northwest. The market will also be good, as the middle western fruits have been badly damaged by frost.

CLEVELAND TEAM GETS CRACK COLLEGE STAR

The Cleveland team got one of the best pitchers in the college ranks in B. Harrison De Mott of the Lafayette college line, of Eaton, Pa., according to the Portland Journal. DeMott is the man who blanked the Princeton team with one scratch hit recently. He also has two no-hit shutouts to his credit this season. De Mott is 21 years old, 6 feet, 1-4 inch in height, and weighs 180 pounds. He has speed, a ball with a big break to it, and good control. De Mott is also an unusually hard hitter. He has made a number of home runs this season. Sam Kennedy, the Cleveland scout, went to Eaton and obtained his signature to a contract. The Lafayette star will join Cleveland after graduating.

During the twelve years from 1895 to 1907 the employment of men in Germany decreased 20 per cent, while the number of women employed increased 57 per cent. A full third of the economic labor of the empire is at present being carried on by women.—Christian Science Monitor.
