which he may keep his chickens or horses. The pews or slips and furniture within a house devoted to public worship are exempt, but not the chairs, pianos, sofas, etc., within the parsonage. The lots upon which a house of public worship is located are exempt but not the ten or 100 acre tract of which the lot or lots may be a part, and any part of any building being used as a house of public worship which shall be kept or used as a shop or store or for any other purpose, except public worship or for schools, shall be taxed upon the cash valuation thereof.

"Likely, generally speaking, where the tax upon an assessed valuation a parsonage is abated, the act operates as an abatement upon the personal property of ministers or other occupant of the parsonage. There is no law exempting the property of ministers from taxation and they should pay taxes as other people upon like property.

"The supreme court says, 'a building owned by a charitable institution only a part of which is occupied for the purpose of the institution, is not exempt, though the revenues derived from the rest of the building are devoted to the objects of the institution. The rest of the exemption, is the use of the property itself, and not the application of the income derived from it.'

SENIORS WIN ANNUAL TUG OF WAR AT U. OF O.

University of Oregon, Eugene.—Spectators of the annual tug-of-war between the alumni and seniors were Tuesday treated to the sight of one minister, two college professors and one high school principal floundering and spluttering around in the mill race when the husky men of 1910 revenged themselves for last year's defeat and pulled the alumni through the swift mill race.

The seniors were stubborn and the contest lasted 10 minutes before the last alumni was through the water. Canoes and boats were kept busy pulling out the old grads who were unable to swim.

The seniors defeated the alumni on the baseball diamond by the score of 3 to 0. It was the big league variety of ball.

The tennis doubles resulted in a victory for the alumni team, composed of Paul Bond, '08, and Bert Prescott, '08. They defeated Ralph Newland and Harper Jamison three straight sets, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4.

Do you take the East Oregonian?

All church property in Oregon except churches and the land actually occupied by the church buildings themselves is to be taxed hereafter. This was the order received this morning by County Assessor Strain from the state board of tax commissioners and the assessor has already begun the work of revising his roll. The order will result in the addition of several thousand dollars to the value of the Umatilla county tax roll. According to the instructions this morning, not even the parsonage property or the furniture within the parsonage, is to be longer exempt. Heretofore the county assessor has in some instances assessed certain properties which are not occupied by houses of worship but universally the county courts have abated the assessments with the result that no church property in Umatilla county has been taxed during the past few years, at least.

The following is a part of the letter received this morning from the tax commission.

"The question as to whether or not the taxing of such property is unjust or whether or not the law is a good one or bad, cuts no figure with the assessor in complying with the law in the performance of his duty.

"There is no authority vested in the assessor or the county court under the law to exempt any class of property other than that which the law specifically exempts, and the principle of equal and uniform taxation as written in the constitution and that statute, demands that one and the same rule be applied throughout the state, otherwise some counties will place such property upon the roll, others will not. The law exempts all houses of public worship and the lots upon which they are situated and the pews or slips of furniture therein, which shall be kept or used as a store, or shop, or for any other purpose, shall be taxed upon the cash valuation thereof. What the law specifically exempts is all houses used for public worship, not the house the minister occupies, nor the sheds or stables in

HARRIMAN LINES WILL BUILD OVER LOLO PASS

Lewiston, Idaho.—The Harriman system is preparing for early construction operations in the northwest, most important of which is the announcement just made that the Harriman lines will construct a road from Lewiston to Butte across the Bitter Roots via Lolo pass.

Officials of the Montana, Idaho & Pacific railroad a Harriman line, have just filed in Boise with the secretary of state plats showing the line of the road which will be 350 miles in length and cost $16,000,000.

The filing of the plats at this time indicates that extensive construction by the Harriman system will begin at an early date. The recent activity of the Harriman interests in filing condemnation suits on terminals and right of way in Clarkston and the fact that two large crews of engineers are engaged in running lines up the Grande Ronde river above Lewiston and the report that the Huntington-Lewiston line is to be pushed to completion indicates that the Harriman system will assume an aggressive construction policy in the Lewiston country with a view of now taking advantage of the opportunity of reaching out for tonnage, an opportunity which the Harriman system has allowed to pass by for many years.

For the past 15 years the Hill and Harriman interests have practically been at peace in the Lewiston country through truce agreements which has prevented the building of new lines and which to a large degree, has retarded the development of the natural resources of this section.
